mentations which may be overruled or disregarded.

Other statements of purpose declare that "the Council shall have power of relating all extra curricula activity to one another and to the University, the creation of such other expressions of student life as shall supplement those already established."

The recent penalty imposed by a faculty court of no appeals penetrated far from the curricula of the University and deep into the personal lives of students. Student social life is a tender subject and has been the point for prejudiced attacks from unscrupulous newspapers, members of legislatures, and uninformed persons.

What recourse have students to this ever-increasing faculty domination? The Daily Nebraskan is an outstanding example of such. It is now a tool of the School of Journalism and has the purpose of trying to portray the ideal journalism.

The Nebraskan was first established as a student newspaper and we surely need a student newspaper today. Later, the all-powerful publication board and its equally powerful chairman began to dictate everything for the Nebraskan, even to the policy of the editorial column.

Where is the court of appeals for the student body? It is not in the faculty.

A STUDENT.

Kansas and Nebraska Professors Discuss Engineering Education

At the meeting of the Kansas-Nebraska section of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, held at Kansas University last week when Dean O. J. Ferguson of the College of Engineering of the University of Nebraska was elected president, the program included discussions of the following subjects:

STUDENTS ARE ENTERTAINED

Forty Engineers Guests of Company on Inspection Trip.

The Lincoln Gas and Electric Co. acted as host to the electrical engineering students from 10 o'clock until noon, Saturday morning. About forty students were guided through the plant. Paul Kreuch, '23, explained the different parts of the plant.

The spray pond was inspected first. This cools water from the turbines and can handle a million gallons an hour. The handling equipment and the boiler room was next seen. These are all of modern types and very efficient. All the boilers use the same stack. A model of the construction used gave some idea of the size and strength of the stack. The remainder of the trip covered the gas plant.

This company is building a 66,000 volt transmission line to connect with its properties in Iowa. The sub-station for this line was shown to the students.

Nebraska Alumnus Is Vice-President

W. H. Sawyer, '94, president of the Public Utilities Company of Columbus, Ohio, was elected second vice-president of the American Electrical Railway Association at its recent convention in Atlantic City, N. J. Mrs. Georgia Case Sawyer was graduated in 1897.

Their son, Robert T. Sawyer, recently made a trip around the world. On his return, he wrote an article about railways of Australia which was published in the Ohio State Engineering Magazine. The Australian Commission is sending him on a lecture tour of thirty-three American universities with a motion picture film and with 10,000 copies of this issue of the Ohio State Engineering Magazine as a program for the lectures.

"In conducting laboratory work should the instructor give the students careful guidance and assistance throughout the work, or should the work be laid out clearly and the students left to the proper solution without further assistance? Is it advisable for an engineering college to employ or otherwise engage a limited number of practicing engineers and executives to offer supplementary instruction in the regular senior engineering classes."

"Should we have a non-degree two or three year course for engineering students who after entering college find themselves unable to carry mathematical subjects and hence, under our present system, are forced to drop out of college during the first year?"

As a background of the meeting, the local Kansas University committee had made arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors. A 6

FARQUHAR'S NEBRASKA'S LEADING COLLEGE CLOTHIERS

As a football player he's a good poet

LET'S admit that all men are not born for gridiron honors, just as all men are not born poets.

You can admire a man's grit for plugging away at the thing that comes hardest to him. He does derive benefit in developing himself where he is weakest. But to achieve real success it is only common wisdom to pick out the line for which you have a natural aptitude—and go to it.

Particularly if you are a freshman it may be useful to remind you of this principle, because it can help you start off on the right foot in both your campus activities and your college courses. If your fingers love the feel of a pencil, why not obey that impulse and come out for the publications? You can serve Alma Mater and yourself better as a first-class editor than a third-class halfback.

Similarly, when it comes to electing your college courses, you will be happier and more efficient if you choose in accordance with your natural aptitude.

The world needs many types of men. Find your line, and your college course will be a preparation for a greater success.
