TOO MANY ORGANIZATIONS.

Is our University over-organized? This criticism has frequently been made. There are organizations for this and for that, organizations that apparently have no more serious purpose than a page in the annual and whose most important meeting is at the studio for the annual picture.

What good do many of these organizations do? What purpose do they serve? Do they do any harm?

Thousands of dollars are collected from students in the University every year as initiation fees to the various campus organizations. Many of these are national professional and honorary fraternities, and part of this money is sent to the various national headquarters. The balance is spent in the activities, if any, of the group.

A considerable sum is expended every year to purchase the keys and pins that are required by the newly initiated members. The amount of money spent in this direction is great enough to make the value of the expenditure questionable.

No one questions the fact that a number of these honorary and professional fraternities are worthwhile, but there are some others, the existence of which is unjustifiable.

Nothing much can be done to the organizations already in existence, but the Committee on Student Organizations would do well to adopt a conservative policy in the granting of permits to petitioning groups.

THE CORNHUSKER.

The Cornhusker staff will soon finish the task of getting the immense amount of copy and pictures and art work ready for the printer. A number of sections of the book have already been printed, and the forms will be closed in a short time.

The Cornhusker this year is above the average. A much larger amount of money has been spent in its production, and at the same time, the price to the student has been lowered. This improvement is largely the result of the action of the Student Publication Board in converting a private business enterprise of the two students who happened to be editor and business manager into a University project, with the editor and business manager working on a small salary. Thus it was possible for the present management to improve the quality of the annual and at the same time cut the price.

The 1924 Cornhusker is historical and is probably the most accurate compilation of the history of the University, including the colleges and campus organizations, that has been issued up to the present.

Student Opinion.

We have a letter from "E. H. C." for the student opinion column. The Daily Nebraskan will not publish a letter that is not signed. If the author will communicate with the office, the letter will be published. The name will be withheld if the author wishes.

SORORITY GIRLS, READ THIS.

To the Editor:
What has become of the appreciative university girl? This question has arisen at times in the minds of nearly every man at the University of Nebraska in the last four years. It seems to be a foolish question at first glance, and to have no significance whatever, but upon second thought and after careful deliberation, everyone will realize that it is

RAG CARPET

IN THE SPRING
The Rag Carpet would rather beat it.

Well-meaning stranger, stopping at breakdown: Perhaps I can help you. There are one or two things I can tell you about your make of car.
Motorist: Well keep them to yourself. There are ladies present.

He: Our hostess is rather put out. There will be thirteen at the table.
She: Oh, is she superstitious?
He: No, but she has only twelve of everything.

"Mother, I don't feel very well."

a very significant question. Yes, what has become of the appreciative girl at our university? Where is she? In my estimation, and in the estimation of others, she is a very, very rare character among sorority girls.

A man is truly to be congratulated who has had a girl thank him for the good time which he has shown her during an evening. The usual form of adieu consists in "Had an awfully good time" which is said in such a cynical, also superficial manner, that the man is often tempted to answer, "Don't say anything if you can't say something with a little meaning in it."

Our university co-eds have acquired the reputation of being professional "line-handers." How many girls pride themselves on not having any "line?" or being of a sensible character? I regret to say that the majority of our girls are too dumb to realize the value of such a thing.

How they do pride themselves on having a "line," and especially a line that "gets by!" Is that all the girls of our university are here for, to "get by?" Is that their aim during the four most precious, most valuable years of their lives? If so, may God pity them, and the coming generation. It seems as if the number of sensible girls is even less than the number of girls with long hair.

But I have strayed from my topic of criticism. The unappreciativeness of the sorority girl of today is striking. And the reason for this lies in the manner in which the men in school have treated them. They have wanted the girls everything that they wanted and have spoiled them. Take, for example, the idea of renting Ford's for going on a date! Are the girls so weak that they are unable to walk to a dance? It seems so. Are they too proud to ride on the street-car to a dance? By all means, YES!

It has almost become an established custom that if a man has a date whether she live four or forty blocks from the dance, whether the weather is perfect or not, he has to have a car. But this state of conditions will not be found among the girls who do not belong to sororities. And they will express their appreciation even by more than mere words, just for the pleasant evening which the man has shown the girl.

It used to be that the man favored the girl by taking her to a dance; but at present it seems to be that the girl favors the man by permitting him to be the favored individual to escort her to a dance and then she is often likely to break the date at the very last moment.

Men, be sensible. Quit spoiling these poor, dumb creatures. Let

"That's too bad, dear. Where do you feel worst?"
"In school, mother."

"Goodbye, little one," said the pensive gentleman as he spent a dollar bill.

Don't give a cap "too much rope"
Just when you're hurrying the most — zip! and away goes that shaving cream cap. The new cap on Williams ends the nuisance forever. It's hinged on and can't get lost.
In shaving, too, Williams has just as noticeable improvements: Williams lather is heavier and more closely woven. It holds the water in against the beard. Result: quicker softening. Williams lather lubricates—no irritating friction. Last, Williams is decidedly helpful to the skin. It keeps your face comfortable no matter how heavy your beard and how tender your skin. There's no coloring matter in Williams—it is a natural white, absolutely pure. Say "Williams Hinge-Cap" to your dealer.
