ATHLETIC TICKETS

Season athletic tickets go on sale to the students next Monday morning with reservations for the football season. There will be no solicitation—there will be only sales. The tickets will be forced on no one; you must ask for a ticket if you want one.

Admission to a reserved seat at all football games is but one of the privileges the ticket carries. Basketball and baseball games, wrestling and track meets and use of the tennis courts are included. The value of these admissions in money equivalent is about $26, and the cost of the ticket is less than that of admission to the four football games alone. This shows clearly that the cost is negligible. Whether you buy a ticket depends upon whether you have an interest in Cornhusker athletics.

"Privilege" is correctly applied to the buying of the student athletic tickets. Those in charge of the sales will take strict precautions to see that every purchaser is a student. And it is in the student section only that Nebraska spirit appears. Outsiders want to see a winning team—Nebraskans support their team in victory or defeat.

Again, the viewpoint of the men on the field is important—and their ability to win does not all lie in training.

With a solid section of thousands of loyal Cornhuskers cheering them on, Nebraska elevens have often snatched a victory from the hands of reputed invincibles. It was the surging, fighting courage of the stands that made the unquestioned defeat of the "wonder team" from Notre Dame possible in two successive years.

If the students do not take the tickets in the reserved section, the team loses the benefit of playing on its home grounds. Many athletes, baseball and track as well as football, psychologically backed by the stands filled with unshakeable, staunch friends, become supermen. The value of such support must not be lost to Nebraska teams.

The single tax system applied to University of Nebraska athletics is so well established that it is no longer thought necessary to launch an extended, strenuous campaign for the sale of the student tickets.

The small financial support asked for the whole world of Cornhusker athletics is little in comparison with the benefit coming directly to the individual. At Nebraska the entire expense is borne by the sale of admissions. No alumnus is asked for a contribution.

Without a large sale of the student tickets Nebraska athletes will not have the facilities necessary to develop the best teams, and there is danger that many will remain indifferent to the privilege offered them.

This is to be an opportunity to help win from Notre Dame, from the Jayhawks, from the Kansas Aggies!

STAFF WANTED

The Daily Nebraskan is being written and edited by a staff too small to do this work as carefully and thoroughly as it should be done. This is a condition that always comes at the beginning of an academic year. Some of the dependable writers of the previous year do not return to Nebraska, some register for more study work than they can prepare easily, some must work part time, and so on. These changes leave a staff composed chiefly of the editors elected by the Student Publication Board and two or three reporters. Numerous mistakes in the early issues of the fall are the inevitable result of this year's destruction of a staff organization. One error particularly noticeable in the Sunday issue was the line "Continued in Next Issue" which left the list of sorority pledges incomplete. One would think the publication professor to be a magazine rather than a newspaper. This is traceable to a makeup man who took the quickest course to get the paper to the press without running overtime on the pay roll.

To eliminate this sort of mistake the paper must have a large staff of student writers. A large staff will relieve the news editors of some of the burden of seeing that all necessary facts are incorporated in news stories handed them.

Previous experience is desirable in prospective staff members, but it need not necessarily be extensive. Work on a college paper is an excellent method of learning something of newspaper work as a profession. The staff welcomes all who wish to help with the publication.

A "Get Acquainted" picnic was given by the W. S. G. A.—Y. W. C. A. for the women of the University of Kansas.

The Kansas freshman football team boasts of sixty candidates, twenty-six of which are more than six feet in height and weigh 190 pounds or more.

The K. U. DeMolay Association, an organization to be composed of all DeMolays attending the University of Kansas, was organized at a smoker September 12. A membership of several hundred men is anticipated.

The total enrollment at the University of Kansas is 3,704, four being Nebraska residents.

Kansas has organized a department of traffic officers to handle the crowds at her football games.

Dr. Sarnest Dazier, California assemblyman has asked the cooperation of university papers in locating his son Clifford, who disappeared from home, January 11. The following description is offered as identification: Age, 20; height, six feet, two inches; weight, 155 to 160; hair, light brown; eyes, brown. He may be identified by three prominent scars on the left, center and right of the lower abdomen.

The girls with bobbed hair are soon to be out of style, says Paris, center of world fashions. The main reason given for this report is that "men don't like it."

At the end of rush week at the University of Kansas the fraternities an-also attempt to take an inventory of the ocean life upon which future generations will have to draw for food. Information concerning anyone who might answer the above description will be welcomed by Dr. Dazier at Redding, California.
