INTRAMURAL ATHLETICS.

The interfraternity track meet which was held last week is an example of a kind of athletic contest which comes nearer the actual purpose of physical education than do most intercollegiate athletics.

If athletic contests are really beneficial in their training, as it is assumed in most American colleges—that they are, the more students who get the benefits of the training the better.

Intramural athletics, on the other hand, train and develop many students whose ability is not sufficient to warrant their training for intercollegiate contests.

VALID CRITICISM.

The delegate who returned to Nebraska from the Foreign Missions Convention held in Washington, D. C., in January, reported that it was felt at that meeting that the universities of America were too complacent in regard to the spiritual life of their students.

Whether the convention had only religion in mind, it is, of course, difficult to say, but the word "spiritual" in its broadest sense, refers to more than religion. It may be applied to all the higher qualities of the human mind.

That this criticism is justified few will deny. Those interested in explaining what makes this criticism possible point out that universities consist of more than a College of Arts and Sciences.

Because these vocational and professional schools have caused this over emphasis on the material side of education it cannot be argued that they are evil in themselves. They are necessary, and their results on the professions for which they prepare students have been beneficial.

The College Press

"A prophet is without honor in his own country," no less a student publication on its own campus. Praises of athletic teams are sung continuously; the glory of a good dramatic cast is settled with a single showing before the glare of the footlights; but the magazine or newspaper is forever striving for an unattainable goal, without the honor and eclat which encourage the efforts of the athlete and the actor.

On one's own campus, perhaps the publications really don't matter, (at least, such is the common view, so long as fraternities aren't discriminated against, and prompt, accurate, complete attention is given faculty publicity.)

If a school put out the nation's best magazine its student body would take the fact merely as a matter of course. On the other hand, the student whose university puts out a championship athletic team "tells the world about it."

Certainly, there should be a niche in student esteem for those agencies, those institutions, which carry the school's fame to other fields, which chronicle its life, and whose pages feed the student in the exploits, conquests and activities of his fellow men.

Newest From Hollywood—Paper Curl.

The movie actresses have tried and tried again to really keep marcelled. You know how the old story goes—Now they are wearing the paper curl put in with pressing irons. In Hollywood's dampness this curl stays in for more than three weeks, so try to imagine how long it will stay in your hair here in Lincoln.

Instead of getting your regular marcel have this paper curl put in at MAYER'S where experienced operators are ready to serve you and where the best of attention will be given you.

You know, girls, that the secret of good looks is attention to your appearance. Keep your skin, your hair, your nails, etc., in condition, and try to be more beautiful. Let MAYER'S BEAUTY SHOP help you.

The Rose of Fashion—

Satin is said to lead all other fabrics in preference for general wear this year. Cotton and silks are being combined, and Kasha cloth is one of the favorites for Spring.

Latest Craze In All the Shades

Now, girls, we all know that some fads are cute, others are clever, and still others are darling, but we now have a unique collar, called dog collars or "Bow-Wows." They are shown in all shades and are made of colored leather to match the outfit, for sport, afternoon, and evening wear. Really, the clever novelty of the day is represented here. Insofar as you should be up to the minute, get one of these at the FAMOUS 1109 O. (Be sure to see their window display.)

The Rose of Fashion—

Some of the new blouses have high collars and buttons in the back from the line of the choker to the hem. They are quite untrimmed and are made of heavy crepe de chine.

Dainty Girls—Dainty Clothes.

Who ever heard of a college girl who didn't love beautiful apparel? Dresses galore are here for your selection. The most beautiful models imaginable. Collect your Spring collection now, and benefit by getting the pick of the newest at the lowest prices. The NEW YORK WAIST STORE carries Diamond Maid hose and actually back up all their hose. They have a large dainty assortment of undergarments, too. Drop in today, girls—They're at 1211 O.

"LINEN DRESSES — perfectly darling ones in all colors for only $3.75! I didn't expect to get such a darling dress. Better get one today at the SAMPLE SHOPPE, 1120 N"

Five Beau—One Girl.

"Pat Stanhope is a hopeless flirt. She makes love to her professor, to a college boy, to a young Chicago millionaire, and to a French count. She fails to make an impression on her lawyer, and, for that reason, promptly falls in love with him. As a result of allowing herself to become "engaged" to four of her fiancés at once, Pat—? What then? See for yourself in "Learning to Love" with the adorable Constance Talmadge as "Pat" and Antonia Moreno as the lawyer at the LYRIC this week.

What'll You Wear Tonite?

You would not have any trouble deciding if all your frocks were freshly cleaned. The more attractive you look the better he will like you. 'Tis said, you know, that clothes make the woman. Let's believe the true part of this, and whether it's a dress, coat, jerkin, sweater, scarf, skirt, suit, or hat, you will be amazed at the difference after "loaning" them to Roy Wythers at the VARSITY CLEANERS, 316 No. 12th, right on the campus.

"What Cute Shoes!"

True, they are cute, but they weren't until after she brought them to the CITY SHOE REBUILDING CO., 231 No. 12th. Mr. Herrmann performs miracles for shoes, whether they need be repaired, rebuilt, or shined.

Between Classes—A Malted Milk?

Don't you get hungry between 2 and 5? Between your afternoon classes enjoy a dainty lunch and the privacy of the booths at the IDYL HOUR.

Friday, Dear Betty:

I was strolling past the counter on which reposed numerous and nifty ideas along the lines of party invitations, menus, and favors, when my footsteps faltered. Yours would have too because I saw the most unique ideas for our Spring party that I have ever seen. The menus and programs were beautifully engraved and the favors were perfectly darling. I am well able to make a prediction now—our party is going to be one wonderful affair, because I purchased the darling favors and engraved bids at GEORGE'S. But the best part of it is that they are making special offers on engraving—Nuf said! You must come in this week end, even if you have graduated, and make yourself believe that this is the cleverest party we have ever given. Lovingly, Dot.

The Rose of Fashion—

as many bracelets as possible, wide varied cuffs on gloves, underarm bags, narrow belts, dark pointed heel in hosiery are entrancing, fascinating wearables for Spring.

Choker beads in pearls, fancy colors, also metal chokers. White gold N pins. FENTON B. FLEMING, 1143 O, corner 12th & O.

Spring Fashions.

"ENTIRE" effects—sought and obtained by selecting costume ensemble. Hat, and hose with this in view. THE SPECIALTY SHOP, G. Lesher Company, B-1024, 239 South 14th Street.

Answered That Bid Yet?

If you answer any of those bids you receive on anything but crested stationery, you're not what you should be. You're proud of your sorority, aren't you? You should be equally proud to be able to use stationery with your sorority crest on it. Mr. Graves is so desirous of giving you service that he has in stock crested stationery for every sorority and fraternity on the campus. Make the most of the opportunity by walking into GRAVES, three doors south of the Temple.

The Rose of Fashion—

Spring millinery has no special favorite, as the poke, the turban, and the tricorne are all popular. Metallic laces, flowers, rhinestones and pearl ornaments are being worn.

Rent a Sewing Machine.

With Spring come the simple little straight-lined flannel and linen dresses. They're about the easiest things to make, and you are sure of their being different if you make them yourself. Rent a machine from the SEWING MACHINE EXCHANGE, 134 So. 12th.

The Rose of Fashion—

is acquainting us with many novel ideas. Patronize our educators of fashion who are ever ready to aid you. It will certainly be to your benefit, girls, as you will see for yourself. (Advertisement)
