AN OFFICIAL BULLETIN

The Daily Nebraskan purposes, beginning with its Thursday issue, to include in its columns an official bulletin for notices from university authorities to members of the faculty and from members of the faculty to students.

The object of The Nebraskan in this innovation is to render a more effective service to the faculty and student body. With this system, many notices that are now scattered on bulletin boards over the campus or sent through the mails will be eliminated.

The official communications of the University will be brought together in a systematic and compact form. Not only will this be more satisfactory to all concerned, but it is thought that considerable expense will be saved the University in the elimination of the old system.

Most universities have some such department in the student newspaper. The Minnesota Daily carries each day a long list of notices, which tell of registration rules, special examinations, entrance examinations, special lectures, concerts, class changes, openings for scholarships, program corrections, absences of instructors, requirements for physical education, and many other things too numerous to be listed here.

All students and faculty members are responsible for what appears in this column and it is one of the most read and most important departments in the paper. The Nebraskan hopes to make its official daily bulletin as important and efficient. It therefore invites the cooperation of all faculty members, for without this it cannot succeed.

THE AMENDMENT

An amendment to the constitution of the Inter-Fraternity Council, which provides for the establishing of an executive board to enforce rules, was introduced at the meeting of the Council Sunday. The six members of the board are to be alumni who have been out of school at least five years, and they are to be selected by a vote of the council after the nominations have been made by a committee of three.

The new plan, which will considerably change the functioning of the Council and make it practically a legislative body, is really of tremendous importance to fraternity men. The plan, we think, is an excellent one and seems to be the only method by which the Council can be made efficient. In the past the Council has solemnly passed rules and promptly forgotten them, chiefly because there was no machinery for the punishment of the offenders.

Under this plan the rules the Council passes will be very much alive and the fraternities will be required to observe them. There were a number of points raised at the meeting that are of interest. Some members feared that the executive council, composed entirely of alumni, might drift too far from the student's viewpoint.

The reply to this was that the committee was chiefly a court, and that active punitive action against their own or other fraternities embarrassing. Another had to do with the nomination of committee members. The members, according to the amendment, are to be nominated by a committee of three to be composed of the chairman (a faculty member), the vice chairman (an alumni representative), and an active member.

The Nebraskan would welcome discussion on any point which may be of interest and believes that the while matter is of sufficient importance to warrant considerable thought.

The amendment, as it is presented, seems to us to be all that could be asked. It will offer a means of enforcing rushing rules, the limitation of probation weeks, and other things sorely needed by fraternities if they are to withstand the criticism that is now impending. It will give the Council its first businesslike government.

At the next meeting, after the chapters have expressed their opinions, the members of the Council will vote on the amendment. The Nebraskan hopes the amendment will be passed unanimously.

THE PURPOSE

One of the most encouraging tendencies to be seen in college circles is the increasing desire of students to inquire into the purpose of their college training and study the objects of the various courses. When Albert Britt, former New York magazine editor, chose as the subject for his inaugural address as president of Knox College, "What is the good of a college education?" he had one of the liveliest and most interesting subjects in the educational world.

President Britt pointed out that the primary aim of a cultural college should be to enable human beings to live interestingly, lively, usefully, on the highest plane of which they are capable. An institution which successfully attains these goals serves the needs of the age, and its continuance is worth striving for in face of growing commercialism as advanced by vocational institutions. Speaking of the relation between the cultural and the vocational schools, he declared: "The fields of the two are separate; to learn to make a living or to learn to live expresses the difference between them. Rightly applied there is no conflict."

Instead of highly specialized experts in one particular field, the new Knox president thinks it is the function of the cultural college to turn out graduates in every line of thought. Carrying out this idea he would eliminate over emphasis on departments and break down the partitions separating one course from another. The value of a course, he believes, is not how many experts it can turn out, but how wide a knowledge it can impart.

AN EARLY SPRING

The sporting writers report that spring football practice has already started at the University of Illinois. The squad is said to be working already on a basis of one hour of theoretical instruction a week and two hours of indoor practice.

The early start is said to be necessary because conference football authorities have decided that the new agreement of Big Ten coaches limiting the actual time of practice to an hour and a half during the football season as well as eliminating the evening skull practice. It won't be long until all the Big Ten schools will have spring practice under way, the reporters say.

This attempt to evade a rule limiting the time that can be devoted to football should be frowned upon by all college authorities. The need of a limit of some kind is so great that proper enforcement of such rules is imperative. If no such limitation on the amount of time devoted to football can be successfully imposed, the humorists' description of the modern college will soon be more truth than fun. Few really intelligent students will care to play football if its demands become so heavy that scholastic work must be slightly any more slightly than is now necessary.

OUR STORY

The rent-a-Ford combination came out of their cavern of silence Sunday, and finding the sunshine deliciously warm, decided that the student body should receive tidings which would clear the darkness away from the campus and allow the light of understanding to penetrate. They, therefore, concocted a sweet story, which told of the unnecessary publicity we had given an action which was not intended to increase our expenses, and which was not, in effect, an increase in rates. We suppose they must have emphasized that term "IN EFFECT."

In retort it suffices to say that we are the individuals who are paying for the rental of cars, being on the demand end, and we would certainly notice a decidedly greater hole in our pocketbooks were we to rent cars according to the new rates. We wish to say also that the rent-a-Ford combination has failed to penetrate the problem as far as we have. Our social system, because it is one of individual groups, and because it has grown away from the old system in which parties were splendid, jovial affairs, by which acquaintanceship was made a more glorious thing in the realm of student life; because of this it has been laughed at by city people. We are conscious of the fact and we are absolutely ready to take a step right now in the direction of setting the thing on a real basis.

Every student in the university of Nebraska is anxious to get back to the old conditions as far as our social development is concerned. We are not the foolish, unsound, non-thinking individuals that a great share of the elderly world declare us to be. We want the congeniality of democratic friendship, we wish to see the social horizon around the university just as colorful as the clean bouyancy of youth can make it. We came down to this democratic school for two things; to discipline our minds with the intention of enlarging our while vision of life and to develop our personality and character. Every man and girl in this university has the right to the opportunity for self-development. They have the right to protest if, in a democratic institution, the expense of the social system has become so great that they can no longer indulge in the things which make for development. And they have the right to ask that the system be changed, and to change it if they will.

That is a part of our story. We want to make our social life one which is attractive to every fellow and girl and to you, Rent-a-Ford combination, who has made this impossible by your late action, we send our message. Dating in your cars, we have tended to isolate ourselves in groups at parties. We are now going back to the good old times when most everyone was glad to restrain clamminess and make the party a jolly success; we are going back to the time when people used to know each other in this university well enough to call a great number of fellows and girls "friends." That's our program and part of it is WALKING. Can you deny that it is all right. E. F. D.

Free Lessons in the Charleston at the Lyric this week!

Here's a chance to perfect your knowledge of the agile-kneed dance! Remember the time and place—Tuesday and Thursday at noon at the Lyric. No less a personage than the "Queen of the Charleston" herself, Miss Mildred Melrose, will give the instructions, so come one, come all. You'll enjoy seeing Miss Melrose on the stage at the Lyric this week, too, and the amateur Charleston contest which will be held every night at 7:00 and 9:00. See also at the Lyric, the romantic story "Steel Preferred," which will cause many a merry ha-ha.

The Modern Cleaners will help you be ready!

ready for spring, glorious spring,—the season of perking up sartorially! Perhaps you have a last season's coat that looks a bit forlorn. Send it to Soukup & Westover's, and you'll probably decide that a new one isn't necessary. It will surprise you—that scientific cleaning and pressing process of theirs—whereby colors are brightened as if by magic, fabrics seem renewed, and shapeliness is restored. Call them now at F 2377, if you would be all dressed up for spring, at the cost of a small dry cleaning bill!

Dollar Day Bargains await you at Gold's!

no matter what you need or want, you'll probably find it for a dollar at Gold's! Think of being able to buy a large console mirror with polychrome frame for just one dollar; imagine a new spring hat for a dollar, or twelve pure linen handkerchiefs. OF COURSE, those of you who are interested in larger and better bank accounts, will hurry right down to Gold's! You'll find dainty underthings at $1 and 2 for $1; neckwear, handmade laces, doll cushions, telephone concealors and boudoir lamps waiting to be all dressed up with a few scraps of lace and silk; and much else at $1!

"It's a puzzle from the neck up," says Mr. Champel —or at least it's going to be when the new order of things in feminine bobbery is more firmly established! Above the coat collar, it will be hard to tell whether it's James' or Minnie's for Min has stolen Jim's stuff in the way of haircuts. Says Mr. Champel of the Champe Beauty parlor in the Lincoln Theater Building, "In general, fashionable bobs for spring will be short and mannish, with ears in evidence. If however, the aural apparatus is more useful than ornamental, a longer bob, permanently waved, is equally as stylish, and far wiser." N. B. Mr. Champel gives a marvelous permanent for only $7.50.

Beautiful your room by shopping at George Brothers!

—here you will find things that will not only make living pleasanter during your college days, but that are worthy of a permanent place in your after-Nebraska scheme of existence. There are cunning little bookshelves that will hold anything from a set of Kipling to the remains of the box of cookies from home. Unusual table runners, perfume burners and pictures, too, at George Brothers—including three brand new studios from Maxfield Parrish. You'll find everything a bit out-of-the-ordinary at this lovely gift shop, even unto St. Patrick day greetings, and cards for every day occasions.
