FEBRUARY ISSUE OF COUNTRYMAN IS OUT

Publication is Made Up of Articles Written by Students of The Ag College

The February edition of the Cornhusker Countryman, appeared on Saturday containing several articles written by students in the College of Agriculture.

Robert Bushnell, '26, is the author of one of the feature articles which concerns the Nebraska Dairy Development Society of which Carl R. Gray, Omaha, is president. A brief history of the organization, with particular emphasis upon its practical program of service in spreading information which "will encourage the dairy industry where there is need and opportunity for it" is given.

"The Home Library," written by Arthur Hanks, '28, presents ideas for reading matter for the farm family. This one in particular should be of real interest to those parents who wish to provide their families with good literature.

Professor R. W. Samson of the Plant Pathology department has written another of the Countryman's articles. This one deals with the solving of potato degeneration problems as studied by a conference of pathologists who met at the Nebraska College of Agriculture on December 28, 1925.

An editorial in the Countryman encourages students in the College of Agriculture to write for the publication.

In the opinion of Mr. Gray it is the most beautiful of instruments.

HUSKERS LEAVE FOR MANHATTAN

Basketball Team, Smarting from Kansas Defeat, Meets Aggies Tonight

CREIGHTON HERE NEXT

The Nebraska basketball team, smarting from its first defeat in the conference, leaves this morning for Manhattan, Kansas, where they are scheduled to battle the Kansas Aggies tonight. This will make two games for Coach Boary's tossers this week, as Creighton University plays a return game in the Field House Saturday night.

Although the Nebraska quintet has a higher standing in the Valley than does the Kaggies, the game will be hard fought. The Manhattan farmers have victories over many of the fastest teams in the Middle-West this season.

One of the most notable wins on the Aggies schedule is the defeat that they handed to Washington University last week. It will be remembered that Washington is one of the two teams in the conference that has defeated Kansas, the team which put the skids under Nebraska Saturday night.

AWGWAN DRIVE TO BE CONTINUED

Subscription Campaign for the Remaining Numbers Will End Wednesday

SPECIAL RATE OFFERED

The campaign for Awgwan subscriptions for the remaining numbers, which was begun Monday, will be continued today and Wednesday. Headquarters are in the College Book Store.

A special rate of fifty cents for the four numbers, which are yet to be issued this year, has attracted many new subscribers. For one dollar the four back copies and the future issues will be mailed to any address.

Awgwan editors believe that it was the success of the January issue, the burlesque number, that has materially boosted the subscription list of the magazine. The comic publication slipped somewhat last year, but has grown in student favor again.

Merle Jones, business manager, says the staff is hard at work on the next issue and that it will be one of the best of the year.

COLLINS LECTURES AT MUSEUM SUNDAY

Address on "The Smithsonian Institute" Gives Historical Background and Development

"For the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men," was frequently quoted in a lecture on "The Smithsonian Institute" given by Frederick G. Collins, preparator for the Museum, Sunday afternoon.

This is a part of the brief sentence in the will of James Smithson, which made possible the establishment of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C., an institution which has always adhered to its original purpose of increasing and spreading knowledge.

"Weather warnings were first issued by this institution, but were later given over to the Department of Agriculture," said Mr. Collins, showing that the institution has always been devoted principally to helping study and research on new lines, it never carries on activities which could be done as well, or better, elsewhere, a custom which was established by Professor Joseph Henry, the first secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

Some of the historical and romantic background of Smithson and the Smithsonian foundation were described by Mr. Collins, and was illustrated with slides. Particular emphasis was placed upon the unique relation of this background to the present day institution.

STUDENTS URGED TO BUY TICKETS EARLY

Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. C. A. Committee Wants Estimate of Attendance at World Forum

Students who plan to attend the World Forum luncheon at the Grand hotel Wednesday noon, at which Dr. Franklin D. Barker, of the department of Zoology, will discuss "Eugenics and Progress," are urged by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. committee in charge to secure their tickets before six o'clock this evening, because it is important that the committee have an accurate estimate of the number of students who wish to attend.

Tickets may be secured at the University Y. M. C. A. office in the Temple or at Ellen Smith Hall, where the Y. W. C. A. has offices. The price of tickets is twenty-five cents.

Scientists today agree that eugenics is to be a factor of growing importance in the betterment of race and of society. The discussion by Dr. Barker is third of a Forum series on the general subject of progress.

STUDENT GROUP TO STUDY ARTS COLLEGE WORK

All Interested Upperclassmen Are Invited to First Meeting Today

FACULTY APPROVES PLAN

Dean James Encourages Small Group to Organize and Make Thorough Study

Juniors and seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences who are interested in discussing the aims and the methods of that college will meet today in the student pastor's room, first floor of The Temple, at 4:30 o'clock. All Arts college upperclassmen are invited to share in an open forum discussion regarding the merits of the college. This action comes as the result of unofficial indication by a group of the faculty that they would be glad to hear the result of the student discussion.

Dean James and the members of the Arts faculty have held informal meetings frequently during the past semester. Discussion has been directed toward an evaluation of the work of the Arts college with the idea of possible improvement. A number of students have also been interested in a survey of the work of the Arts college and some of its courses. A group of students sent to the faculty a letter expressing student interest and a desire to register student opinion.

Faculty Welcomes Discussion

In a letter to the students, the faculty group stated that it would welcome action by a student committee of some sort. Today's meeting will be an attempt to get a representative gathering of interested students with the idea of starting discussions or forming an undergraduate committee to study the situation.

Because the faculty expressed the desire that student activity should generate itself from within the student body, the meeting this afternoon will be only of students. If sufficient interest is evidenced, it is likely that some sort of committee will be formed to hold regular forums and prepare a report for the Dean and the faculty group.

Is Not New Idea

The idea of an undergraduate committee to criticize the college is not new. According to recent reports, several attempts have been made in such schools as Harvard, Dartmouth, Cornell, and others. At Harvard and Cornell the student paper contained articles expressing student opinion of various courses in the curriculum. At Dartmouth, by invitation of President Hopkins, twelve seniors prepared a report containing a statement of purpose for the college, a proposed curriculum, and statements of the function of the faculty, the introduction of honor courses, methods of admitting students, as well as ways of grading and awarding degrees.

There has been no extensive treatment of the aims, methods, and the functions of the Arts College in a state university. Some students who have been interested in the local situation think such treatment desirable.

The hope has been expressed that all students who may be interested in criticizing the Arts College, or its courses, will come to the meeting today. While no special inducements in the way of credit or publicity are being offered, there is some indication that a report, if made, will be given careful consideration by a large group of the faculty and by The Daily Nebraskan.

Seven New Buildings

The College of Medicine at the University of Minnesota soon will have seven new buildings. This construction program will involve about $2,800,000, $1,500,000 of which has been given by individual friends of the university, the rest having been appropriated by the state.

WEATHER FORECAST

Tuesday: Generally fair; somewhat colder.

Weather Conditions

Warm weather for the season prevails in all parts of the country except the lower Lake region and the New England states, where it is moderately cold. Rain has fallen on the north Pacific coast, and light snow in Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, and the Lake region. Elsewhere the weather is fair. Pressure rising over the northern Mountain region, and somewhat colder but still moderate weather is expected to result in Nebraska.

Many Colleges Ban the Charleston As Frail Buildings Near Collapse

(New Student News Service)
The Charleston menace is now stalking the American colleges, according to news reports from all parts of the country. If these stories are credible the present rage will leave in its path a heap of ruined buildings unequalled in extent in this country since Sherman's memorable march.

Here and there authorities have enacted restrictive legislation. At the University of Indiana the board of trustees prohibited the dance in the Student Building in order to forestall its collapse. An investigation is now under way to determine its effect upon the men's gymnasium, where it is still permissible to execute the violent dance. Should this floor give away, total and wholesale immersion of the heated dancers would follow in the swimming pool below.

"After all," reasoned the author-
