OLYMPIAN STUFF

Life around the campus as seen from the Mountain of the Gods.

"Twere better this hand was silent,
 This mind obscure and weak,
 Than it should pen a single line
 These lips would dare not speak."
 —J. Gordon Coogler.

ADDITIONAL NEWS OF MONTESEY

It is with sincere regret that we announce to the readers of this column that Claire Montese, who was to have returned today to Lincoln, has been unavoidably detained and will not assume his responsibilities at the Nebraskan office for a week or more.

We received, by special post, a note from him, in which he stated that he had the luck to meet a distant relative, who had with him some cigarettes from home. He explained that it is necessary to smoke the entire supply before returning, so that his relative may not go home full-handed.

At the foot of the letter he appended this postscript: "Tell Jeannette I'm sorry. I shall see her, I hope, soon after my return."

IN THE BARBER SHOP

Only a little space in an unimportant corner of the paper,
 Yet, even to the barber shop my name has reached.
 No wonder so many risk all to attain to fame . . .
 "There—good-bye!" says the smiling barber.
 —K. KWEI CHEN.

AN OPEN LETTER

Dear Claire:
 I charitably assume that, unwilling to make the effort to be immoral, you were only trying to be irrational when you undertook my defence last Friday. You say that I believed the younger generation to be puritanical and have evolved my theory to broaden their lives—that is, for their good. Why do people persist in their moralistic bias? When some one, (for the first time in history) invents a really different way of evaluating life you insist on explaining him in terms of the standards he has cast off.

As for Victoria, after chivalrously defending me from those who do not appreciate me, those who fail to realize that true immorality (of which she approves) must be refined, she ends by suggesting that I sadly need reforming.

This is not the first time, Claire, that you have reminded me of Byron's penetrating line—
 "What a strange thing is man!"
 nor the first time, Victoria, of—
 "and what a stranger —
 Is woman!"
 —JANUS.

MAXIMS OF A LIBRARIAN

Ignorance is bliss. Ignorance of what?

A BOLT FROM THE CUSTOMARY BLUE

"The nefarious ingrate," murmured the doctor.

Some day we intend to write a philosophical paper on the conflicting views of work taken by authors down the ages. Perhaps the best books to start with are Montaigne's essays, Stevenson's essay on "Idlers," the poems of Walt Whitman, "Bunk," by W. E. Woodward, and "The Lotus-Eaters," by the famous Mr. Tennyson.

UNDERSTAND?

While "Queens of Sheba" leave U hall,
 With introspective,
 Self-corrective Vanity-guide,
 Each campus laddie starts the call,
 As, mate to mate,
 In primal state,
 The paramecia cried.

If finger four on left hand lacks
 Its diamond coronation,
 Then modest her ambition,
 Or else she's never tried.

The street-cars run along the tracks;
 They don't get off; they do not care to;
 Moral explain?—I wouldn't dare to!
 —DON JUAN.

MEDITATION IN THE CHINESE MANNER

I was studying.
 I laid my book on the table.
 It had plenty of room,
 But somehow or other it fell
 Into the wastepaper basket.
 Perhaps that is where it belongs;
 Who knows?
 —JEREMY.

We have been told by our friends that we have been doing a much better job of editing the column than our friend Claire. While we appreciate the compliment, we do not wish to have him insulted in such a way, particularly while he is not present to defend himself.

But don't be sad, Jeannette; he will eventually return.
 —LIONEL CORCORAN.

No foelia now, spring reely is here an yu bimbois oughta git yur overcoats an winter suits cleaned an put away, Oh yes, I'll take care of it for yu jus call me on thu phone an my flunky will be there pronto
 to git em.
