SPORTSMANSHIP AND DISCUSSION

The battle over the question of whether evolution should be taught in colleges, although it is settled in most of the larger educational institutions of the country, still goes on in some of the sectarian schools. At Missouri Wesleyan college a professor of philosophy and biblical literature was discharged because his interpretation of the Bible was too liberal for the taste of the board of trustees.

It is probable that the judgment of the students was based on a code which is neither pretentious nor removed from the ordinary course of human affairs. One need not be a philosopher or a metaphysician to hold a definite, and, for that matter, valid opinion on this subject.

A DEAN OF DOGS.

It should be marked that although Nebraska is a coeducational school it is not afflicted with all the perplexing problems which descend on other campuses—even those on which there are men only. In a recent number of a newspaper from a men's college in New England there is a rather lengthy editorial asking the students to stop their practice of bringing their dogs with them when they attend a series of lectures being given on the campus.

FRATERNITY SCHOLARSHIP

In discussion of fraternity scholarship, emphasis is always placed on the possibility of raising the standards of group competition and group ratings, and in many institutions, group penalties have been designed. It is curious that the premise from which this work is done is rarely examined.

It is debatable whether this interest cannot be best created by working on the individual rather than on the organization. If he can be influenced to take interest in his work, the academic standards of the group to which he belongs will automatically rise.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON—A social room for all women has been added to the University. The room is to be known as the women's federation social hall and has been furnished with wicker chairs, davenport with china cabinet, writing desks, and a grand piano.

TERRIFYING THE PREP SCHOOLS

A moving picture film of "Columbia Today" was presented last week to a Pittsburgh audience which included over a thousand prep school students. Obviously it was intended as a means of interesting them in Columbia, but before it ended it caused disrespectful snickers and guffaws to sweep through the house.

Twenty Years Ago

The Board of Regents adopted a complete set of regulations to govern the University Cadet Corps, making any cadet liable to dismissal from the University who "begins, excites, or is a party to any disturbance which shall in any way interfere with military work."

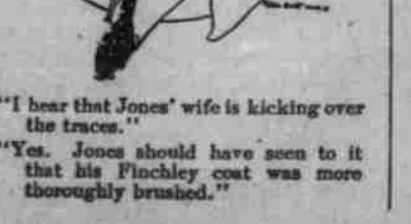

Ten Years Ago

Charles Edwin Bessey, Ph. D., LL. D., head dean of the University of Nebraska, one of the foremost botanists of the world, and a writer and thinker of international reputation, passed away at his home in Lincoln following an attack of heart trouble three weeks before.

Coincident with his birthday on the twenty-first of May then to follow, the cornerstone of Bessey hall, named in his honor, was to have been laid to do honor to his attainments during thirty and one-half years of service for the University.

A meeting in support of a movement to organize an Athletic Association for University women was largely attended and the plan well received.

Cornhusker cage performers were being groomed for a tilt with the Wesleyan Coyotes.

"I hear that Jones' wife is kicking over the traces."
"Yes, Jones should have seen to it that his Pinchley coat was more thoroughly brushed."

PITTINGER CANNOT RUN FOR MISSOURI

Star Miler, Declared Ineligible by Valley Authorities, May Run Later.

COLUMBIA, Mo., February 26.—The University of Missouri track team is for the present without the services of Aubrey Pittinger, star miler who was declared ineligible by Missouri Valley authorities.

The extent of Pittinger's ineligibility is not known; whether he will get into the meets later in the season has not been determined. The Tiger star was last year's captain and holds the record in the mile at Missouri-Kansas meets.

ADDRESSES WOMEN VOTERS

Representative Monte Munn Discusses Legislature's Work.

"Everyone knows what I am here in the legislature for," said Monte L. Munn state representative of the Thirty-fifth district at a meeting of the Junior League of Women Voters.

The child-labor amendment is absolutely impossible for Nebraska," insisted Mr. Munn. "It will be voted down every time, because Nebraska has all the child-labor legislation she needs."

For Young Men There is nothing like a STETSON
MOST young men today know the importance of looking fit. Good appearance counts much in the game of life. The young man who dresses with taste has a decided advantage.
But—it is surprising how little thought the average man gives to his hat. It is his crown, yet he seems to stop dressing at the neck.
Be careful in your selection of your headwear. When you buy a hat, select a Stetson. Its style is right, its quality means long wear.
