

VARSITY LINEUP CHANGED AGAIN

Condition of Locke and Mielenz Still Bad But Both May Get Into Game.

RHODES AND MYERS ARE SHIFTED TO BACKFIELD

More changes in the Varsity lineup were made at practice Thursday night, when Rhodes, end, was shifted to left halfback and Myers, who has been playing end recently, was again placed at fullback. A Mandery was at right half and Bloodgood was at quarter.

Ogden and Hubka worked at guards. J. Weir and Swearingen later took these positions. Captain Ed Weir and Moisen were at tackles. Kase later was given a tryout in Mollen's place.

Collins, who was on the Varsity squad last year, was put in at end to take the place of Rhodes. The moving of Rhodes to halfback was necessitated by the injury of Locke and Mielenz, first and second string halfbacks. Robertson and R. Mandery alternated at right end. Hutchinson was at center.

The numerous changes in the lineup made it impossible to determine the lineup that will start the game with Illinois Saturday. There is hardly a position where there are not a number of men of about equal ability in a close contest.

Working at a defense against a passing game was the program for the evening. The freshmen were called in to demonstrate Illinois passes.

With Coach Frank, who scouted the Illinois game, as the passer, the Freshmen hurried passes to all parts of the field. The Varsity had fair luck in breaking them up. Drilling on the passing game—offensive and defensive—has constituted a large part of the work for the past week.

Locke and Mielenz were in suit Thursday but their injuries were still bothering them. Neither got into any active practice. According to Trainer "Doc" McLean, they will be able to start the game Saturday if called upon. Mielenz was more seriously injured than Locke.

One light practice Friday evening is all that is left. This practice must be light for no chances can be taken on having more men added to the list of the injured on the day before the game.

Cross-Country Men Will Compete for Positions

Thirty or more athletes will gather today at the start of the 220-yard straight-away of the Memorial Stadium track, waiting for the starter's gun. For the past four weeks they have been training for this test: to see who will represent their university in the cross-country runs this fall. They will race over the five-mile course today, from the Stadium and back into the Stadium—almost a half-hour of battle with each other for the first places and the right to represent Nebraska. They will come staggering in to the finish, exhausted. In a similar fashion they will represent their University in the four or five conference meets of the season, fighting as the football team fights, for victory.

OKLAHOMA MEETS KANSAS SATURDAY

Jayhawks Open Season With Fairly Green Team; Nine Letter Men Back.

LAWRENCE, Kans., Oct. 2.—Kansas will take the field against the Oklahoma A. and M. football aggregation, October 4, with a green squad. Only nine letter men are back on the squad of forty-two, and of this forty-two only twelve have ever participated in a Valley game.

Captain Harold Burt, fullback, is perhaps the outstanding man of the team. He made a name for himself last year as one of the hardest hitting backs in the Valley. Eldon Halsey, guard, is the only other two-year man on the squad. The other letter men are Kene Hart, Alex Hodges, halfbacks; Reginald Smith and William Mullins, tackles; Ted Sanborn and William Anderson, ends; and Edward Halpin, guard.

"We may have a green team, but it will not be a poor one," said Coach "Potsy" Clark, when asked about the team's prospects. "We are handicapped by lack of experience but what material we have is mighty good." Clark has been drilling his men behind closed gates this last week and is expected to spring some new plays on the Oklahoma invaders Saturday.

The men who are showing up best for berths on the eleven are: Ends—Sanborn, Anderson and Testerman; tackles—Reginald Smith, Mullins, Hardy, guards—Halpin, Snyder, Halsey; center—Davidson, Russell, Smith; halfbacks—Zuber, Joe Anderson, Hart, Lindley; fullback—Burt, Coulter; quarterback—Walters, Wellman.

Freshman Squad Will Take It Easy Tonight

The Freshman Football squad was again put through an intensive drill in passing, blocking, and charging Thursday evening. The squad was then divided into three teams, each one running signals. The plays were very similar to the ones that Illinois is expected to use against the Varsity next Saturday. The yearlings were sent to the Stadium for a short scrimmage with the Varsity, the second string men also getting a chance at the Cornhusker subs. No scrimmage is planned for the Freshmen tonight.

WRESTLING PRACTICE STARTED THIS WEEK

Work-outs Planned for Monday, Wednesday and Friday of Each Week.

Wrestling practice started this week and will continue until after the wrestling season. Work-outs were held Monday and Wednesday of this week, and will continue on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of each week hereafter. According to Dr. R. G. Clapp, professor of physical education and coach of the wrestling team, men may work out any day of the week.

The work so far has been light, said Dr. Clapp, and will increase daily. Men who intend to try out for the sport are urged to get into practices as soon as possible. Men can be used in all weight classes, from 115 pounds to 175 pounds. Unless they are out for football, all candidates for the teams are expected to attend practices regularly.

Commercial Club Will Elect Officers Soon

New officers of the University Commercial Club will be elected at a meeting to be held in Social Science 305 at 11 o'clock next Tuesday morning, according to an announcement made yesterday by Bennett S. Martin, present president of the club. Committees will also be appointed and plans made for the initiation of new members.

College Football Teams All Over Country to Play This Week-end

When the sun sets next Saturday from all indications has a strong team again this season. A number of eastern grid teams will be seen in action Saturday, but none in that section will rival in importance the Illini-Husker game. The big three schools have been wary in meeting Virginia, Yale playing North Carolina in the famous Bowl, and Princeton playing Amherst.

Colgate, Nebraska's eastern opponent this year, will open their schedule with a home game against Alfred University, a school famous for its Arts College, but of little importance in past years in reckoning eastern championships. Other games of interest this week are: Auburn vs. Clemson; California vs. St. Mary; Centre vs. Valparaiso; Columbia vs. St. Lawrence; Georgia Tech vs. Virginia Military Institute, Pennsylvania vs. Franklin and Marshall; Penn State vs. North Carolina State, Pitt vs. Lafayette; Navy vs. Williams and Mary, Army vs. St. Louis, Washington vs. Willamette.

Illinois will bring to Nebraska one of the most formidable backfields ever developed at that institution, although reports from the Illinois camp state that McIlwain, plunging half, and Dancier, half, will be unable to play because of injuries and illness. Grange has been used in punting and passing formations this week preparatory to the Nebraska trip.

"Chuck" Brown, Tackle, Coming With Illinois

"Chuck" Brown, veteran tackle on the University of Illinois team, is shown above. Brown is known as one of the most reliable tackles in the middle west.

With plenty of weight and enough speed for his position, Brown has ruined the hopes of many teams. Hall, the other tackle on the team, is also a veteran, and little success is predicted for the team that tries to plunge off tackle.

UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA—Mystic Keys, honorary sophomore society, held formal pledging Monday for thirty-four second-year men. Initiation of new members will be held immediately and election of officers will take place at the same meeting. Mystic Keys was founded in 1908.

UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI—More than twenty-eight students tried out for dramatic positions at a meeting of the Missouri Workshop, dramatic organization at M. U. The tryout consisted of a pantomime showing one person in three different emotions, and a reading or cutting from a play.

College Press

THAT GREAT HEREAFTER.

Every once in a not-very-long while some magazine or other betters the public mind with an account of the relative earning power of college graduates and people who started their business careers from childhood. The Open Road is the latest. It not only shows that college men earn more material reward in life beyond college, but it goes to the unusual labor of charting the earning power of men who have been "prominent" in college life,—athletes, presidents, scholars, editors, etc. The editorial staff of the Dartmouth resents this. The Open Road has the downright nerve to tell us what salary we will achieve in a certain period of years, and they prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that editors of college publications do not make very great progress.

Our resentment is not based on being told that we cannot do as well as class presidents or athletes or such. The real cause of our froth is being told the exact amount. Yes, sir, we will undoubtedly make just so much in dollars and cents. If we are going to fail, the magazines of the nation might at least have felt us a pleasant surprise and not doomed us to an existence of precluded lack of success. Our friend, the Open Road, tries to soothe our hurt feelings with the reminder, "Better to have been big in college than never to have been big at all." We, however, have not much faith in that. We do hope that our old pals who do make big successes will still remember us. Perhaps we will be able to borrow from them.—The Dartmouth.

THAT MISSING LINK.

Science is now believed to be closing in on the long sought "missing link." It is reported that a whole tribe of these mysterious creatures, half man and half ape, are inhabiting the small islands in the vicinity of Sumatra. The Dutch government has organized a scientific expedition to visit the region.

If one of these wierd individuals can be captured we would have the solution of many of the controversial theories of evolution, such as whether or not the "missing link" wears gray flannel trousers. It would be rather nice for the "link," too. Think of all the publicity he would get. And after the scientists and the reporters were through with him, he could go to San Francisco and easily get a job on one of her monarchial dailies covering California football games.—The Daily Californian.

Informal Party for Faculty Is Tonight

An annual informal faculty party will be given by Chancellor and Mrs. Avery at Ellen Smith Hall tonight. The party is given for all members of the teaching and administrative staffs, extension, library, and religious workers and their wives or husbands. It will begin at 8 o'clock.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN—According to the rough estimate of campus officials, the average students education at Michigan costs him between $750 and $1,000 per year. Education for the medical student comes the highest, while the expenses for the students in the Arts and Sciences College seem to approach the minimum estimate.
