Gives Definition of "News"
An answer to the long-debated question of "what news is fit to print?" was given by John L. Myer, Milwaukee, editor of the National Printer-Journalist when he was initiated recently as an associate in Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity at the University of Wisconsin.

"Publish news which has originality," he advised. Then he dug up the definition of "originality" contained in Webster's dictionary.

Hold Spelling "Bee"

"Debauchee" was the word which incorrectly spelled brought defeat to the Oklahoma A. & M. spelling team in a "bee" held recently with the University of Oklahoma. It was the first affair of its kind that has ever been staged between Missouri Valley schools.

The contest was held in two divisions the first of which consisted of spelling a complete list of words and the second an old-fashioned spelling "bee." The University of Oklahoma team won the first division six to three, misspelling maneuver, stationer and adequately, while the Aggies misspelled possess, abridgement, alumnus, irresistibility, mustache, and acknowledgement.

Women Play Bridge

Sororities at Northwestern are playing a bridge tournament in which all of the sororities take part and the winner of which is given a silver cup by Shai-ai, the sorority council.

Dean Sherman Is Author Of New Textbook For Use In English

"How To Describe and Narrate Visually," a new textbook for secondary and freshmen college English, has been written recently by Dean L. A. Sherman, of the Graduate College and professor of English language and literature. It was published shortly after Christmas by the George H. Doran Company, New York City.

The book will be used by the extension department and for short story work. Copies of the book have been ordered by Prof. M. M. Fogg, director of the School of Journalism, as part of the journalism reading room which will have its new quarters in U Hall next semester.

An able critic best describes the context: "This book, with its suggestive descriptions, careful exercises, and excellent examples of the finest writing of great authors, is the fruit of Dr. Sherman's long and successful career as a teacher of English."

A simple yet scholarly book for the school or home—for anyone who wishes to develop ability to write forcefully and well.

As a class manual, it reflects the spirit of modern literature, and offers a means of fostering this spirit in the teaching of composition. Written for the senior high school work, students of any age can use it as a text book with the notes at the end. It contains 364 pages with a foreword and introduction. It is hoped that ultimately it will be used in high schools to better prepare the students for their college work.

JANUARY 23 IS PICTURE DEADLINE

Individual Pictures of Sorority and Fraternity Members May Still Be Taken

Saturday, January 23, is the last day on which individual pictures of members of sororities or fraternities will be accepted for the Cornhusker, says Donald F. Sampson, editor of the 1926 Cornhusker.

The Cornhusker management suggests that the president of each organization appoint one person to be in charge of having individual pictures taken. It would then be the duty of this person to notify each member of the organization that his picture must be taken before Saturday.

Pictures may be taken at Hauck's or at Townsend's. The price is $1.50 unless a print from last year is used. In the latter case the price is fifty cents.

New Field House Will Be Formally Dedicated Before Jayhawk Contest

Dedication exercises for the new Field House will be held before the Nebraska-Kansas basketball game on February 6, according to an announcement from the athletic authorities. This marks the first use of the structure that is to house both athletic and student activities in the future.

Because of the good weather conditions of the past week construction has been progressing rapidly and the building will be completely enclosed in the near future. It will not be used for social activities until next fall but can be made ready for some athletic use this spring.

February 6 will set a new standard for basketball games at Nebraska, it is hoped. In the old Armory there was only room for the student body, and many people interested in the games were turned away because of the crowds. The new structure will seat 8,500 spectators.

Used as an auditorium, the Field House will seat 11,000 persons, providing more room than has ever been had for University functions.

Three aisles lead to the orchestra pit, and easy entrance is afforded those at the sides of the hall by going around the concourse, where the arched openings every few yards allow access to the seats from both sides as well as the back. The balcony is available for use in connection with the auditorium as well as

HEAR CASTEEL AT VESPERS

"The Y. M. C. A. and Its Relations to the Student Movement" Is Subject

MOVEMENT IS EXPLAINED

"To create a better and fuller life is the aim of the Y. M. C. A. and the Youth Movement," stated John Casteel of Nebraska Wesleyan University in his talk on "The Y. M. C. A. and Its Relation to the Student Movement" at Vesper services on Tuesday at 5 o'clock in Ellen Smith Hall.

The services were led by Miss Rachel Parham and a piano solo was played by Miss Bernice Groenwald.

In Germany and France there is a very definite youth movement, youth revolting at the old customs of the country, said Mr. Casteel. In United States the students on the whole are very conservative. The young people of the United States accept the World War as an unfortunate cost while those of Germany and France revolt against the war and blame the elder generation.

"On the whole the youth of today does not know much about the problems of the world and does not wish to break from the church's ideas," affirmed the speaker, "and the purpose of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. is to link the young people and the churches of the United States together in friendliness."

The Youth Movement is radical in the true sense of the word in that it goes to the root of things that concern the three large problems of the day, war, race and industry. To establish a youth movement in the United States today there are two things that must be considered, first, more serious thinking and second conception of Christ as a teacher, social reformer or what?"

In closing the speaker urged that we give ourselves wholeheartedly to accomplishing our ideals with a definite picture of our conception of Christ.

Enrollment for the winter quarter at Oregon Agricultural College reached a total of 3011, according to reports just issued by that institution. This is considerable increase of the same registration of a year ago. There has been a considerable increase in the number of women students, the women comprising at this time slightly less than half of the registration.

Oklahoma University Bars Use Of Cars For Night Joy-riding

University of Oklahoma students are faced with the problem of finding a means of locomotion in which to do their joy-riding, for the university authorities have banished automobiles from the campus and decreed that the wheels shall turn no more.

One enterprising student brought an airplane to school and promptly captivated all of the campus queens, but he was soon brought up by the authorities and the airplane made to wend its weary way toward among the plaudits of the undergraduates.

May Adopt Baylor System

The Oklahomans now have under discussion the advisability of adopting the Baylor university method of evading the no-auto edict. Baylor is at Waco, Texas, and when the local faculty ruled that "There shall be no nocturnal automobile joyriding," gloom was cast upon the campus. But one night a creative genius brought an old-time means of locomotion known as the "horse-and-buggy" around to his "girl-friend's" door and from then on these horse-drawn vehicles formed a major part of the night traffic around Waco. It is claimed that the new system has advantages, for there is no danger of flat tires (speaking of buggies, not tires), and the responsibility of the driving is reduced to a minimum, so the Rudolphs can devote all of their time to their lady friends without parking.

Oklahoma students have broached the subject to the faculty, but the professors merely joked and would proffer no opinions on the proposition.

GIVE ENGINEERS UNIQUE PROBLEM

Must Make Plans On Methods Of Approach To Administration Building From South

Methods of an approach to the Administration building from the south were given to the engineers in the surveying course as a practical problem. Each student in the class submitted a drawing of the plan he considered best under the conditions as stated.

These conditions were to preserve an oak tree near the Administration building, to leave the hydrant undisturbed, and to take into account the new curb line that will result when R street is widened. The new line will be set in five feet from the present curb. The required width of the driveway was 18 feet.

The drawings show a great variety of ideas, some of them unique in shape, and many of simply the symmetrical curved line.

DEMING WILL ADDRESS FORUM

"Science and Progress" Is Subject of Talk To Be Given By the Chemistry Professor

Prof. H. G. Deming, of the department of chemistry, will discuss "Science and Progress" at the luncheon of the World Forum at the Grand Hotel at noon today. This is the second of a series of considerations of progress. The luncheon will begin promptly at twelve o'clock so that the speaker will have plenty of time to present his subject.

At the meeting the first week of the second semester Prof. Franklin D. Barker, professor of zoology, will speak on "Eugenics and Progress."

Students who are interested in the subject are urged to remain after the speaker's presentations of the subject and ask questions.

At the meeting last week Professor Hertzel outlined the various conceptions of the nature of progress and the things toward which he conceived men to be striving. A lively discussion followed his talk.

Frank Urges Courageous Loyalty To Fact In Journalism Address

Courageous loyalty to facts is the goal of journalism, President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, declared in a New Year greeting to journalists, made at the request of the Madison State Journal. His message follows:

"The new year finds journalism standing as always at the cross roads where the facts of life meet the opinions of men.

"It could not ask a more strategic position.

"Facts are the precious materials out of which men fashion the policies that guide their personal and public affairs; and journalism is charged with the high business of discovering and disseminating facts.

"It is public opinion power.

"Its power in the field of opinion is finally determined by its accuracy in the field of facts.

"This does not mean that journalism is a cold and commercial business of merchandising facts alone; we want our journalists to have the courage of the crusader, but we want it to be a courage born of a confident mastery of the facts. The great Pulitzer used to say that 'accuracy is to a newspaper what virtue is to a woman.'

"At a Milwaukee luncheon table a few weeks ago I was making a plea for realism as the ultimate goal of all our conservatism, liberalism and

GREEK RIFLERS TURN IN SCORE

Phi Delta Theta Is First Team To Finish Shooting In Rifle Tourney

ELEVEN TEAMS ENTERED

Phi Delta Theta is the first fraternity to finish shooting in the annual Greek rifle tournament. Ten other fraternities have entered teams and completed part of the required shooting. Captain Eggers is withholding publication of the results until the last team shoots Friday afternoon.

Fraternities which have not entered teams may still do so. The team must consist of five men. All of the scores will be counted. The gallery is open morning and afternoon.

Two teams are entered in the non-fraternity tournament which is being run along with the other tourney. Some good scores have been made by these teams. If there is a finish shoot between the winners of the two tournaments, the rifle fans will witness a close and interesting match. The match would probably arouse more interest than an intercollegiate shoot with some far distant school, as the team members will be able to fire against each other just as bowling teams play in adjacent alleys.

The intercollegiate season will start with the new semester. Coach Eggers is hoping to possibly uncover a dark horse among the participants in the two tourneys. Even if no new material is found, there are enough veterans aspiring for places on the team to make Nebraska a dangerous opponent for any team on the schedule.

Nu Med Society Will Meet Thursday

The regular meeting of the Nu Med society will take place at 6:30 at the Grand Hotel, Thursday, January 21. The speaker of the evening will be Dr. James M. Patton, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist of Omaha, who will address the meeting on the subject, "The Specialist." New members of Theta Nu, honorary scholastic group of Nu Meds, will be tapped the same evening. The second number of the newly installed paper, "Theta Nu's", will appear.

Tracksters Prepare For Invitation Meet

Track candidates on the Husker squad are working hard in preparation for the Kansas City Invitation meet which will be held in Convention Hall in the near future. Nebraska entries have always made good showings and Coach Schulte believes this year will be no exception. With such well known cinder artists as Locke and Weir as a nucleus the Huskers should place well up in several events. The distance men are showing up well also and Nebraska should win points in the mile and half mile.

HUSKERS MEET AMES QUINTET HERE SATURDAY

Iowa Five Presents One of Valley's Best Scorers in Elliott

HAVE DEFEATED TIGERS

Bearg Is Working on Offensive Department to Strengthen Nebraska Team

The Iowa State basketball quintet will invade Lincoln Saturday night to tangle with the Nebraska Cornhuskers on the Armory court. This will be the second Valley game for the Huskers this year. Iowa State, sometimes known as the Ames Aggies, has played three conference games to date, winning one and dropping two.

Ames dropped a close game to Drake in an initial appearance this year and then kicked away their second game a few nights later in St. Louis to Washington. However, the boys from the Hawkeye state got revenge at Missouri, defeating the Tigers by a one point margin when Kling shot a basket with ten seconds to go.

Although a tie for seventh place in the conference standings, Ames boasts of one of the leading scorers and one of the best all-around players in the Valley. Elliott, ace of the former quintet, is in second place in the individual scoring column being passed only by Seago of Washington, who has played in one more game than the Ames star. Iowa State is a threat to any team in the conference with Elliott in the lineup.

Coach Bearg's squad is undergoing a series of stiff workouts this week in order to have it in the best of shape for the coming encounter. While the Nebraska defense worked in smooth fashion in the Grinnell game last Saturday, considerable improvement can be made in the offensive play. This week's practice will be given over largely to further development of these tactics.

A changed line-up will probably greet the Husker fans when the two teams enter Saturday night's fray. Just what the change will be is not definitely known, but Coach Bearg may decide to use Elliott at center, and either Presnell, Anderson or Beerkle at Elliott's forward.
