FRED T. DAWSON.

Fred T. Dawson, former Princeton star, is head coach and director of athletics at the University of Nebraska. Since Dawson came to Nebraska four years ago his teams have had unusual success. During this time the Cornhuskers have beaten the otherwise undefeated Notre Dame teams twice.

LEO SHERER.

Leo Sherer, former Nebraska end, has been coaching the ends on the Varsity squad. Under his leadership many fine ends have been developed on the squad.

JOE WEIR.

Joe Weir, "little brother" of Captain Ed Weir, has played guard with the regulars all season in spite of the fact that he weighs only 165 pounds.

Weir has been developing fast all season and with more weight he should make an excellent running mate for his brother at tackle.

Weir is also a good kicker and his ability may sometime be valuable. Weir's home is in Superior and he is a member of Acacia fraternity.

WILLARD D. DOVER.

Willard D. Dover, end, has been a consistent worker with the squad since the beginning of the season. He is heavy enough to make a good end, but is lacking in experience. His work with the reserves has caused the Varsity considerable trouble in practice sessions.

Dover's home is in Madison. He is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

ROB ROY ROBERTSON.

Rob Roy Robertson, Nebraska right end, is a wonderful defensive end. It was largely because of the work of Robertson that "Red" Grange did so little in the Nebraska-Illinois game. Time and again Robertson went down under punts and spilled Grange, who was playing safety, before he was started.

Robertson is not particularly fast, but he shows an uncanny ability to break away from blockers and go down the field. Usually the man with the ball finds himself deposited on the turf almost before he has firmly clasped the ball.

JOHN RHODES.

John Rhodes, known as "Choppy," has developed into one of the most terrific line-plungers ever known on a Nebraska football team.

Rhodes was given an opportunity to play in the backfield at the beginning of the season, due to injuries to many of the regular backs. Once there he proved so valuable that there was no thought of shifting him back to end.

Rhodes has got away for many long runs this season, solely because of his great driving power. He is now recognized as the most dangerous back in the Missouri Valley and is a marked man in every game Nebraska plays.

Rhodes played high school football at Anstey. He is a member of Sigma Nu.

WILLIARD E. BURNHAM.

Williard E. Burnham, end, played in several games in the latter part of the season. As the season progressed Burnham showed his ability and should be a strong contender for a place with the regulars next year.

He is a strong defensive end and has enough ability to catch passes to make him dangerous on offense. Burnham's home is in St. Francis, Kansas. He is a member of Omega Beta Pi.

JOE WOSTOUPAL.

Joe Wostoupal, center, got his opportunity to play with the regulars when Hutchinson was injured in the Illinois game.

When once in the line-up Wostoupal proved himself to be a great center and when Hutchinson was able to return to the squad the coaches thought it advisable to leave Wostoupal at the center of the line and change Hutchinson to tackle.

This is Wostoupal's second year in Varsity. His home is in West Point. He is a member of Delta Upsilon.

WILLARD BRONSON.

Willard Bronson, quarterback, is one of the most valuable backs on the Varsity squad. Bronson can kick and pass and is a good line-plunger. His ability to return punts is also valuable.

Bronson is one of the best passers on the Varsity squad. His work in the Kansas Aggie game was brilliant.

Bronson gained his high school football experience in Colorado, but he now lives in Lincoln. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta.

ELSWORTH F. DUTEAU.

Elsworth F. Duteau, halfback, has been playing his first year of Varsity football. He is fast, shifty, and a good plunger.

Duteau may be counted upon to be a dependable back during the rest of his Varsity career. His home now is in Lincoln. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

GAIL FORD.

Gail Ford, is one of the many promising ends on the Varsity squad. Ford was given a chance in a number of games this season and while inexperienced he is thought to have great possibilities. With more experience he should make a valuable player.

Ford's home is in Lincoln. He is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

WARREN E. OGDEN.

Warren E. Ogden, guard, has been one of the most dependable players on the Varsity squad, weighing over two hundred pounds. Ogden has often been sent in to bolster up the line on defense.

Ogden has played in most of the games this season. His home is in Genoa. He is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

LADD J. HUBKA.

Ladd J. Hubka, young brother of Ernest Hubka, famous Nebraska fullback, has played guard with the regulars for the past two years.

Hubka started out to be an end but was converted by Henry Schulte into an excellent guard. Hubka's home is in Virginia, Nebraska. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta.

WILLIARD E. BURNHAM.

Williard E. Burnham, end, played in several games in the latter part of the season. As the season progressed Burnham showed his ability and should be a strong contender for a place with the regulars next year.

He is a strong defensive end and has enough ability to catch passes to make him dangerous on offense. Burnham's home is in St. Francis, Kansas. He is a member of Omega Beta Pi.

FRANK DAILEY.

Frank Dailey, playing his first year of Varsity football has been given an opportunity in many games. Dailey is one of the fastest halfbacks on the squad and is a good punter.

He is regarded by Coach Schulte as having greater possibilities than any other backs who have played at Nebraska. Injuries have hampered him throughout most of the season.

Dailey played high school football at Alliance, where he was all-state fullback. He is a member of Alpha Omega.

DOUGLAS MYERS.

Douglas Myers, fullback has shown himself to be a great defensive man. Myers has stopped the plunges of many teams this season, but his work in the Illinois game, when he threw "Red" Grange for losses, was spectacular.

Myers is also a reliable line-plunger. He carried the ball over the goal-line for Nebraska's only touchdown in the Notre Dame game. Myers' home is at Ellis, but he starred in high school football at Beatrice high. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta.

ROY MANDERY.

Roy Mandery, end on the Varsity squad, played in most of the games this year because of his ability to catch passes. Mandery is heavy and fast and with another year's experience should make one of the best ends in the Valley.

He played high school football at Tecumseh with his brother Avarad, now halfback on the Varsity squad. Mandery is a member of Kappa Sigma.
