

TOLMAN WINS IN JUDGING CONTEST

Kendall Second and Lewis Third in Annual Students' Livestock Contest.

Walter Tolman, '26, Lincoln, won first place in the annual students' livestock judging contest, held at the College of Agriculture Saturday morning, with a total of 599 points out of a possible 700. Russell Kendall, '26, Urbana, Ill., placed second with 581 points and Melvin Lewis, '26, Lincoln, was third with 566 points.

Following is a list of the ten high men in the contest, with their score: Walter Tolman, 599; Russell Kendall, 581; Melvin Lewis, 566; Robert Bushnell, 554; Theodore King, 544; Daniel Siebold, 539; Amos K. Gramlich, 533; Wayne Girardot, 532; Irving McKinley, 528; and Louis Hall, 527.

Judge Eight Classes

The contest consisted of the judging of eight classes of livestock and giving reasons for the placings of five classes. There were two classes of horses, hogs, cattle, and sheep, with four animals in each class. Contestants were required to give oral reasons for placings on two classes of hogs and cattle, and on one class of horses and sheep. The contestants are graded on both their placings of the animals and on the reasons for the placings.

The total score of each man is a composite of the scores made by him in all of the various classes of livestock. Melvin Lewis placed first in the sheep class with a score of 187, Theodore King was first in the horse class with 149 points, Walter Tolman was first in the sheep classes with 146 points, and Russell Kendall was first in the hogs classes with 186 points. All of these are comparatively high scores.

Open to All Students

Any student in the College of Agriculture except members of the past year's judging team was eligible for this contest and there were twenty-four entrants. The contest was sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club and members of the stock judging team were the officials of the contest. Cecil Means, Red Cloud, with a score of 518 points, placed the highest of any freshman and his name will be engraved on a loving cup in the Block and Bridle Club rooms. The winners in the various classes and the first two men in the contest will have their names engraved on several plaques, also in the Block and Bridle rooms. Most of the entrants in the contest will be candidates for the stock judging teams which will represent the University next year and there should be considerable competition for the places on the teams. Nebraska's stock judging teams have rated high in the past few years, winning the championship at the International contest at Chicago last winter, and several other first and second places in minor contests.

ENGINEERS ELECT WORK PRESIDENT

Nebraska Engineering Society Chooses Officers for Next Year.

George T. Work, '25, Litchfield, was elected president of the Nebraska Engineering Society at a joint meeting of that organization and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers held Friday morning.

Other officers elected were: William Hackmann, vice-president; Elwood O. Morton, secretary-treasurer; Emerson Mead, associate editor of The Blue Print; William Eddy, assistant business manager of The Blue Print; and Vern Gibson, assistant circulation manager of The Print Print.

Two reels of motion pictures of the Westinghouse Electric plant at East Pittsburgh, Pa., were also shown. The various processes in the manufacture of the company's products were shown.

First Archery Tournament for Women Will Be Held in Stadium Saturday

The archery tournament for freshman and sophomore women will be held in the stadium at 9 o'clock next Saturday, May 23. Shooting will be by the Columbia round. Each contestant will shoot twenty-four arrows from the fifty-yard line, twenty-four from the forty-yard line and twenty-four from a distance of thirty yards.

No awards will be given but honors will be decided by classes and individuals. Individual honors will go to the girl winning the most points in the first round and to the one getting the highest total score. The victorious class will be the one whose members score the highest number of points.

This will be the first archery tournament to be held at the University of Nebraska. Archery is a comparatively new sport on the campus. It was introduced last September. Practically all of the large universities and colleges now offer it in their courses in physical education.

The weather this spring has not been favorable for archery practice, but during the past few weeks many girls have been appearing on the field for extra practice periods. Some excellent marksmanship has been shown. The co-eds have found that the wind is a strong, determinative force that must be reckoned with in shooting. If Saturday should happen to be windy, the victor will be the one who most accurately gauges the velocity and direction of the wind.

At Saturday noon, forty-seven girls had signed up to enter the contest. All girls in the archery classes are eligible. Those wishing to enter should sign up at once.
