Board of Regents Has Surplus in Fund Treasury to Loan Students

The Student Loan Fund, which was organized ten years ago, is for the purpose of helping students, who are financially low, through school. It has been used extensively since its organization, and all of the money has been placed in the hands of the Board of Regents. A considerable number of loans have been made this year, but enough money remains in the treasury to make several more. As is the custom, an amount will be left in the fund until the end of the year, so that seniors who run short at the last minute, may finish school.

The fund was originated ten years ago at the time of the dedication of the Mechanical Engineering building. It was then thought that the fund would be for the benefit of Mechanical Engineering students only, but the ruling was changed.

The first donation was made by J. R. Webster, of Omaha, who gave $1,000. He was followed by donations of like amounts from Hon. W. G. Whitmore of Valley, and Dr. J. A. L. Waddell of Kansas City. A short time later, Mrs. A. E. Carter gave $500 as a memorial to her husband,

The College Press
OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF MEN.

In the more or less cultured body of students at the University of Minnesota, there should be no need to give notice to so crude a practice, so boorish a practice, so primitive a practice as the excessive use of profanity.

Unfortunately, however, there are those among us who by lack of culture, by lack of training, or because of general indifference, are still addicted to the mule-driving habit. On the campus streets, in the postoffice, in the halls of buildings, in the classroom itself—wherever there is assembled a group of men—there can be heard offending phrases.

If the men who persist in swearing would gather and swear among themselves, even have swearing contests to decide which among them are the most fluent and lengthy speakers, they would at least disturb no one, and might even derive as much pleasure from the sport as their feeble type of mind can experience. When they stroll along at will, though, sickening the air and all their hearers—many of whom are women—with their brutish talk, they automatically become public nuisances, and should be ousted from public activities as are all other nuisances.

The majority of these who swear do so because they think they are adhering to the time-honored idea that the college man, to be typical, must incorporate a certain amount of vile talk in his every conversation. These are to be pitied; pitied—and eradicated. Those who swear out of ignorance of the repulsiveness of the habit should be given intelligence tests to discover if they are really capable of doing university work, and if the results are positive, they should be forced to take a course in orientation which will stress type forms of the common garden variety of manners. In both cases, measures should be taken to suppress the degenerate tendencies of the offenders, or to rid the school of them—The Minnesota Daily.

UNIVERSITY OF INDIANA—A contest was recently held to see what brand of cigarettes was used the most. Results showed that many more would rather "walk a mile for a Camel" than to enjoy the "satisfying" effect of a Chesterfield.

BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY
—A squaw wrestling match and a race between men with feet over eleven inches in length and those with shorter feet were features of the stag party held recently. After a lunch of doughnuts and cider the long-foots defeated the short-foots in a hard-fought basketball game which ended the evening's entertainment.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA—Violators of college traditions will be brought before the Trojan night court, with members of the Trojan Knights as judge and jury. The tradition most commonly violated is the one concerning smoking on the campus.

KANSAS STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE—"Is he in love or is he married?" and "Is he romantic or is he baldheaded?" are two of the questions that are being asked local librarians about Flo Ziegfeld, of Follies fame, who is to be the judge in the beauty contest for the Royal Purple, Aggie annual.
