MISSIONARY TO TALK TO DISCIPLES CLUB
Dr. Dye Was One of First Workers in Tropical Regions of Bolenge.
Dr. Royal J. Dye, African missionary, will be the speaker at a banquet of the Disciples club, Christian organization, at six o'clock this evening at the Grand Hotel.
Dr. Dye is a well-known missionary in the Belgian Congo, region of Africa and was one of the pioneers in missionary work there. Of his talks on his work, his description of the development of the work in Boleng is said to be the most interesting, and is one of the best in missionary history.
The missionary began his work in 1899. He and Mrs. Dye went to the tropical regions of Bolenge, in Belgian Congo, when the climate was at its most unhealthy point, and when the place was inhabited with cannibals.

Hardships and dangers filled the first years when Dr. Dye was the only doctor within a thousand miles of the Congo river. The medical science which he practiced was a great factor in the abolishment of the old witch doctors and witchery.
Dr. Dye was compelled to leave the work soon after 1907, when he was stricken with an attack of sleeping sickness. It was this sickness which led him to fight the disease, which was prevalent among the natives to a great extent.
The mission steamer "Oregon" which was built so that natives inland on the Congo river could be reached by missionaries, was built after Dr. Dye led a subscription drive for the money necessary to outfit it.
The banquet this evening is the regular semester meeting of that kind of the Disciples club.

MISSION SECRETARY SPEAKS AT WORLD FORUM LUNCHEON

"The two decisions of importance in a man's life are made when he is young—the choice of a life work and the choice of a wife," stated Mr.
High. He added that if older people expect young men to do these things, they should also consider them capable of solving some of the other problems of life and of the world, and that the attitude of the world has been that young people are not important enough to have their wishes or plans considered in the past.

Of the three problems most generally considered at present, Mr. High said little, but gave his own views as a young man who has seen a good things, heard a good many things, and thought a good deal about a good many things. In speaking of "Race," he said, "Racial idealism should be of a different nature than that of certain secret organizations.
We cannot build substantially on exclusiveness."

"If we are willing to condemn extreme militarists as we are to condemn extreme pacifists we will get to conditions of peace much quicker," he declared, in speaking of the "War" question. He said that he thought it a sign of the intelligence of the students of the University that this question should have the subject of discussion here.

"Our obligation in religion is to hold before us that ideal of service exemplified by the Christ," he said, in speaking of religion.
One hundred and fifty people attended the luncheon.
