

HUSKY TEAM ARRIVES FOR HUSKER GAME

Squad Will go Immediately to Stadium Practice Field for Workout

MIGHT CHANGE LINE-UP

Game of Backfield May be Expected according to Pre-Game Indications

Nebraska's Saturday opponents in the first home game of the season, the Washington Huskies, will arrive in Lincoln from Seattle over the Burlington at 1:30 this afternoon and will go immediately to the stadium practice field for a workout of an hour or two.

Reception for the Washington squad includes the rally this evening, and an automobile ride around Lincoln, given the team by the Vikings, junior men's organization.

The talk of the day indicates that there will be a shake-up in the line-up of the Huskies before the opening of the game tomorrow. Harold Patton, the speedy back, is said to be included in the tentative line-up instead of Beckett, and Judd Cutting is not expected to be at his end post.

The game will probably be one of kicks and passes tomorrow, if pre-game indications can be believed. The line of Washington is partly new but so far this season has exhibited a strength which will be hard to beat. With it pitted against the Husker line which has been described as "a revelation" a game of backfield work may be expected.

Stars to be in Backfield

Rhodes, Locke, Brown and Mandery will be lined up against Patton, Wilson, Tesreau and Shidler in the opposing backfields. George Wilson, a halfback, was adjudged a second all-American last year and this season has come to be a threat to Washington opponents.

Elmer Tesreau, fullback and captain, is known for his plunging and his defensive work. Shidler was the second highest scoring man in the United States last year.

The Huskers will meet a versatile offensive, adept particularly at off-tackle smashes and with a few long passes in its sleeve. It is said that there is also a proficiency at end runs on the Husky team.

The Husky squad will work out in the stadium this afternoon in closed practice. After that the Huskers will take the field for the last practice before the game.

Chancellor Urges Students and Faculty Members to Attend Meeting Held at St. Paul Church this Evening.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock and Kirby Page will consider the World Court at the meeting this evening which will be held at St. Paul church. The meeting begins at 8 o'clock and, according to the committee, will commence promptly on time so that it will be over before ten.

The World Court has been made a special topic for student investigation and study, according to the committee in charge, due to the fact that the issue will come up in the U. S. Senate on December 17. Senator Hitchcock and Kirby Page are both very important and qualified speakers, it is felt, and will bring very valuable messages. Wendell Berge will preside and introduce the speakers.

Members of the faculty and students of the University are urged to attend the meeting in a statement issued by Chancellor Avery last Tuesday. "The meeting will be primarily for the purpose of giving information in regard to the World Court," stated the Chancellor. "The necessity of making use of judicial proceedings in international disputes instead of appealing to arms has been recognized in principle by every President of the United States and every Secretary of State for many years."

"As a step in this direction," continues the Chancellor, "the constituting of a World Court on the best possible basis is of vital interest, not only to the United States, but to the entire human race. Hence I urge faculty and students to attend this meeting called to help promote among the nations, a reign of law."

About fifty delegates from Cotner, Peru, Doane, Wesleyan, Midland, Wayne and the University of Omaha are expected for the meeting in connection with a two day study of the question of world peace as related to the World Court and the Student Friendship Work.

Mr. Page will go from his meetings in Lincoln to Grand Island to give a series of addresses before a regional meeting of delegates from colleges of that section of the state. He expects to return to Lincoln for a talk at Vespers on Tuesday and at the World Forum on Wednesday.

CORNHUSKER SALES DRIVE ENDS TODAY

Many Fail to Check in Subscriptions During Each Afternoon

TASSELS ARE IN LEAD

Last Day's Campaign Will Decide which Organization Wins the $50 Prize

The Cornhusker sales campaign will end at 6 o'clock tonight. The count of subscriptions turned in on Thursday night showed that the Tassels were a few sales ahead. Today's sales will settle the question of who will get the $50 prize offered to the organization with the highest individual sales.

Many in each organization have failed to check in their subscriptions at 5 o'clock each afternoon. Checks to John K. Selleck may be post-dated for a short time if necessary, according to Tom Varney, business manager, who is in charge of the campaign.

With such a slight difference in organization sales, competition today is expected to be strong since this is the last day of the campaign.

The 1926 Cornhusker will contain many new features, according to Donald Sampson, the editor-in-chief. Arrangements have been made with the Bureau of Engraving to secure work from some of the foremost artists in the country.

In place of the old "Campus Life" a much larger and more improved section is being composed. It will include both personal and group activities, with illustrations. Much of the work will be of three color process.

Social fraternities will not have group pictures this year. Each will have his picture taken and be combined in the page, the present sorority method.

Chancellor Discusses the Future Of Two Oldest Buildings on Campus

States That He is Deliberately Bringing up the Question of What Shall be Done with Nebraska and University Halls.

Chancellor Samuel Avery, writing in the October number of The Nebraska Alumnus discusses the future of the two old buildings on the campus, Nebraska Hall and University Hall. The Chancellor states that he is deliberately raising the question of what shall be done with the two old buildings to provoke discussion. The following is his discussion:

In the case of Nebraska Hall the question has been practically decided by forces stronger than the Legislature, the Regents, the University officials, and the alumni. Gravitation aided by wind, rain, and frost, threaten to demolish the building before the present attempt to make part of it last a little longer was begun. Here, too, considerations of sentiment had been in the main gratified.

The chief claim to fame of the building is that it had sheltered the work of Professor Brace and Professor Bessey. Brace Hall for physics and Bessey Hall for the natural sciences fully satisfy in the minds of the alumni the claims of sentiment. Everyone now says let the building be razed not only to the second story but to the lowest foundation wall as soon as possible.

The case of University Hall is not quite parallel. To be sure, the building was condemned by competent architects a few years after it was built. However, the crumbling sandstone foundation was replaced years ago by limestone.

More recently the building was girded with structural steel and tied together with rods of iron; but with the ever increasing numbers of students, fire risk constantly grows in spite of the fact that fire escapes have been added from time to time.

The danger from wind is ever present. When the cyclone passed over the Medical College campus in Omaha, the new laboratory building of steel and concrete was uninjured. Neighboring structures built like old U Hall went down like a stack of cards.

The responsibility for the use of this building, where the wind and fire risk grows constantly, has been endured by the officials for over half a century. The risks increase year by year as the student body

HOFFMAN TO SPEAK ON STUDENT RELIEF

Speaker Has Accomplished a Very Unusual Service in European Y. M. C. A. Work

Mr. Conrad Hoffman, secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation, will speak at luncheon at the Grand Hotel, Monday, October 19.

Mr. Hoffman was, before the World War, professor of chemistry at the University of Wisconsin. During the war, he was in charge of the Y. M. C. A. work dealing with allied prisoners in Germany, a position demanding the confidence of both the Germans and Allies.

At the close of the war, Mr. Hoffman stayed on in central Europe as head of the student relief work which is now known as the International Student Service.

It has been said of Mr. Hoffman that he was the most useful American in Europe. Certainly, as the only man in charge of this phase of the Y. M. C. A. work, his may be considered a very unusual accomplishment.

Mr. Hoffman is in the United States under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. and will talk on his experiences in Europe next Monday. Students and faculty are especially invited to attend. Admission will be twenty-five cents.

Executive Dean Makes Statement on Singing

When approached on the subject of singing school songs in the class room Executive Dean Carl C. Engberg had the following to say:

"Saturday of this week we are entertaining the strong men from the West, and I certainly hope that the students of this institution will give them a reception that they will always remember with pleasure, however painful the treatment at the hands of our football team may be. Such reception, however, can not possibly come spontaneously, but must be the result of careful preparation. It is therefore hoped that every student who can possibly attend the rally this evening will be there to absorb the spirit that will help the team to win its fight on Saturday.

"Because this is the quarterly examination period, it is not advisable to try to hold much singing in the class rooms, but I certainly hope that every spare minute between classes will be used to the very best advantage by everyone in the development of pep and energy for the evening rally.

"Let us show the West that the people of the East are gentlemen and good sports, but also that they are the hardest proposition to tackle on the field of battle that has ever been met."

DIRECTORY COPY GOES TO PRINTER

Social Organization Section Work Is Now Practically Complete

PROOFS AVAILABLE SOON

Copy for the Student Directory published annually by the University Y. M. C. A. is being rushed to the printer each day. The social organization section is practically completed, and proof will be available for checking this section within a few days.

"Proofs of the alphabetical lists of students are not yet posted for correction," according to V. Royce West, Elmwood, '27, editor. These lists are ready to be set up with the exception of checking with organization membership lists. They will be in the hands of the printer by Monday.

Corrections on the actual proof can probably be made within the next week, it is announced. Definite announcement will be made at a later date in The Daily Nebraskan.

Following last year's plan, which resulted in one of the most accurate directories ever produced, each student will be asked to check his name for accuracy.

Listing of students by hometowns will be included this year. The copy for this section is being set now and will probably be the first portion of the book to be completed. The roster of faculty members is being prepared. Faculty members who have not yet listed their addresses and telephone numbers with the Registrar as requested are urged to do so at once, in order that this section of the book may be as accurate as other sections.

A new cover design will be adopted for this year's book. Scarlet and Cream will be the predominating colors, it is thought by those in charge. It is thought that the book will contain 20 pages this year.

Definite announcement of the date of issue cannot be made, but assurance is given that it will be available as soon as it can accurately be published.

STAGE MONSTER RALLY ON EVE OF HUSKY GAME

Expect Every Cornhusker to Attend First Pep Meeting of Season

START PROGRAM 7:15

Meet in Front of Administration Building before Parade to Lincoln Hotel

Every loyal Cornhusker rooter is expected to be present tonight at the first homecoming football rally of the season at 7:15 tonight in front of the Administration building. The rally will not interfere with plans for the evening. Five thousand students are expected.

Students will congregate in front of the Administration building where a stand is being erected for the speakers. Captain Ed Weir will introduce the Cornhusker football team to the students for the first time this year. A short program will be held on the campus.

The entire group will then march south on Twelfth street four abreast led by the University band and Varsity cheer leaders. At O street the parade will go west for three blocks and up Ninth street to the Lincoln hotel, where the Washington team will be staying. Each Washington player will be introduced by some member of their coaching staff from the hotel platform. The rally will be terminated with yells led by the Varsity cheer leaders.

Coach Bearg, when interviewed concerning the rally said, "I am heartily in accord with these rallies and hope every student will be there to yell as they never yelled before, and not quit until Saturday after the game. Few students realize the tremendous effect these rallies have in giving the team a fighting spirit. Nebraska has a reputation for supporting her team; let's keep up the reputation."

Captain Ed Weir said "The spirit for the football season will be determined by the way the first home rally goes. The way in which we get started will make a lot of difference. Don't forget that the spirit of the students is reflected in the performance of the team. This is going to be one of our very toughest games, and it can't be won by the eleven alone, the whole school must be fighting with them."

The Corn Cobs, the pep organization, will make a trip to very fraternity and sorority house on the campus with an orchestra in an endeavor to get the largest crowd in the history of the University to come to the rally. Tags bearing the slogan "Huskies Welcome Huskies" have been put on all the available cars, according to Robert Lang, the president of the Innocents, who is in charge of the rally.

Check Shows Thirty First-Year Men Are Without Green Caps

Strict enforcement of the wearing of the green caps by freshmen will go into effect immediately according to notice issued by the Iron Sphinx, sophomore honorary organization which has charge of the enforcement of the rule. It has been a custom for freshmen to wear green caps at Nebraska and those who insist on breaking the rule will be severely dealt with.

A check has been made on all of the freshmen and it has been found that about thirty yet have not purchased the green caps. These men will be given no more warning and when found without green caps will be dealt with accordingly. If a new student at the University does not have the necessary school and class spirit, means will be taken to imbibe some of the spirit into him.

Members of the department are Professor Hattie Plum Williams and Professor Hertzler who will speak on subjects related to other departmental work.

Chapters from his new book "First Principles of Economics" will be read on Friday at the same hour by Dean LeRossignol of the College of Business Administration. His lecture will continue until December 16.

Taking as his subject a different opera each time, Professor Paul Grummart of the College of Fine Arts will give a series of addresses on grand opera on Fridays at 8:05 o'clock.

Programs are being sent out from the University studio broadcasting over KFAB (304.8) every day at 9:30, 10:30, 1:00 and 3:00 o'clock.
