ENGINEERING SOCIETY PUBLICATION IS OUT

October Number of Blue Print
Has Several Writeups of Sigma Tau.

The October number of the Nebraska Blue Print, monthly publication of the student chapter of the Nebraska Engineering Society, was printed Saturday.

The opening article is a greeting to the members of Sigma Tau who are here for the annual convention. In another article, the purpose of this society is explained. Details about the growth of the society and the whereabouts of some of the past members are given. The program of the national convocation is also given.

Among the articles of especial note is one entitled, "Buildings of the Ancient East," by J. P. Nines, Constance. In this article the author tells of the wonderful architecture used in Greece in ancient times and of the "Skill and work that is not equalled today." He also explains that all lines appear to sag in the middle and that buildings always look larger at the top than at the bottom. He said, "I mention these things to show how they took into account beauty and perfection which has never been surpassed up to the present time."

Other articles of note are, "The Ampere, the Ohm, and the Volt," by T. Townsend Smith, Professor of Experimental Physics, and "Looking at the Canals on Our Neighbor Planet," by Prof. G. D. Swezey.

The staff of the paper includes the following students: H. B. Kinsinger, editor; James D. Marshall, general manager; Arthur Ekstrom, circulation manager; Harold Edgerton, business manager.

Will Take Fifty Men Into Pershing Rifles

About fifty new members will be taken into the Pershing Rifles, honorary military organization, it was decided Wednesday evening. A new manner of selecting members will take the place of election of pledges. Tryouts will be held on the drill field north of Social Science Building Tuesday at 5 o'clock. Any sophomore taking military science or any freshman who has had previous drill experience is eligible for membership and candidates will be rated according to military ability.

"Hurry-up" Yost Finds Campus Much Changed Since He Was Coach in '98

Fielding H. ("Hurry-Up") Yost, who twenty-six years ago coached the Nebraska football team, returned to Lincoln Friday to scout the Illinois-Nebraska game for his Michigan team which plays Illinois a week from Saturday.

"Hurry-Up" found things much changed on the Nebraska campus. Sitting at the top of Nebraska's new Memorial Stadium Friday afternoon with his old friend, "Cy" Sherman, sports editor of The Lincoln Daily Star, Yost gazed out over the campus.

"Right over there," he said as he pointed to the Engineering Building and the Law Building, "was where we used to play football. The field was as hard as pavement—black gumbo—and there were cracks all over it big enough to stick your finger into. It wasn't much like that." And he indicated the velvety green turf of the Stadium, where the Nebraska team was warming up.

"I had only fourteen men on the Varsity squad." He looked at the squad on the field below, as if trying to count them.

"Lots of times we didn't have enough men out to make two teams so we could scrimmage, and often there wasn't even a substitute line.

"I used to play tackle with the substitutes. I had to fill in. Then sometimes I'd play fullback." Then the famous coach smiled reminiscently but he refused to say what he did to the Varsity team.

"Usually we had a team and one backfield substitute and one line substitute. We couldn't afford to take any more if we did have them.

"My salary was fifteen hundred a year. At that time it wasn't so bad." What Yost's salary is now he hesitated to inquire.

"All those buildings have been built since I left," and the coach with a sweep of his arm indicated almost every building on the campus except University Hall, the Library, Pharmacy Hall and Nebraska Hall.

Yost and Sherman then began to discuss old-time games and players until the coach noticed that the freshmen were using Illinois plays.

"The best thing I can do is watch them," he declared, and he proceeded to do it.

REQUIRE FRESHMAN HEADGEAR MONDAY

Iron Sphinx to Check up; Farquhar's Have New Shipment of Green Caps.

GREEN-CAP RULES

Green caps must be worn by all first-year men.

They must be worn on the street as well as on the University campus.

They are to be discarded only if the freshmen defeat the sophomores in the Olympics.

The Iron Sphinx will be in charge of the enforcement of the green-cap rule and each sophomore man is to see that the rule is obeyed.

"All freshmen must have their green caps by Monday," declares Raymond Swallow, chairman of the Innocents' green-cap committee. Farquhar's have 400 caps on hand since receiving a new shipment.

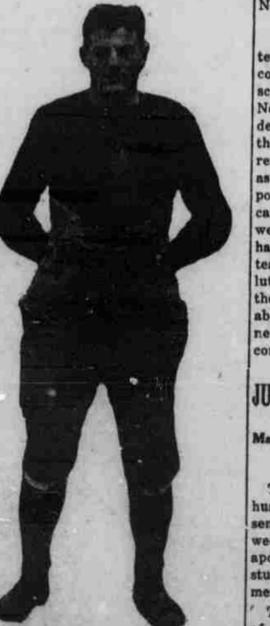

For the first-year men to wear these caps is not a form of hazing but is simply for the purpose of helping the class get better acquainted. If the class will cooperate in this respect, it will be a great step toward an organized class, Swallow believes.

These rules will be strictly enforced this year by the sophomores. A strict check will be made on the freshmen Monday by the Iron Sphinx.

Many green caps were seen at the game Saturday and every freshman is expected to have his cap by the next home game. The caps can be purchased at Farquhar's, 1325 O Street, for 75 cents.

Joseph G. Noh, B. Sc., '23, is head of the department of the New Jersey College of Pharmacy at Newark.

Breaks Collarbone In Illinois Game

Harold Hutchinson, fighting Cornhusker center, who broke his collarbone in the heat of the Saturday game with the gristers from Illinois. "Hutchy" is a veteran from last year, and always gets in the play. The injury will probably take him out of the game for the rest of the season, giving Joe Westoupal a chance at the pivot position.

HUSKERS MEET FOR BIG RALLY

Scarlet and Cream Gridmen
Cheered at "Pep" Session in Armory.

STUDENTS LEARN ILLINOIS CHEERS

The Nebraska football team was given a send-off for the Illinois game by more than 1500 students who gathered in the Armory Friday evening at 7 o'clock for the first gridiron rally of the school year.

Amid a pandemonium of cheers the team filed down an aisle formed by the Corncobs to seats on the stage. The University band led the students in Nebraska songs. Monroe Gleason, head cheerleader, introduced Burt Hurd, Illinois cheerleader, who led the crowd in the famous Illinois yell: "Oskee-wow-wow, Skinee-wow-wow, Illinois, Illinois—Yea." This yell was given as the visiting team came on the field Saturday afternoon.

Wendell Berge, president of the Innocents, presided. Captain Weir was first introduced, and he in turn introduced the members of the Varsity squad. Weir said, "We have had many hardships in starting this season but every man has done his best." He implored the students to keep up their cheering until the last whistle, no matter what happened.

Before introducing Coach Fred T. Dawson, Berge declared, "We are going to beat Illinois fairly and squarely, and we want them to remember Cornhusker hospitality."

"The team is not here to tell you anything, they should be home in bed but we wanted them to feel the emotion of this great body of Cornhuskers gathered here," said Coach Dawson, who had been introduced as the man behind the gun. He added, "Tomorrow comes the terrific test. When Illinois makes a good play applaud the same as you would when Nebraska makes a good play."

Not Test of Strength.

This game cannot be a test of inter-sectional strength he declared in concluding. "Coach Zuppke and I scheduled these games last year. Neither team has had ample time to develop its full strength and we need the support of the student body. The rest of the schedule is just as hard as this. If we lose we need the support more than ever. We are handicapped by lack of experience and weight, but if Illinois wins they will have defeated a fighting, battling team. We offer no excuses, absolutely regardless of the outcome of the game. We may learn something about loyalty from football and we need your spirit and devotion in this contest."

JUNIORS MAY GET PICTURES

May Make Appointments at Townsend or Hauck Studios.

The junior pictures for the Cornhusker may be taken at the Townsend or Hauck studios. Late next week the Cornhusker will make the appointments. The next few days the student can make his own appointment directly at the studio.

The price this year is four dollars, of which $2.75 goes to the Cornhusker. One dozen pictures can be obtained by paying $1.50 more. An extra fifty cents will have to be paid for a second sitting unless it is the fault of the photographer.

November 12 is the last date that the junior pictures can be taken. At the studio an information blank will be filled out to be printed in the Cornhusker.

MAKE SJOGREN COUNCIL HEAD

Delegates to Sigma Tau Conclave Elect Nebraskan
Temporary Leader.

DAVIDSON IS CHOSEN FOR COUNCIL MEMBER

C. A. Sjogren of the department of mechanical engineering was elected temporary chairman of the Grand Council of Sigma Tau at a meeting of delegates to the twentieth annual convocation Saturday morning at the Temple.

Prof. J. B. Davidson, Nebraska, Mechanical Engineering, '04, one of the founders of Sigma Tau in 1904, at present chairman of the agricultural and mechanical engineering departments of Iowa State College at Ames, was elected member of the Grand Council. Prof. Davidson was the originator and the first chairman of the department of agricultural engineering at the University of Nebraska when Nebraska was a pioneer in the field.

Edits Series of Papers.

Following several years' service at Nebraska, Professor Davidson went to Ames to head the agricultural engineering department at that school.

Later he served as chairman of the department of agricultural engineering at the University of California at Berkeley. Since leaving the University of California and returning to Ames, Professor Davidson has been head of the department formerly in his charge, with the addition of the mechanical engineering branch. He is at present, editing a series of papers on agricultural engineering for Wiley and Company, publishers of many technical works.

C. M. Rausch, Pennsylvania State College, was elected to fill the remaining vacancy in the Grand Council, made vacant by the completion of the terms of W. J. Wohlenberg, president, connected with Mason Laboratory, Sheffield Scientific School, New Haven, Conn., Stanley A. Smith, secretary-treasurer, of the College Station, Pullman, Wash., and Albert Gonsior, historian, 410 McKinley Avenue, Champaign, Ill.

Will Elect President.

The Grand Council will be called into meeting by the temporary chairman, C. A. Sjogren of Nebraska, and will elect from its own numbers a president, a secretary-treasurer, and an historian. The council is composed of five members whose terms expire at various intervals. L. W. W. Morrow, Tenth Avenue at Thirty-sixth Street, New York, N. Y., technical writer with the Electrical World; and H. W. Fish, 524 Sheldon Building, San Francisco, Calif., are members of the council whose terms expire in 1926.

Delegates to the convocation attended the Illinois-Nebraska football game Saturday afternoon, their seats being in the reserved section in the gallery, just above the student section.

A banquet for the guests and the members of the Nebraska chapter of Sigma Tau was held at 6:30 Saturday at the Hotel Lincoln.

The chapter at George Washington University at the national capital has asked for the 1925 convocation. Selection of the place for the next meeting was left to the grand council.

APPOINT THREE FOR ANNUAL

Mary Ellen Edgerton Is Made Editor of Classes.

Mary Ellen Edgerton, '26, Aurora, was appointed editor of the classes division of the 1925 Cornhusker, according to announcement made by the editor, Wendell Berge, late Saturday.

Ruth Wells, '26, Lake View, Iowa, was selected to edit the sorority section. August J. Weldman, '26, Wahoo, was appointed editor of the junior class section.

These announcements are not made, according to the editor, because of greater importance than others, but because work must begin on them at once. Other appointments will be announced as they are made.

OFFICERS FORM DRILL UNIT

First-year Advanced-course Men Will Demonstrate.

First-year advanced-course students in the University R. O. T. C. unit will be organized as a demonstration company for exhibition work and instructional purposes. Members will take turns acting as cadet officers of the company.

The demonstration company was made necessary by the thirty-five per cent increase in registration for the advanced course. Only seniors in the military department will be assigned to the regular cadet companies as officers. There were so many cadet officers this year that it was impossible to assign all of them to companies.

Welcome is Finest Ever Seen—Zuppke

"Nebraska's welcome is the finest I have ever seen in all the years I have been coaching football," Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois declared Friday.

"The first things noticed on entering Lincoln were the signs and armbands. These are sincerely appreciated by the members of the Illinois squad and myself."

"There is always danger of too zealous partisanship in college athletics," Mr. Zuppke concluded, "but this should make the already friendly relations existing between Nebraska and Illinois even better."

PLAYERS OPEN TICKET DRIVE

Many Seats Already Sold; Only Few Left for Matinee Performances.

SEVEN PRODUCTIONS WILL BE PRESENTED

Season tickets for the seven productions of the University Players go on sale Monday at the office of the dramatics department, room 103, in the Temple. Tickets for the evening performances are $4.00, those for the Saturday matinees are $3.00. Single admissions will be 75 cents.

A large number of tickets have already been sold. Only a few matinee seats are left, according to A. L. Erickson, business manager of the Players.

The season will open October 23, 24, 25 with a presentation of the New York comedy success, "Rollo's Wild Out." The cast is working on the play and already has it well under way.

Will Give "Thank-U."

In November the Players will present a second comedy, "Thank-U," dealing with the story of a small-town minister and his niece from Paris.

The third play, which will open on December 4, is Galsworthy's "Loyalties," which was presented last year by the Theater Guild of New York.

An evening of one-act plays will be given February 5, 6, 7. The selection of plays has not yet been made but will be announced soon.

The fifth production, February 19, 20, 21, will be Shakespeare's comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing."

Piner's play, "The Masquerader" in which Guy Bates Post made his greatest success and which he afterward played on the screen, will be given March 12, 13, 14.

Rhodes Makes Only Nebraska Touchdown

John "Choppy" Rhodes who broke through the Illinois line, eluded the backfield, and made a touchdown in the first quarter of the Saturday game after the Huskers had carried the ball down to the 37-yard line with a series of line-plunges. Rhodes bore the brunt of the Husker offensive, carrying the ball almost half of the time in the first quarter.

ILLINI WIN FROM HUSKERS 9-6 WITH AERIAL TACTICS

Passing Ability of Blue and Gold Gains Six First Downs From Green Cornhusker Eleven; "Choppy" Rhodes Breaks
Through 37 Yards for Touchdown.

BRITTON'S GOAL FROM PLACEMENT CLINCHES GAME

Nebraska's green team was unable to withstand the perfect aerial attack of the Illini at Stadium field Saturday afternoon and lost a bitterly fought game to the Big Ten champions, 9 to 6.

Unable to beat the Cornhuskers by straight football, the Illinois team opened up a passing game that astonished the huge crowd which witnessed the contest.

This tells the story:
Yards by straight football—Nebraska, 145; Illinois, 91.
Yards from passes—Nebraska, 0; Illinois, 103.

"Choppy" Rhodes, Cornhusker left halfback who was transferred last week from his position at end, proved the hero of the day. Rhodes broke away in the first quarter for 37 yards and a touchdown. Eluding many tacklers, including the great "Red" Grange, all-American halfback, Rhodes finally got a clear field.

Illinois' first touchdown came as a result of a wonderful passing attack which carried the ball from the middle of the field to the goal line. Three passes by "Red" Grange, which netted 23, 8 and 8 yards brought the score. An 8-yard pass, Grange to Kassel, brought the touchdown.

In the last quarter, after passes and line plays had failed, Britton, Illinois fullback, dropped back to the 27-yard line and kicked a goal from placement.

Ever since he began to play football for Nebraska it has been Rhodes' ambition to play in the backfield. At the end of last season it seemed assured that he would be transferred, but when practice started he was back at his old place at end. Injuries to Locke and Mielenz forced a change in the lineup and Rhodes was placed at halfback. His work in the game seems to have assured him of the accomplishment of his desire to play in the backfield.

Rhodes Bears Brunt

Early in the game it became apparent that Rhodes was to bear the brunt of the Nebraska offensive. The game might well have been termed: "Choppy" Rhodes vs. "Red" Grange.

Grange, watched like a hawk by the Nebraska team, was usually smothered before he got started. On two occasions he got away and proved that his reputation as an open-field runner was deserved. Tackler after tackler dived at Grange but he seemed to be impossible to touch. Nebraskans who saw him in action did not wonder why he made the all-American.

Great as was the offensive work of these two stars, the defensive work of the entire Nebraska team was even more impressive. Doug Meyers, tackle, spued play after play; Collins, end, whose chance came as a result of a switch in the lineup, played a great game; Captain Ed Weir let little through his side of the line. Joe Weir, 160-pound guard, "kid brother" of the captain, also went well. Moizen, giant red-headed tackle, played a bang-up game and Robertson, right end and veteran of last year, spued "Red" Grange time after time for losses or no gain.

Hutchinson Breaks Collarbone

Hutchinson, Nebraska center, received a broken collarbone in the first quarter. He will probably be out for the rest of the season. Westoupal played the center position most of the game.

Nebraska's inability to get away with passes, or to stop the Illinois throws, probably cost the Huskers the game. So far as straight football was concerned the Huskers were superior, as is indicated by the yardage. "Red" Grange's great throws and the uncanny acuity of Illinois men to pull the ball out of the air were too much for Nebraska.

Locke, halfback who was injured last week, went into the game in the last few minutes in spite of a bad ankle. Kamm, quarterback, replaced Bloodgood at about the same time.

"Benny" Leonard, Illini halfback who made the team this year at the expense of a veteran, went well. Gallivan, quarterback, made a good showing.

Britton Kicks Goal

Britton, veteran fullback, displayed his usual ability at kicking. Britton tried two seemingly impossible placement kicks from the middle of the field and finally kicked a goal from the 27-yard line. Bloodgood also tried a drop-kick for a field goal.

"Red" Grange flashed his open-field running ability twice—once when he returned a punt and once, on a complicated triple pass behind the line, when he tore away for 22 yards.

Grange's ability was of use even when he was not in play. The Nebraska men, in their zealous watch of the Illini star, sometimes overlooked the other backs, who got away for gains. Britton once broke through for 15 yards while the Cornhuskers were keeping track of Grange.

Bloodgood and Britton both got away well in the punting game.

Stadium Not Filled.

The Stadium was not filled for the game but the crowd was estimated at about 25,000. Between halves, the Tassels, a women's "pep" organization, put on a stunt. Members of the Tassels rode horses around the track and marched in an N formation.

Students in the student section gave the Illinois yell and the band played the "Blue and Gold," Illinois field song.
