

TICKETS GO ON SALE TUESDAY

Will Make Reservations for University Night at Orpheum Theater.

PRICE IS RAISED TO ONE DOLLAR

Tickets for approximately 1900 reserved seats for University Night will go on sale Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Orpheum box office, for both Orpheum and Temple theater performances Saturday night, February 28.

Prices have been scaled for this year's performance from fifty cents to one dollar. "The committee feels justified," declared Clayton Goar, '26, Kansas City, Mo., business manager, "in so scaling the prices, due to the fact that one performance will be given at the Orpheum theater, which was secured at a higher price than was paid for the theater last year."

Prices will be as follows: At the Orpheum theater—the entire first floor and first balcony, $1.00; second balcony, 50 cents. At the Temple theater—the entire first floor, 75 cents; the entire balcony, 50 cents. All tickets will be tax free.

Twelve-hundred-fifty-nine seats will be available at the Orpheum theater as follows: 752, downstairs; 251, first balcony; and 256, second balcony. At the Temple theater, 631 will be available as follows: 324, downstairs; and 285, balcony. 1003 seats will sell for $1.00, 324 for 75 cents, and 541 for 50 cents.

A single line will be formed at the Orpheum box office. Persons desiring Orpheum seats will stop at the regular box office window. Those desiring Temple seats will go to a table which will be placed just beyond the window, where they will secure their seats. Individuals will be allowed to reserve as many seats as they wish to pay for.

The program, which will start at 8 o'clock, will be of approximately two-hours duration. Five twelve-minute acts will be presented, and three curtain skits eight minutes in length. Corn-Cobs, Dramatic Club, Engineers, Tansels, and an orchestra with Harriett Cruise and dancers will present the long skits. Curtain skits will be given by Moore and Crocker, Miller and Howland, and William Norton.

RIFLE TEAM SCORE REACHES HIGH MARK

Shooters Increase Record 36 Points for Four-Positions.

Nebraska rifle shooters climbed up into the 3600 class in the third week of intercollegiate rifle shooting. The team score was 3604 points for the four positions, an increase of thirty-six over the week before. The firing was against Creighton University at Omaha; Wafford College, at Spartanburg, S. C.; and Pennsylvania Military Academy, Chester, Penn.

D. P. Roberts and Walter Lammler tied for first place, each making a total score of 370, the highest made this season. Roberts' mark was ranked first officially because he led in the standing position which determines in case of a tie.

Following the two leaders closely was R. M. Currier who fired 369. Dale Skinner, firing for the first time this year, was third with 368.

A race for perfect scores in the prone positions developed in the latter part of the week. Two perfect targets of 100 were made in the intercollegiate shooting, and one other in the corps area match.

Mark Fair started the perfect shooting Wednesday, and a few hours later Dale Skinner duplicated the feat on the first official target he fired this season. Thursday, W. L. Plois fired the third 100 prone of the season on a corps area match target.

Dale Skinner by placing third for the week crowded out Mark Fair from a place on the ten-high team. Fair's total score was four points too small to qualify in spite of the 100 he made in the prone position.

Skinner was a regular member of the squad last year, but this year he has put in most of his time with the wrestling squad of which he is captain. He will probably fire with the team regularly in the future.

Two exceptionally good targets in the standing position were fired by D. P. Roberts and G. Dunkle. Both of them made 91, a score that is good for the average shooter in the prone position.

Almost all the corps area shooting has been completed, and the marks made are better than those made last year. More practice with registered targets in the regular weekly intercollegiate match shooting has probably

Lester B. McCoun Gives Address Before Nebraska Press Association

Deals with Clean Journalism and Organized Newspaper Reading.

Following is the text of the address given by Lester B. McCoun, a member of the Christian Science committee of Nebraska, which he delivered before the annual session of the Nebraska Press Association, Friday, on the subject "Clean Journalism and Organized Newspaper Reading in the Homes and Schools."

"I believe the true value of any publication is determined by the extent to which it cooperates in bringing out the high ideals of our three greatest institutions, which are Christianity, our homes where purity, culture and refinement prevail, and our well-conducted schools. I regard newspapers as important factors in this great educational system, and the dispensing of news as consequential only in so far as serving to advantage there. It seems to me that any agency, whether it be a newspaper, a government, or ought else, cannot hope to endure in our enlightened land in disagreement with the high ideals of the three great institutions on which we rely for upbuilding of morals and sound character.

"Let us see if there are adequate reasons for systematic reading of good publications in the homes. There was a time in this country when it was the custom for members of a family to gather about a table in the evenings, and there listen to the reading of books, newspapers, and other periodicals. The newspapers were largely weekly publications, confined almost entirely to local news, and the contents of the scant libraries may have been well known to each member of the respective families. But what they read was discussed; it was talked about by those who loved and trusted each other and who safeguarded those homes. There, prompted by topics suggested by the reading matter, parents and grandparents gave the conclusions derived from their own successes and failures, and by the same means they were assisted in becoming acquainted with the unfolding thoughts of their children. There, with literary facilities which would be regarded today as quite incomplete, sterling qualities possessed by some of our great men and women (Continued on Page Two.)

Y. W. C. A. Staff to Have Chinese Tea

The Grace Coppock staff of the Y. W. C. A. will entertain at a Chinese Tea at Ellen Smith Hall on Tuesday from 3 to 4:30 o'clock. After the tea at 5 o'clock there will be regular vesper services with a missionary from China as the speaker. The tea and vespers are a sort of preliminary to the Grace Coppock Drive which will begin in a few weeks. All University women are cordially invited to attend.

AWARD CUPS TO BEST NEWSPAPERS

Cedar County News, Hartington, Wins Two of Five Cups Presented.

The winners of the five cups offered to Nebraska newspapers were announced Friday night by Mrs. Marie Weekes, president of the Nebraska State Press Association. Two firsts and a second were given to the Cedar County News, Hartington, edited and published by J. P. O'Furey. The editorial cup, presented by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, was awarded to The Nebraska City Press, edited by J. H. Sweet. Second place was given to The Boone County Advance and third place to The Hastings Tribune. Harvey Newbrach, editor of The Omaha World-Herald, was the judge.

Prof. Sarah Lockwood of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, awarded the Community Service cup, presented by the Chamber of Commerce, to The Wayne Herald. Second place was given to The Cedar County News, and third place to The Nebraska Signal. Honorable mention was given to The Schuyler Sun, The Cozad Local, The Custer County Chief, and The Hebron Journal.

The cup for the best front page, presented by the Hartington Community Club, was awarded to The Cedar County News, by John Meyer, of the National Printer-Journalist. Second place was given to The Albion Argus. The Wayne Herald was awarded third place. Honorable mention was given to The York Republican, The Burt County Herald, and The Public Mirror.

The Field Manager's cup, presented by Ole Back, field manager of the Association, for the best newspaper, was awarded to The Cedar County News. The Wayne Herald and The Seward Independent-Democrat were awarded second and third places. M. M. Fogg, J. E. Lawrence, and Gayle C. Walker, of the School of Journalism were the judges.

The Nebraska Educational Journal cup presented for the first time by the Nebraska Educational Journal for the best school department, was awarded to The Harvard Courier, by judges T. V. Goodrich, assistant superintendent of Lincoln schools, and Frank W. Wells, of Lincoln, editor of the American Educational Digest.

Still May Register in Evening Classes

Registration in evening classes offered by the University Extension division may still be made, Prof. A. A. Reed, director of the division, states. Practically all courses offered have been well received. One class has already been divided into two sections and there is possibility that another class may also be divided. The registration is the heaviest in the past several years.

EXTEND TIME FOR SIGNING

Tryouts for Kosmet Klub Production Will Begin Tuesday Evening.

APPLICANTS WILL GIVE FIVE-MINUTE SKITS

An extension of time for signing for tryouts for "Tut-Tut," the 1925 Kosmet Klub production, has been made by the Klub. Students may sign up in the Student Activities office until Tuesday evening, the first evening of the tryouts. The tryouts will be held three evenings from 7:30 until 10 o'clock and will be judged by members of the Klub.

Applicants for places will be given five minutes for a presentation of a song, dance or mixed skit. Persons appearing together will be granted a longer time. All members of the cast must be able to sing and dance. Sixteen principal parts and nearly thirty chorus members are required in the comedy.

"Tut-Tut" will be presented at the Brandeis theater in Omaha April 25, according to a definite announcement by the Klub. Contracts were recently signed for the presentation in Omaha on that date. The play will be staged in Lincoln the day previous, April 24, at the Orpheum.

The 1925 production is believed to be the best of a long line of plays. It is a two-act musical comedy with six scenes, written by Cyril Coombs, a former member of Kosmet Klub. Some special scenery will be used to portray the atmosphere of old Egypt where a good deal of the action takes place. Sixteen song numbers, a number of them chorus ensembles, will feature the play.

Rehearsals will be started soon after the selection of the cast and will continue uninterrupted until the date of showing.

APPEAR IN PLAY BY SHAKESPEARE

University Players Present "Much Ado About Nothing" at Temple Theater.

The annual Shakespearean production of the University Players, "Much Ado About Nothing," was presented at four performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Temple theater.

Some of Shakespeare's most clever lines were delineated in an exceptional manner, according to the report of seasoned playgoers. The love affair between Benedick and Beatrice, played by Hart Jenks and Della Weatherhogg, a delightful comedy in itself, was thought to be very well done.

The near tragedy befalling Claudio and Hero, well-nigh ruining and terminating their romance as a result of the evil machinations of Don John, was well brought out. Edward Taylor, as Dogberry, the head constable, in his inimitable way, furnished comedy for a thousand houses by his misuse of words.

Robb Will Lecture At Omaha Convention

Prof. J. W. Robb of the department of economics will speak next Monday at the Omaha convention of the Wholesale Credit Men's Association for South Dakota, Iowa, and Nebraska on "Credit in Business."

WILL CIRCULATE QUESTIONNAIRE

Chancellor Asks for Voluntary Census of Self-supporting Students.

WILL TAKE STATISTICS IN WEDNESDAY CLASSES

To the Students of the University: I am very often asked what proportion of our students are wholly or partially self supporting. A census was recently taken in the College of Law, and the results obtained were so interesting that I have been asked to obtain the same information in regard to the rest of the institution. Hence I have authorized the taking of a voluntary census in regard to self support.

No publicity will be given about any individual, and no student will be required to answer the questions. No signatures will be taken, but students are requested to make their reports as accurately as possible.

All students in the University will be given opportunity to aid in the securing of such statistics throughout Wednesday classes. Instructors will be furnished with sets of questions, and beginning with eight o'clock classes will request those members of their classes who have not yet answered the questions to do so.

There will be no method whereby the answers turned in by any student will be able to be identified by those checking over the answers. No publicity will be given to individual answers. All information will be taken from the total number of answers turned in. Although no students are forced to aid in the taking of such statistics, all are urged to do so. Similar questionnaires have been circulated among students in other universities with great success.

The questions themselves will not be circulated among the student body. Instructors will read the questions, and students will write the answers on blank sheets of paper. In order that students will be familiar with the questions and will be able to make out their answers, the questions will be printed in this issue. Adherence to the numbering system is urged, for ease in checking.

All answers will be turned in to instructors, who will in turn leave the answers at the office of the Registrar. Compilation of the sheets will be begun at once, and the results announced as soon as possible.

The questions follow:

1. Are you entirely supported by parents and friends?
2. Are you wholly or partially self-supporting? A. Wholly self-supporting? Note: If it is your own money you are using to defray your expenses, or money you have borrowed and are under legal obligations to repay, you are wholly self-supporting. B. Partially self-supporting?
3. State, in rough approximation, what proportion of your support during this college year is derived from the following sources: A. Parents or friends. B. Wages received as a result of your own endeavor before entrance in the University. C. Wages earned as a result of your own endeavor during the last summer vacation. D. Wages received from labor during the whole college year. E. Money borrowed which you are under legal obligation to return. Note: The total of the above five classes should be one hundred per cent. If not, indicate by note the source of the balance. If you are receiving "room and board," or any other particular item from parents or labor, estimate its proportion to your expenses for the college year.
4. What are your approximate expenses for the college year?
5. If you are engaged in putting yourself through college, how many hours, approximately, do you spend per week on such labor during the school year?
6. What is the nature of outside work, if any?
7. What is the occupation of your parents? Note: If they are not alive, state their occupation prior to their decease.
8. Sex?
9. In what college in the University are you entered?
10. What is your major subject?
11. To what class do you belong?
12. How many hours of University work are you carrying?

Will Give Courses At Kansas College

Miss Nancy M. Waters, a graduate student in geography, will give courses at the Kansas State Teachers College next summer session in economic geography, and in methods of teaching geography. Miss Waters had charge of similar courses at the 1924 summer session of the College.

Bengston Writes Research Article

A monograph by Prof. N. A. Bengston of the department of geography on "The Geographic Factors of the Industrial Development of Honduras" will appear in an early issue of The Geographical Review, one of the foremost research publications in geography in America.

Well-Known Merchant Speaks Before Editors

Fred W. Anderson, "The Miracle Merchant" of Cozad, talked on retail advertising before the Friday morning meeting of the Nebraska State Press Association. Mr. Anderson is nationally known as the merchant who does a $300,000 business every year in a town of 1,290 people.

ANNUAL RELAYS BEGIN MONDAY

First Session of Interfraternity Meet Will Be Held in Stadium Stand.

MAY STILL REGISTER AT ATHLETIC OFFICE

The first annual interfraternity relays will begin tomorrow afternoon under the east stand of the stadium. The 8-lap relays, in which each team member will run 2 laps, will start the program at 4:15. There will be another heat at 5:15.

"The relays should prove more thrilling and interesting than the interfraternity track meet," Coach Henry F. Schulte said yesterday. "The competition in the relays will be direct, team against team, instead of against time as in the pentathlon system."

Twelve fraternities entered the meet last week, and entries may still be made Monday by registration at the athletic office, and deposit of the one-dollar entry fee.

The cross-country system of grading will be used; the winner will be the one getting the lowest number of points. Coach Schulte wants the teams to run at 4:15 if possible in order to clear the track for the varsity. Teams unable to run at 4:15 can do so at 5:15. There will be room for spectators during the races.

The final medley relay on Friday may be postponed to the early part of next week because Coach Schulte and the varsity will leave Friday for the Illinois relays at Urbana.

PRESS ASSOCIATION ADJOURNS SATURDAY

Convention Ends with Inspection of Journalism Laboratories.

The Nebraska Press Association adjourned its convention Saturday at 11:30 and went in a body on an inspection trip through the School of Journalism, escorted by Prof. M. M. Fogg, director, and Gayle C. Walker, who briefly explained the work of the School.

From the newspaper editing and country journalism laboratory and the library and reading-room, the editors went through The Daily Nebraskan and The Cornhusker offices and then to the new typography laboratory, M. E. 103, where Mr. Walker explained how the course was begun last September to produce newspaper workers who would be familiar with the theory and practice of printing operations and where the visitors examined an exhibit of student work. The University printing plant and the stadium were also visited. Secretary A. E. Sheldon of the Nebraska Historical Society took the visitors to the Society library and showed them some of the old newspapers in the Society's collection which dates from the first paper printed in Nebraska in 1854.

The Mystic Fish, honorary organization for freshman women, extends an invitation to every freshman woman to attend the Mystic Fish tea which will be given Friday, February 27, at Ellen Smith Hall from 3 to 5 o'clock.

This tea, sponsored by the Mystic Fish, is given each year and provides an opportunity for freshman girls to become better acquainted.

HUSKERS DEFEAT MISSOURI 25-20

Nebraska Ranks Third in Valley Race After Losing to Washington.

Columbia, Mo., February 21.—The Nebraska basketball team won from the Tigers here tonight by a close margin, the final score chalking up at 25-20.

The Huskers, smarting from two defeats, were out to get the Tiger's scalp and were able to win in spite of their two hard games this week.

Nebraska now stands third in the Missouri Valley race, losing her second position to Washington University.

Nebraska's chances for a championship went to low tide when Washington defeated the Huskers on the St. Louis court Friday night, 24 to 20. The Pikers nosed out the visitors in the last half.

Nebraska led at the half by a two-point margin, but lost the game in the closing minutes of play before a clock-work offensive by Washington.

Coach Bill Kline shifted his forwards in the usual manner but they could not turn the trick. The summary:

To Teach at Summer Session in Illinois

Miss Ruth McDill of the department of geography has again been invited to teach at the summer session of the Illinois Normal University. She will be in charge of courses in principles of human geography and in methods in geography teaching.

Faculty Members Attend Convention

Dean W. E. Sealock of the Teachers College left Wednesday for Cincinnati where he will attend meetings of the National Education Association. Dr. F. E. Henzlik, professor of school administration and Dr. O. H. Werner, professor of principles of education, will leave Saturday for Cincinnati.

The meetings of the various divisions of the convention will be held February 20 to 27. Dean Sealock is a member of the committee in charge of the meetings of deans of teachers colleges.

STATE EDITORS CLOSE MEETINGS

Hold Final Sessions of Nebraska Press Association Friday and Saturday.

PROGRAM COMPOSED OF LECTURES AND REPORTS

The final sessions of the Nebraska State Press Association were held Friday morning, afternoon and evening, and Saturday morning, with an attendance said to be the largest at any winter meeting.

Reports from the field manager and secretary, with a talk by Fred W. Anderson of Cozad, occupied the morning session. In the afternoon the annual president's message was delivered, and a lecture was given by Lester B. McCoun of the Christian Science committee of Nebraska. Other talks given in the afternoon were by Mrs. Walter G. Rood, J. B. Sheridan, William P. Warner, and Dr. House. Officers for the coming year were elected at this time.

The announcement of the winners for the five cups offered to Nebraska newspapers, pictures of the summer trip of the association, a talk by "Oz" Black, musical numbers by the University Glee Club and a short one-act play by the University Players were the features of the reception given to the visiting editors by the School of Journalism Friday evening in the Temple.

Saturday morning was featured by the closing events of the convention. A. E. Sheldon, secretary of the State Historical Society, gave a talk asking the support of the editors in securing an appropriation to bind up the back copies of papers that are now in the files. Resolutions were passed commending the action now being taken to abolish the competition of the government with printers, and at the close of the meeting the delegates were escorted through the School of Journalism and the offices of the University publications.

That advertising, community spirit, and co-operation are three of the things which have built up his business is the statement of Fred W. Anderson. He said that the paper should go out and stress advertising and show their merchants the need for it.

"Were I starting a business today, I'd spend five per cent of my net receipts for advertising. These small towns have got to fight to exist and they can do so by advertising."

That the newspaper has no right to print degrading news and that it can be of benefit in checking crime was one of the thoughts expressed by Lester B. McCoun, a member of the Christian Science committee of Nebraska, in his address given Friday afternoon.

"I have myself heard those convicted of crime attribute their downfall partly to the vivid mental pictures gleaned from sensational reports in newspapers," said Mr. McCoun.

Dr. J. T. House of Wayne State Normal began his address, "The Press and Democracy," to the joint session Friday afternoon by suggesting that as pedagogy and journalism had been so bitterly assailed by Upton Sinclair, it was appropriate for the two professions to console together.

"The task of the press is threefold: to furnish facts, to evaluate facts, and to interpret facts," was his summary of journalistic duties. Continuing he depicted the worst failure of the press in these three particulars, but noted improvement and added that in civic enterprise, promoting friendliness, and prose composition, newspapers are rendering notable service.

In presenting a gold ring to Mrs. Marie Weekes retiring president of the organization, J. S. Kroh declared that her administration had marked a new era in American journalism, in which women are to have an ever-increasing part.

On Saturday afternoon was held a meeting of the board of directors of the Association.

Gamut Club Honors Retiring President

A dinner, in honor of the retiring president, Mrs. Elsie Silver Frierick, was given by the Gamut club, Thursday evening at the Temple. In expression of appreciation of her service, the club presented Mrs. Frierick with a year's subscription to "Good Housekeeping Magazine." Mrs. Frierick is moving to Topeka, Kansas. Miss Elsie Gramlich was elected president to fill the vacancy and Miss Helen Smith was chosen chairman of the membership committee.

OKLAHOMA UNIVERSITY.—The first definite step toward starting actual work on the stadium was taken at a meeting of the national campaign committee recently. It is planned to have the first section of the $500,000 stadium constructed in time for the next football season.
