JOHN BROWN

That is a common name for an uncommon quarterback. "Jug" is a sophomore in school, but landed a regular berth on the Varsity immediately. He is one of the mainstays of the backfield. Brown's ability in running the team will be depended on in the two years which he has left.

He is adept in running back punts, provided he has a good field, which was demonstrated in the Kansas game, when he returned a punt fifty yards through the entire Kansas team for a touchdown. Brown is also a good passer, and in general a good heady quarterback.

He lives in Lincoln and is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

JOE WEIR

The brother of Captain Ed Weir, Joe plays an end in the first-string lineup. He has been a steady-going wingman throughout the season, and has another year left to don the Nebraska moleskins. Joe holds down his end in a superior manner, and next year should see him getting some recognition. Yes, he's from Superior.

WALTER SCHOLZ

There are 191 pounds of Walter Scholz in the guard position when the Husker team lines up, and that means something. Scholz is a second-year man, and was shifted to guard this year from his former position at tackle. He proved that he is equally effective near the center as on the outposts of the line. Scholz is from Osceola, and it is said that he is an excellent student as well as a football player. Fraternally, he is an Alpha Tau Omega.

JOE WOSTOUPAL

Wostoupal, center, is leaving Nebraska football after the game today. Joe has been alternate center this year, and during the last few games has been in play much of the time. His ability on the offense and defense both are recognized by Husker followers, and his loss, together with Hutchison, leaves what seems to be a dearth of pivot men for the 1926 squad.

Joe's home is at West Point and he belongs to Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Fourth Row: Shostak, Whitman, A. Mandery, Scholz, Pospisil, Rhoads, F. Rhoads, Fifth Row: Ernst, Mousel, Hull, McBride, McIntyre, Rhodes, K.

GEORGE SHANER

Shaner, a scrappy little end, got into a game and provoked notice on the part of the Husker coaches. And thereafter he was given plenty of chances. He is only a sophomore and should help to fortify the ends on next year's squad.

He belongs to Phi Gamma Delta and lives in North Platte.

AVARD MANDERY

One of the steady halfbacks this year is Avard Mandery. At plunging and running the ends he has proved his worth, and will be back again next year on the Varsity. Mandery also has an educated toe. Sometimes he punts, and he is an exceptional place-kicker. The weather this year has denied him a chance to exhibit this feature of his play.

When Choppy Rhodes is seen scooting through the line for twelve or fifteen yards you can be pretty sure that Mandery was the main gun in the interference that made that possible. He is from Tecumseh and is a member of Alpha Tau Omega.

CLARENCE RAISH

Raish is another sophomore who has filled a regular position on the Varsity squad this year. He plays guard and together with Walter Scholz and Harold Hutchison, has built a formidable wall at center. Raish weighs 210 pounds and has been in practically every game this season, going the full route in many cases. The lineman's job this year has been no small assignment, and Raish is one of those who have brought Nebraska's line to be called the "stone wall." Raish lives in Grand Island, and is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon.

ROBERT STEPHENS

Bob Stephens made his Husker debut only this fall, and his work at quarterback has made him conspicuous on the Nebraska squad. Stephens comes from Hastings College, so he had had but one year of Varsity competition left. As a left-handed passer, Stephens has been the occasion of many a tangle along the spine of Husker opponents this season, and next year should develop into a real threat for Nebraska. Whenever Coach Bearg needs a pass, and needs it bad, Stephens is sent in. He has been bothered by a leg injury this year which has kept him out of much competition. His home is in University Place. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

CAPT. ED WEIR

The name of Weir has been heard from one coast to another representative of Nebraska. Husker memory of how Weir, as captain in 1924, was chosen most unanimously as all-time at that position. It is generally believed that he will be chosen this year. If he isn't chosen, he knows that it is not due to slacking up on Ed's part. The Husker team has played well against Nebraska's opposition. The rival coaches was "Stop Ed." And he has been a marvellous season.

Weir undoubtedly is one of the greatest tackles in America. That honor has been accorded to him by many sport writers, and it is due for an all-American, according to the belief of Nebraska fans.

He started his football career at Superior, Nebraska, and it is this year. Today's game is the last for Nebraska.

Weir weighs 187 pounds and belongs to Acacia fraternity.

EVARD LEE

From Edgemont, S. D., a scrappy end, Evard Lee has grown more and more as he has progressed, and as he has years of competition, he will develop into a dependable player. Lee is a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

The

Ernest E. Bearg, Nebraska's mainstay, came to the Husker camp from training at Washburn College in Topeka. Leo Scherer is an end coach and positions this year has produced a new end.

Owen Frank is Bearg's right-hand man, but he is the main Nebraska coach, and is the best that has hit Nebraska.

LEON SPRAGUE

It was Leon Sprague, who, as a sophomore, stepped in and filled the regular position of end as a running mate to Joe Weir. Sprague played consistently during the first part of the season, and is still going strong. He will be back at Nebraska for two more years. "Lonnie" is a hard-luck man. In the Washington game he was across the goal-line with a pass in his mitts, but he dropped it, thus losing the chance to beat the Huskies. He has had several other strokes like that, but he is a scrapper all of the time. He lives in York and is a member of Delta Tau Delta.

DORSEY MCINTYRE

Another end. "Mac" comes from Lincoln high school, and still has two more years left in Varsity competition. He weighs 160 pounds, and he uses every pound of it when he is in the game. He is fast and should show up next year as a likely candidate for the end berth. He belongs to Sigma Phi Epsilon.

WILLARD DOVER

Dover plays at end position, also, and has another year of Varsity competition. The competition at the wings has been something fierce this year, but Dover has been carried as a reserve ready to step in and fill the place.

His home is in Madison and he belongs to Alpha Sigma Phi.

ARCHIE HECHT

One of the promising backs of the squad is Hecht, who is a sophomore and promises great things for the future. With PPresnell, Hecht is a driving back who is sure to win a name for himself in Husker football. His home is in Havelock and he belongs to Sigma Phi Epsilon.
