LEROSSIGNOL IS FORUM SPEAKER ON WEDNESDAY

"How Early Should Professional Training Begin?" Is Subject

DISCUSSES SPECIALIZING Urges Students to Remember That Cultural Education Is Not Entirely in College

Tracing the growth of professions from trades, Dean J. E. LeRossignol of the College of Business Administration declared that different professions require different periods of specialization and urged that it be remembered that cultural education is not contained entirely within college walls but must be carried on throughout life, keeping both practical and ideal points of view in mind, in his address on "How Early Should Professional Training Begin?" delivered before the World Forum at the Grand Hotel yesterday.

In view of the importance of Dean LeRossignol's subject, his address follows:

"Formerly there were but three vocations or occupations recognized as learned professions—theology, law and medicine—but in recent times a number of others have been, or are being recognized, such as engineering, military and naval science, literature, the fine arts, pedagogy, pharmacy, dentistry, forestry, agriculture, journalism, and business administration.

Professions Different Than Trade

"In looking into history of trades and professions, we find that a trade becomes a profession when it requires not only manual dexterity and mental alertness, but a large amount of theoretical or scientific knowledge as well. Then, too, professional people have, or are supposed to have, more culture, better social standing, and higher ideals than those who follow a trade or mechanical occupation.

"It is generally admitted nowadays that a student should have completed a high school course before beginning his professional studies, but as to the exact point at which his specialized training should begin there is much difference of opinion.

"It is a question of the proper balance between general and specialized training, both of which are desirable, if not essential, as well from the social as the individual point of view. A scholarly, cultured gentleman may be a better practitioner than a narrow, uncultivated specialist, and, surely, a better citizen, and better able to be, to parishioners, patients, clients or customers, a guide, philosopher and friend.

"In this connection I wish to say that our good physician, Dr. H. B. Lowry, was such a man as this: an ornament to his profession, a public spirited citizen, a valued friend, and one who, through the well-rounded development of all his powers, enjoyed a rich, full and happy life. And doubtless, there are in every profession such men as he, who represent in their own persons the ideal of professional excellence.

Can Lay Down No Set Rule

"And yet, when we consider the means by which such ends may be attained, no general rule can be laid down that will apply to all professions or all the members of any particular profession.

"In preparation for the church, a four years' college course followed by several years of divinity has long been thought highly desirable and yet very few, if any, denominations have been able to require so exacting a standard, lest there should be a dearth of clergymen and lest some exceptional men should be excluded.

"It is interesting to note that in former times, young theologues used to take Latin, Greek and Hebrew in college, as a sort of pre-divinity course, whereas nowadays they are usually advised to study the new humanities: history, political science, economics and sociology, as a better preparation for their vocation. In fact, the American college has always been more or less vocational, as it is today.

"In preparation for law a four year college course, with specialization in the social sciences, is said to be desirable for those who can afford it, but most law schools require only a five or six years' combined course in arts and law. Otherwise, there would be a scarcity of lawyers, legal fees would tend to be higher than they are, and law would become even more than now, a rich man's profession.

"Medicine is rich man's profession. Medicine is already, a rich man's profession. Many students now take

WILL ARRANGE FOR VALLEY SCHEDULES

Ruling of Conference Authorities Will be Asked on Weir's Trip To Pacific Coast

Arrangement of the Missouri Valley football, track, swimming and other schedules will be made at the conference meeting to be held Friday and Saturday at St. Louis, Nebraska will meet Ames, Drake, Kansas Aggies, Kansas and Missouri next year in Conference football games, but the dates are to be set at this meeting.

Acting Athletic Director Herb Gish, Coach Schulte, Prof. R. D. Scot and Coach Bearz will be representatives of Nebraska. Prof. Scott will specifically ask for a ruling by the conference authorities on the matter of Ed Weir's trip to the Pacific Coast. If that ruling is to the effect that the western trip will cast a stigma on Weir's amateur standing, it is his intention to stay at home.

It is probable that Ames will be played early in the season if such arrangements can be made and Missouri later in the season. The Aggie, Missouri, Drake and Ames games are to be played here. Notre Dame and Washington are also on the schedule.

The arrangements with Notre Dame have not been completed. The last contract made between the two schools called for one to be played at South Bend, one at Lincoln, and the other at a place to be decided upon, that is, either Lincoln or Notre Dame. The athletic authorities are also trying to get a game with some minor school as a rest-up game.

With Notre Dame and University of Washington of Seattle on the schedule the Cornhuskers will have two of the greatest teams in the country to battle against. Illinois will not play Nebraska the coming season. No representative of the Nebraska school was sent to the big ten meeting to try to tie up for any big ten games.

It is probable that Nebraska will make a strong bid for the Missouri valley outdoor track meet. No bid will be made for the indoor meet on account of the fact that the new field house will not be completed in time.

KFAB Honors Sister Station in Kansas

Station KFAB, broadcasting from the University studio, was silent last night in honor of the anniversary program broadcast by her "sister station," KSAC, at Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kans. The Nebraska studio gave up the right to broadcast that evening and listened to the inter-fraternity-sorority program given from station KSAC.

The program made up of songs by the various societies and speeches by the school officials, lasted until 2 o'clock in the morning. The Nebraska station sent a message to the Kansas department, praising the program as the best of the season.

Order Many Examination Books

Four hundred thousand examination books have been ordered by the Ohio State University in preparation for a siege of mid-term and final examinations. One-half of these are four-leaf and the other are six-leaf pamphlets. Two million sheets of paper are used every year by the University, and the approximate cost of the books is $2500.

Says Responsibility Cessant Change

The dean of college women at the University of California says that the wide range of activity and responsibility were the two reasons given for the great change between the college women of today and the college women of twenty-five years ago.

"The Year Without a Summer" Is Forecasted by Herbert J. Browne

"The Year Without a Summer" is the name given to the years of 1816-1817 in a bulletin published by Herbert Janvrin Browne entitled "Sun, Moon, Oceans and the Weather."

Extracts from the bulletin are contained in a special letter of Babson Reports for December as prepared at Babson Park, Mass., and received recently by the College of Business Administration. It is entirely outside our field, the effect of weather on business is of such importance that it cannot be ignored. We present it without prejudice and without endorsement.

According to the material published by Browne, Dr. R. E. Delury, assistant director of the Canadian Dominion observatory at Ottawa, is credited recently with a prediction that the world is about to enter upon a series of cold summers such as this portion of the earth has seldom known. His calculations are based on the recurring sun spot maximum due in 1927, and the historical evidence of the recurrence of cold dry years in tree rings.

Now comes the remarkable document presented to the French Academy of Sciences a few weeks ago by Dr. Bigourdan, communicating the discoveries of Abbe Gabriel, professor of mathematics in the University of Caen, Normandy. The Abbe announced that a cycle of 744 years has been proven to exist, made up of the conjunction of forty periods of the time it takes the lunar nodes to

Noted Peace Leaders Wire Congratulations On Big Meeting Here

Congratulations on the big meeting at St. Paul's M. E. church Wednesday, at which Raymond B. Fosdick, New York City, former under-secretary of the League of Nations, discussed the World Court before an audience of University students which packed the church, were telegraphed last night to Wendell Berge, Law '27, one of the members of the joint Y. W. C. A.-Y. M. C. A. committee which arranged the meeting, by members of the American Peace Award Foundation and representatives of other peace organizations.

The telegram: "We want to send our congratulations to the Lincoln committee on their very excellent program for the World Court meeting this morning. These meetings in Lincoln and in other cities are a splendid indication of interest in the Court. Your program is a real contribution to the attainment of our common purpose, which is the early adherence of the United States to the Court.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS MEET IN STADIUM

Lincoln and North Platte Squads Which Will Be on Almost Even Footing

When Lincoln and North Platte high school teams line up in Nebraska Memorial stadium Saturday to fight it out for the state high school football championship, the teams will be on practically an even footing.

Neither team has lost a game this season, and dispatches from North Platte say that the North Platte backfield is the best in the history of the school, outdoing anything that the team of 1921 did with Roland Locke at the helm.

Bob Raugh, left halfback on the Lincoln team, will be unable to take part in the championship game next Saturday, it was announced Monday, when he showed up for practice with a broken collar bone received in the Lincoln-Havelock game. He will be replaced by Kitchen, 130-pounder.

Lincoln will outweigh North Platte only two pounds to the man. North Platte has a heavier backfield, but Coach Browne's linemen will outweigh the visitors six pounds to a man.

All of the stadium will be used for the game, it was announced from the athletic office Saturday. No reserved seats will be sold; but general admission tickets will be on sale in a few days at $1 each.

Many Enroll For Extension Work

Tremendous increases in enrollment in the extension division of the University of California have been noted since the works inception of 1917. At that time there were only 1684 students, while enrollment for the present fall term has reached 15,701, showing an increase of more than 800 per cent.

DECEMBER 11 BANQUET DATE

Men to Gather at "Cornhusker Banquet," Honoring Football Team, Next Week

SELL TICKETS ON FRIDAY

The annual "Cornhusker Banquet" will be held December 11 at the Scottish Rite Temple. The ticket sale will probably start Friday. Men in the University will have one week in which to purchase their tickets.

Members of the football team will be the honor guests at the banquet, as usual. It is to celebrate victories and honor the members of the team that the banquet is held each year. The program will probably include moving pictures of one of the 1925 games, speeches by members of the team and coaches, and orchestra music. Letters have been sent to all old football men inviting them to return for the banquet.

Thirteen hundred Nebraska men attended the Cornhusker Banquet last year, which was perhaps the biggest attendance at such an affair in the history of the University.

Tickets will be sold at each fraternity house by special representatives. The committee in charge of the ticket sales is headed by Glenn Curtis and Clayton Goar. Although not yet officially announced it is expected that fraternities will be asked to close their tables the night of the banquet.

FOSDICK SPEAKS ON WORLD COURT AT CONVOCATION

Authority on International Relations Lectures at St. Paul Church

MANY IN ATTENDANCE

Says That the Court of International Justice Is Necessary for Progress

"We are all in the boat together, to sink or float," said Mr. Raymond B. Fosdick, authority on international relations, discussing the World Court problem before a capacity crowd at the St. Paul M. E. church, twelfth and M streets, at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

"The members of the human race find themselves living on each other's doorsteps. No Chinese wall can guard against economic changes," explained Mr. Fosdick.

"Look in the past to see the reason for our present conditions. Our parents lived in comparative isolation one hundred years ago. There were no such things as autos, radios, and railroads. The horse was the fastest means of locomotion. The world had existed in that state for the last 10,000 years, and up to the very time of our grand-parents.

Science Largely Responsible

"Then something happened. The revolution of modern science and mechanical invention has split the old established order into a thousand fragments. For this reason we can say that the human race stands at the cross-roads. Modern science is pushing us from behind and can not be long postponed. The question is whether we can realize it, and save this machine we call our civilization. Others have gone down before us—Italy and Greece are buried in the dirt. If King Tutankhamen of Egypt, has any message for us, it is the impermanence of public institutions.

"England is now going into her sixth winter of unemployment," continued the speaker, showing the present state of affairs. Why? Because Germany's purchasing power is paralyzed. England has goods on hand and Germany can not buy them, does this show a dependence of one nation on the other? America was affected in the same way in 1917 when the Polish markets dropped, banks failed, and manufacturing stopped. Great quantities of cotton remained unsold in southern United States. The men, women, and children of the South felt the same hard times that those of Poland were having to experience. There was only one reason—lack of cooperation.

World Court Means Progress

"We are now looking for a new approach; the old ones have broken down and the first step forward." It has been in existence three years, and originated in the United States, the nation that later rejected it. In two
