ADDRESS GIVEN BY VAN DUSEN

Y. M. C. A. Worker Speaks to World Forum at Luncheon Wednesday.

RECONSTRUCTION OF WORLD IS SUBJECT

"Attempts are being made toward reconstruction in Europe through manipulation of economic and mechanical forces. I do not believe that this is the way. Manipulation of the human forces—fear, jealousy, hate, and love—is necessary to bring about natural conditions in the countries ravished by war," declared Henry Pitney Van Dusen, member of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A., in speaking at the World Forum luncheon group on "The Basic Factor in World Reconstruction" at the Grand Hotel Wednesday.

"Human factors," he continued, "mainly fear and suspicion, were fundamental in causing the world war, rather than matters of economic welfare as is generally believed. Now, as always, moral factors manifesting themselves in variations of the psychological factors are basic in world reconstruction. Alleviation of fear, removal of jealousy, absolute extermination of hate, and acquisition of love are the means toward effecting ideal conditions in world civilization."

Solution of the three main problems before the world—the international problem, the industrial problem, and the problem of racial relationship—lies chiefly in consideration of the human factors in world life in the opinion of Mr. Van Dusen. No little blame for the demoralized condition of the world was placed by the speaker on "intellectual disorganization." "People do not know what they believe," he declared. "We need people who see truly, who will live a kind of moral life that is free from dissatisfying factors, who in their determination of a life work will throw themselves out where they are most needed in reconstructing the psychological conditions of the world."

Addresses American Chemical Association and Reserve Officers.

The Nebraska section of the American Chemical Association held its regular meeting jointly with the Lancaster unit of the Reserve Officers' Association last night at 8 o'clock in the Chemistry hall lecture room.

Major C. W. Mason, chemical warfare officer of the Seventh Corps Area headquarters, was the speaker of the evening. He also traced the development of the different types of guns used in chemical warfare, and compared the effects of gas on the enemy with those of high explosives. After completing this discussion Major Mason traced the relations of chemical science to industries in time of peace. He illustrated the deadly effect of gas upon the boll weevil, the Philippine locust, and other harmful insects. The gas is spread over fields containing these insects by means of airplanes.

The address was illustrated by slides, motion pictures, and a complete set of exhibits.

SENATE KILLS UNI LEVY BILL

State Senate Votes to Indefinitely Postpone Measure for Appropriation.

TEN-YEAR FEATURE IS BONE OF CONTENTION

The University and normal school building levy bills for an eighth of a mill for ten years were indefinitely postponed by the state senate Wednesday. All through the discussions and votes in the open senate upon the measure, the roll has stood the same, fifteen for the advancement of the bill and seventeen against. The roll call on the motion to indefinitely postpone was carried by a 17 to 15 majority. Only one member of the senate was absent and not voting—Humphrey of Hall county.

Senator Reed of Hamilton, who led the fight for adoption of the report of his committee on finance that the bill should be killed, declared that the bill was practically defeated yesterday, and would have been actually defeated had it not been for an adverse ruling of Chairman Warner of Lancaster, which he declared defective.

Amendments offered in attempts to pass a bill of this nature, with an actual comprehensive building program limited to a maximum of $2,400,000 available in six years of levy instead of $4,000,000 in ten years as provided in the original bill, were defeated.

General sentiment in the opposition seemed to be antagonistic toward the extension of the period of levy over more than a single biennium, but at the same time very much in favor of appropriation for building purposes of the University.

Action to postpone the bill indefinitely came from Senator Reed, in a motion in the open senate rather than in committee of the whole as usual. A substitute motion to amend and then advance the bill in open session instead of the committee of the whole was then offered by Jeary of Lancaster, one of the main supporters of the original bill.

Upon contention of irregularity of parliamentary procedure, Lieutenant Governor Williams in the chair held that since there was no ruling forbidding such action the motions were in order; and that whenever there was no prohibiting rule, disposition of a bill in any manner judged expedient by the majority was possible.

Following Jeary's charge of Senator Reed's unfriendliness to the University, although he admitted that Reed had verbally expressed friendship, several senators testified to the friendliness of Reed toward the University.

Jeary was ruled for attempting to change the nature of the bill by amendment, and for changing his mind regarding his motion of yesterday to refer the bill to a referendum of the people. The principle of the original bill and of his proposed amendments was the same according to Senator Jeary. He had not previously favored the six year period for levy, but had been advised by other senators to try the success of a motion for a six-year program.

The roll call.

Ayes: Bliss, Chambers, Cooper, Dolezal, Drysar, Griswold, Hoyer, Jeary, Johnson, Laughlin, Lucky, McGowan, Robbins, Scott and Warner.

COMPLETING LAST WEEK OF FIRING

Nebraska Rifle Team Closes Intercollegiate Shooting This Week.

The Nebraska rifle team is completing the last week of intercollegiate rifle match firing this week. The shooting is against St. John's College, Annapolis, Md.; North Dakota Aggies; Rhode Island College; Agricultural College of Utah. The results of the shooting will determine the six letter men on the team this year.

Most of the Husker shooters were practicing the first days of this week in order to bring up their last week of firing as high as possible. One group of targets was completed for a score of 374. Two others not quite so good were also fired. The best targets will probably be fired this afternoon and tomorrow.

Hearst trophy match shooting is the only remaining indoor firing. After that is completed, the outdoor firing on the range at Baggett will commence. Some matches with other schools may be arranged for the outdoor season.
