

STIFF WORK ON GRID PROGRAM

Last Open Practice of Spring Season Will Be Held Next Saturday.

STEVENS AND BROWN SHOW FLASHY WORK

The last open practice of Husker spring football will be held this Saturday at 3 on the practice field south of the stadium. The practice will consist again of the regular scrimmage work, no regular game being played on account of the necessity of concentrating on the fundamentals of the game.

The practice turnout yesterday was back to normal again with thirty-one candidates in moleskins, permitting of two full teams in the scrimmage, and several left over for substitutions. Good hard battling scrimmage was again the morsel for the candidates. Stevens called the signals most of the time on the offensive team, and made some nice gains through the line and around the ends.

The end situation is beginning to look a bit better, and Bearg has hopes of being able to develop a real end combination by next fall. Joe Weir has been showing up well on the wing position. He has improved considerably during the spring period of practice and should be able to hold down a regular end position.

Dover is another grid man who has been showing up well at end. Others are McIntyre and Sprague. Coach Bearg had some races yesterday to determine the fast men on the squad. Among the ends, McIntyre was first, Sprague second, and Lawson third. In another race for the other linemen, Gross was the fastest.

A new candidate on the team who has done good work the past few days is McBride of Belgrade. He was at defensive fullback yesterday and did some good tackling. Another new candidate is Ted James of Greeley, Colorado, who is out for a center position. Francis is another recent addition to the squad. He is trying out for a backfield berth.

There remains only one week and two days of spring football practice, the last day being Friday, April 3, before spring vacation. Coach Bearg would like to have all the candidates make a special effort to attend all the practice periods remaining. Spring football candidates will be the ones who will be given first consideration in the picking of the team next fall because there will not be time enough then to stop for drill on fundamentals. The men on the spring squad will be the ones who will get the best chances at the varsity positions in the fall, excepting, of course, those varsity men who are engaged in other varsity spring sports at the present time.

Two good quarterbacks are being developed on the spring squad. They are "Jug" Brown and Stevens. Bearg is trying to develop a third quarterback now for the third string. Brown has been showing up well at halfback also, playing there last Monday while Stevens was quarter.

The warm weather slump in attendance experienced on the squad early in the week seemed to be a condition common to other schools. The football writeup in the Daily Illini, the University of Illinois college paper, mentioned the small turnout on account of the warm weather.

The high jump is one of the field events in which Stanford will more than likely garner points. The California school has two men on the team this year who jump consistently over six feet. The best Nebraska record so far this year has been under six feet.

Capt. Everett Crites, quarter miler and hurdler on the Nebraska team, will probably be in shape for the Stanford meet. A pulled tendon early in the season is healing up in fine shape, and yesterday "Doc" McLean stated that Crites should be able to compete in the California meet if he continues improving at the same rate he has been. Crites' return will strengthen the team especially in the relay.

This is the first year that a Husker track team has had the advantage of full training facilities indoors before the open air season opens in spring, and the good Nebraska showing at the indoor meets, especially the winning of the Valley meet at Kansas City, is partly the result of greater preparation possible in the winter months. Most of the events are at a farther advanced stage of development now than they were last year.

Competition for places on the team will be especially stiff Saturday in

A word about the universality of track sport. The sport can not only be called the all-year-round college sport, but it might as aptly be called the sport of the ages. Track as it existed in the days of the ancient Greeks with their Olympics and other meets fostering athletic prowess, was essentially the same as it is today. The sport has changed but little in the course of the ages. If anything, it has improved on account of the accurate timing now possible with stop watches, and the keeping of accurate records for comparison.

It is the one sport in which the present can compete with the past, and it is this element of competing with the performance of the past, breaking the old record, in other words, that gives the sport much of its zest and individuality. The old-timers can talk about the wonder football team, or basketball team of years gone by, but no comparison can be made between it and the present, as in track where the unchanging steel tape and split second stop watch make possible a direct comparison, and gives the answers in definite terms to the question of which is better, past or present.

topsy-turvy; may bring in men who can produce winning athletic teams. But in so doing will he maintain the rating the school has obtained since President Scholz inaugurated his system?

Even educational institutions are being swept into the mad rush to place everything on a business basis. It is folly to conclude that a man who is a capable business executive will be a capable educator. A university president must be the former, but it is still more essential that he also be the latter. There are problems of far greater import than those of business that are demanding profound thought and study.—Indiana Daily Student.

UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI—Three mothers in New York read the headlines recently which declared "Thousands Killed and Injured in Missouri Tornado." They did not stop to investigate further, but immediately dispatched telegrams to their respective sons who are students here. The contents were as follows: "Read about Tornado. Worried. Are you hurt?"

When the students received the telegram in the morning, they stared at the word "tornado" in surprise. "A tornado?" asked one, his eyes wide open. "Where's the tornado? I must have slept through it." Then they made a rush for the morning newspaper which they had not yet opened and discovered the trouble. The following telegrams were sent back collect.
"Never saw a tornado. Am feeling fit."
"Here's broadcasting my perfect health. No tornado here."
"Nothing but rain here. Am fitter than a Missouri mule."

Service and Satisfaction

THE Daily Nebraskan is always striving to give service and satisfaction, to both the reader and the advertiser. The Murray Mat Service has been purchased by this publication in order to fulfill a long felt need of the advertisers that is to furnish them with mats and cuts which will typify that which the college student expects to see in a college publication. This service will also benefit the readers, in that it will illustrate in a much better way the merchandise which the reader is desirous of buying.

For the advertisers we have also created a copywriting department which will write copy to fit the needs of the advertisers and will also suggest type, borders and layouts. This is a service which very few college publications furnish.
