

PETROVA TELLS OF HER CAREER

Star and Author of "Hurricane" Deplores Fact that People Are Slow.

WOULD STIR THOUGHT AND BRING PROGRESS

Madame Olga Petrova, star and author of "Hurricane," told University of Nebraska students at the convocation in the Temple theatre Monday morning of her career and of the things she had in mind when she wrote "Hurricane."

"Hurricane," the story of an immigrant Czech-Slovak family in Texas, was written to show the need of training women for a profession, said Madame Petrova, who explained that she at least hoped to stir up an argument through it. "It is only through argument that we can progress," she said.

Training in the professions and trades is necessary, declared Madame Petrova because all women are not born to marry and because all married women are not happy. The need of better regulation of families was also emphasized.

Madame Petrova deplored the fact that the American people go to the theatre only to be entertained. She declared that the theater should give something worth while—something to think about—in addition to entertainment.

Writing has always been Madame Petrova's chief interest. She began as a reporter on the London Tribune. In a few months she was assigned to the gay night court and came into contact with a strata of society which she had not known before. She soon saw that she was not going to get an opportunity to write about the things she wanted to and went into the theatre to make money to carry on her writing.

Madame Petrova was introduced by Paul H. Grummann, director of the School of Fine Arts. She appeared at the Orpheum theatre last night in "Hurricane."

SCHOOLS WILL STUDY ENGINEER EDUCATION

College of Engineering Will Participate in National Study of Problem.

At the conference by W. E. Wickendon, director of investigations for the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, Dean O. J. Ferguson of the College of Engineering and a committee of the faculty, it was agreed that the College of Engineering would participate in the national study of engineering education with a view to determining what its needs are and how these may be met.

One hundred and fifty engineering schools will participate in the divided program, with each school concentrating on one phase, thus making a more detailed investigation possible. Interesting and valuable material is already being made available by this national study. Dean Ferguson is chairman of the committee of engineering faculty members, with Professors G. R. Chaburn, W. L. DeBaufre, H. J. Kesner, E. E. Brackett, O. E. Edison and J. Smay on the committee. This committee conferred with Mr. Wickendon as to the details of the general program that would be undertaken locally.

Very vital questions are coming to the front relative to the past experiences and present practices of colleges. Projects are under way for the study of the entering students and their preparation for taking up engineering. Other studies relate to the teachers of engineering, the scope and field of work of the colleges, both in education and industry; the educational requirements and standards of engineering schools; the value of placement examinations and general intelligence tests; and opportunities for vocational guidance.

At a faculty meeting more detailed information was given to assist in the selection of a limited number of definite projects to be undertaken. The faculty committee will prepare a report for faculty consideration next week, recommending a definite plan of work with committee organization to carry out the project.

HOLD TRYOUTS FOR DRAMATIC STUDENTS

Announce Rules Governing Acts; Names Must Be in by Thursday Noon.

Tryouts for the Dramatic Club will be held at the Temple Theatre Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The following rules will govern the tryouts:

1. Any regular student in the University is eligible.
2. Each applicant must try out in part of a scene from some play, original or otherwise.
3. The name of the applicant, title or play, role, and time for tryout must be left at the offices of the Dramatic Department before Thursday noon.
4. Three minutes will be granted to each individual applicant. Five minutes will be granted to any two applicants trying out together.

The Dramatic Club is one of the oldest organizations of its kind on the campus. It was first organized in 1900 for the purpose of promoting interest in dramatic activities. The records of the club show that the first meeting was held in the old University Chapel, February 28, 1900. H. Alice Howell, who is now the head of the dramatic department and director of the University Players, was elected president, and Miss Bailey secretary-treasurer.

During the twenty-four years the Dramatic Club has been on the University campus, it has produced and sponsored many public performances at the University and also in downtown theatres and out over the state. During the war, however, many of the old and active members were engaged in war work and the club suffered as a consequence. It was during this time that the University Players began to be recognized as the leading dramatic organization at the University and has held that position for a number of years.

This year the members of the club plan an active program. Many plays are under consideration and as soon as the new members are initiated work on the public performances will begin. All students are urged to try out. While the number admitted will be limited to those showing real ability in dramatic work, the club offers an opportunity for students who are interested in public performances to develop their talents along that line.

ADD PHI GAM, ALPHA O, AND SIG ALPH TO LIST

Two fraternities and one sorority have been penalized by the committee on student organizations for participation in week-night parties held on freshman "sneak nights" in addition to those which were published in the Thursday issue of the Daily Nebraskan. They are: Alpha Omicron Pi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Gamma Delta, Alpha Tau Omega was omitted from the list announced last week. The penalty set by the committee is that each offending group shall hold only one house party this semester and shall give up the first down-town party which it has scheduled.

Violation of University rules which prohibit week-night parties and which require the scheduling of chaparrons at the office of dean of women were committed by the groups which have been penalized. In some cases it is the upperclassmen and not the freshmen who are the offenders. Every women's group in the University has been investigated by the committee.

CHANGE DATE FOR DEBATING TRYOUTS

More Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors Are Wanted To Sign Up for Monday.

The time of the tryouts for the class debates has been changed from Wednesday to Monday of next week. This change was made because it was impossible to get the rooms necessary for the tryouts. The question for interclass debates is, "Should State Governments Make the Ku Klux Klan Illegal?" Debates will be held within a month after the tryouts. The freshmen will debate the sophomores and the juniors will meet the seniors in the first round debates. The two winners will meet later in the finals.

The students who have signed up for the tryouts include ten freshmen, one sophomore, one junior, and one senior. The Delta Sigma Rho urges that more sophomores, juniors and seniors sign up. All students with debating experience in high schools or in the University are urged to compete.

Indian Student Criticises Kipling, Missionaries and Fraternities

"Your missionaries are a lot of apple sauce," declared Yeswantrao Bhosale of Kolhapur, India, referring to Americans in India. "They are too narrow-minded, too self-minded. They think that they have the best religion, and nothing else is good. When they go there they think that Hinduism has no philosophy as compared to Christianity, but the fact is just the opposite.

"Kipling is a lot of bunk," he declared, when asked as to the truth of that writer's portrayal of Indian life. "Kipling has no doubt touched some of the mystic powers of the Hindus," he went on, "but he has given them a fictitious form. He is interesting, no doubt, but a native does not appreciate him. He speaks lightly of the facts; he is full of the false idea of Western superiority."

WOMEN ENTER BAND CONTEST

Band Will Serenade Sorority Turning in Most Money Wednesday.

ASK STUDENTS TO GIVE TEN CENTS FOR A TAG

Many sororities have entered the contest to collect money to send the band to Notre Dame, according to Emmett V. Maun, chairman of the campaign. The sorority that turns in the greatest amount of money will be given a concert or serenade by the band at any time that the sorority may ask. The one-day campaign, to be held next Wednesday, will be in the form of voluntary contributions and every student will be asked to give ten cents.

If each student will give ten cents, it will be possible to send a forty-piece band to South Bend. The members of the band will pay at least half of their own expenses, so that they will be making somewhat of a personal sacrifice themselves. Each student should be willing to contribute so that the South Benders may hear the original production of "There Is No Place Like Nebraska." If the band is sent to Notre Dame, Nebraska will be represented by approximately five hundred students besides the alumni that will come to South Bend for the game.

Down-town stores will send one hundred and twenty-five students and many will go by train while quite a large number have arranged to drive through in cars. This will be our biggest game of the season and nothing will help Nebraska more than good rooting.

Students will be given small tags, Wednesday to show that they have contributed towards sending the band to South Bend. There will be many placards on the campus Wednesday with such slogans as "Send the Band to Notre Dame" and "Nebraska Band at South Bend." The sororities will solicit for one day only and the winning sorority will be announced in The Daily Nebraskan the following day. The winning sorority will have the privilege of naming the time at which the band will give them their concert.
