

DELICIOUS SANDWICHES, SOUPS—HOT DRINKS Ledwich's Tasty Shoppe

Rialto Theatre ALL THIS WEEK Johnny Hines in RAINBOW RILEY

ORPHEUM 4 Days Only—4 THE CAVE MAN

Orpheum MAR. 12-13 MR. WALKER WHITESIDE

COLONIAL ALL THIS WEEK STRONGHEART

LYRIC ALL THIS WEEK The Million Dollar Handicap

ON THE STAGE THREE MELODY GIRLS

Lincoln Theatre THIS WEEK MARSHALL NEILAN'S MIKE

VAUDEVILLE WHERE EVERYBODY GOES ALL THIS WEEK Peggy

Stories of Indian Life Revealed

(Continued From Page One) sometimes even more. It is, in general appearance, like a magnified interest and curiosity.

The Otee Burial In speaking of the Otees, who then lived on the Blue River in Gage county, these inspectors say "We visited their graveyards. They placed some of the boxes containing the dead in a tree, so that the spirit of the departed can see around the big prairie to the Blue River."

Further on concerning the Omahas: "These Indians are very fine, noble looking men, very intelligent, and mild countenanced and mannered. They smoked most of the time. Many of their tomahawks are constructed with hollow bolls and handle, to form a pipe, and they use them as such, passing them around indifferently. The bark they smoke is from a kind of willow, and they call it 'Rin-ni-ri-nie,' and some times or perhaps always when they have any, mix it with tobacco. The bark smoke is very fragrant, and much less unpleasant and irritating than that of tobacco."

Lectures to Chemical Society M. G. Vail, secretary and chemical director of the Philadelphia Quartz company, gave an illustrated lecture on "The Colloidal Properties of Silicate Solutions," Thursday, March 4, at a meeting of the Nebraska section of the American Chemical society.

Discuss "Bituminous Pavements" Mr. A. A. Walther, representative of Warren Brothers, manufacturers of bituminous products in Boston, will give an address on "Bituminous Pavements" before the A. S. C. E. group in the Mechanic Arts 206, on Friday, March 12, at 10 o'clock.

Gets Many Calls For Teachers This is a busy season for the Bureau of Recommendation of Teachers. More calls are being received for teachers next year than there are applicants to fill them, says Director R. D. Moritz.

No Rules For Behavior "No definite rules should be set down for behavior, either in colleges or in society, as behavior is a personal concern only," said Miss Ruth Hale, president of the Lucy Stone League of New York.

Splendid Shows Will Greet Visitors of the State Basketball Tournament This Week

Manager Garman has booked an excellent list of attractions for the visitors of the Nebraska State High School Basketball Tournament. At the Orpheum Friday, Saturday and Saturday matinee, the distinguished actor, Mr. Walker Whiteside, will appear in his latest success, "The Arabian." The first four days of the week at the Orpheum bewitching Marie Provost and Matt Moore will be seen in a rollicking comedy-drama, "The Cave Man."

Undergraduates Traveling Abroad To Have European Student Guides

Undergraduates who contemplate a trip abroad next summer will for the first time be offered the opportunity to travel in parties for which European students will act as hosts and guides, under a new system of tours, conducted under the joint auspices of the undergraduates of America and Europe.

American arrangements for the tours are going forward under the direction of the National Student Federation of America and an advisory committee headed by Dr. Stephen Duggan, president of the International Institute of Education, and including a number of college presidents and internationally known figures. In Europe the tours will be in the hands of the Confederation Internationale des Etudiants, while John Rothschild, president of the "Open Road," will act as the agent of all three bodies in caring for accommodations and determining itineraries.

Twelve Routes Offered Parties of twelve or fourteen students will travel under the direction of a leader carefully picked by the administration. A choice of twelve routes is offered, each to consume roughly three months and to cost between $500 and $700. Trips cover England, France, Germany, northern Italy, Austria, and the Balkans, having as a universal feature a stay of some time at the student camp in Geneva, to give the members of the tour

College Press

THE HIGH COST OF EDUCATION (Daily Palo Alto)

Under the headline "College Wasters and Extravagant Fathers," George Wheeler Hinman, financial expert of the Hearst newspaper syndicate, recently discussed his views on the extravagance of the American college personnel. The article went further than showing waste within the college, however, for it attempted to paint the results of such waste upon the years following graduation.

It may have been Mr. Hinman's intention to place the blame on the father's of the nation for the waste of their sons, but he did not accomplish this result. Instead, one is left with the impression that it is the college itself which causes the waste, that conditions within it tend naturally to make wasters of students. Perhaps Mr. Hinman unconsciously felt this tendency did exist.

Ordinarily we would have passed such arguments by, classing them as "the other side of the question," feeling that enough space has been given in the past few years to the value of colleges to the nation. But the answer that Dr. David Starr Jordan gave the other day to the question propounded him, "Does college do a boy any good?" inspired a desire to apply it to Mr. Hinman's argument. Dr. Jordan replied to his questioner in five words of wisdom, "That depends upon the boy."

Mr. Hinman himself says that he has no intention of representing the majority of college students as extravagant; but to lay the blame upon the institution for the waste of the minority is to lose sight of the cause. It lies in the boy, as Dr. Jordan has suggested. It has never been claimed for the college that character, including thrift, can be made with the aid of the text-book. Association and a natural intuition develop it and if waste and extravagance are shown while in college, it is rather the fault of indulgent fathers and inherited characteristics than any destructive habits fastened upon the boy by the college itself. The father in Mr. Hinman's article who allowed his three sons $3,500 each per year upon his $20,000 income was himself to blame for his inability to breathe as the author put it. One feels safe in saying that less than one-half that amount is the average spent in western universities.

Given an amount for one year equal to double the living-wage of thousands of workers, is it strange that the three sons made breathing hard for the father. For one plentiful

Teach Correct Posture In Physical Education and Add Inches to Height

As much as one inch already has been added to the height of some of the men students at Boston University who are learning how to grow tall under the direction of Dr. George B. Emerson, head of the department of physical education, who is in charge of this latest art of calisthenics.

"The secret is in correct posture," explained Dr. Emerson. "Besides keeping the individual from achieving his normal height, habitual incorrect posture resulted in displacement of internal organs, interference with their functions, and resulting alterations in personal appearance, especially cast of countenance and impairment of health."

"If you want to be healthy, stand up straight," he instructs his students, "if you want to be intelligent and look it, stand up straight; and if you want to be happy and make a success of life, stand up straight. There is always a feeling of independence and capability associated with correct posture, when, for instance, the waistline is at least three inches less than the chest measurement." "Lack of ambition, yawning, stretching, irritability, all of which are portrayed in facial expression, are often associated with retarded function of the vital organs," Dr. Emerson pointed out in illustrating the evils of improper posture during class recitations.

"Improper posture will reduce normal height from one to three inches. Such loss of height is regained by a series of exercises. When normal posture is secured another series of exercises is used to maintain the correct posture until gradually it maintains itself."

The main idea of the course, Dr. Emerson says, is not to produce a race of giants, but merely to improve students' health. The course in posture is only one of a group of new courses in physical education at the university. A minimum amount of physical training is required and a program of exercise designed to fit the individual needs is outlined for each student.

BIG TEN STARS IN EVANSTON MEET

Sixteenth Annual Track and Field Games at Northwestern Expected To Be Big Success

EVANSTON, Ill., March 8.—Many of America's foremost track stars, both past and present, will help make the Sixteenth Annual Track and Field games at Patten gymnasium Friday and Saturday nights, a big success. They have been selected by a conference committee to act as officials.

Robert A. Gardner, captain of the American Walker golf team, which will invade England soon, and himself the former world's pole-vault champion, will act as referee. Gardner is perhaps the foremost amateur athlete in the country today and his presence will add much to the big track classic.

Programs—Menus Neatly and Correctly produced by Graves—Fraternity and Sorority Crests for your Approval

Graves Printing Co. 3 Doors South of Temple 312 N. 12th Street

Knut K. Rockne, the Notre Dame grid wizard, and J. B. Hawley, the hero of Dartmouth football, will be very much in evidence in their capacity as finish judges. Other judges of the finish are E. C. Delaporte, director of physical education in Chicago high schools.

In the pole-vault there will be several former stars to help judge this event. Frank Foss, former world champ before the rise of Charley Hoff, and Royal Rouscher, present Conference outdoor champ, will be on hand. James Braden, one of Yale's great grid and track stars, will be one of the judges of the shot-put.

Morgan Taylor, the sensational track performer for the Illinois Athletic Club of Chicago, will be an inspector at the meet. Whitney Hagen, former conference 440 champion, will assist Charles Carroll, who has the difficult job of Clerk of Course.

Then, last but in no manner the least, will be Ted Canty, as announcer. No track meet would be complete without the scintillating voice of this greatest of announcers. Canty is a fixture at the indoor conference meets and he always adds much with his great fund of humor.

"The Million Dollar Handicap" and The Melody Girls At The Lyric Theater

The thud of hoofs, the wild shouts of applauding crowds! Amid thunderous cheers she rides to glorious victory. The most splendid story of the turf ever seen on the screen. "The Million Dollar Handicap" with Vera Reynolds, Edmund Burns, and Ralph Lewis, is a picture that will thrill and enthrall you. "A Bankrupt Honeymoon," a continuous roar of laughter; visualized news, and on the stage The Three Melody Girls, three dainty misses, exquisitely gowned in an offering of harmony and solo numbers. A brilliant musical program will be rendered by Ernest Harrison's Lyric Orchestra and Mrs. May M. Mills, organist. Adv

SPOTLESS CLEANERS (Harry Gurling, Prop.) Top Coats, plain wool dresses, 2-piece suits $1.00 We Call For and Deliver. We Guarantee Our Work. B4459 2401 J St.

EAT AT Commercial Lunch 1238 "O" St. Under New Management

College Press

THE HIGH COST OF EDUCATION (Daily Palo Alto)

Under the headline "College Wasters and Extravagant Fathers," George Wheeler Hinman, financial expert of the Hearst newspaper syndicate, recently discussed his views on the extravagance of the American college personnel. The article went further than showing waste within the college, however, for it attempted to paint the results of such waste upon the years following graduation.

It may have been Mr. Hinman's intention to place the blame on the father's of the nation for the waste of their sons, but he did not accomplish this result. Instead, one is left with the impression that it is the college itself which causes the waste, that conditions within it tend naturally to make wasters of students. Perhaps Mr. Hinman unconsciously felt this tendency did exist.

Ordinarily we would have passed such arguments by, classing them as "the other side of the question," feeling that enough space has been given in the past few years to the value of colleges to the nation. But the answer that Dr. David Starr Jordan gave the other day to the question propounded him, "Does college do a boy any good?" inspired a desire to apply it to Mr. Hinman's argument. Dr. Jordan replied to his questioner in five words of wisdom, "That depends upon the boy."

Mr. Hinman himself says that he has no intention of representing the majority of college students as extravagant; but to lay the blame upon the institution for the waste of the minority is to lose sight of the cause. It lies in the boy, as Dr. Jordan has suggested. It has never been claimed for the college that character, including thrift, can be made with the aid of the text-book. Association and a natural intuition develop it and if waste and extravagance are shown while in college, it is rather the fault of indulgent fathers and inherited characteristics than any destructive habits fastened upon the boy by the college itself. The father in Mr. Hinman's article who allowed his three sons $3,500 each per year upon his $20,000 income was himself to blame for his inability to breathe as the author put it. One feels safe in saying that less than one-half that amount is the average spent in western universities.

Given an amount for one year equal to double the living-wage of thousands of workers, is it strange that the three sons made breathing hard for the father. For one plentiful

College Press

THE HIGH COST OF EDUCATION (Daily Palo Alto)

Under the headline "College Wasters and Extravagant Fathers," George Wheeler Hinman, financial expert of the Hearst newspaper syndicate, recently discussed his views on the extravagance of the American college personnel. The article went further than showing waste within the college, however, for it attempted to paint the results of such waste upon the years following graduation.

It may have been Mr. Hinman's intention to place the blame on the father's of the nation for the waste of their sons, but he did not accomplish this result. Instead, one is left with the impression that it is the college itself which causes the waste, that conditions within it tend naturally to make wasters of students. Perhaps Mr. Hinman unconsciously felt this tendency did exist.

Ordinarily we would have passed such arguments by, classing them as "the other side of the question," feeling that enough space has been given in the past few years to the value of colleges to the nation. But the answer that Dr. David Starr Jordan gave the other day to the question propounded him, "Does college do a boy any good?" inspired a desire to apply it to Mr. Hinman's argument. Dr. Jordan replied to his questioner in five words of wisdom, "That depends upon the boy."

Mr. Hinman himself says that he has no intention of representing the majority of college students as extravagant; but to lay the blame upon the institution for the waste of the minority is to lose sight of the cause. It lies in the boy, as Dr. Jordan has suggested. It has never been claimed for the college that character, including thrift, can be made with the aid of the text-book. Association and a natural intuition develop it and if waste and extravagance are shown while in college, it is rather the fault of indulgent fathers and inherited characteristics than any destructive habits fastened upon the boy by the college itself. The father in Mr. Hinman's article who allowed his three sons $3,500 each per year upon his $20,000 income was himself to blame for his inability to breathe as the author put it. One feels safe in saying that less than one-half that amount is the average spent in western universities.

Given an amount for one year equal to double the living-wage of thousands of workers, is it strange that the three sons made breathing hard for the father. For one plentiful

Degrees Given To Eskimos

The degree of Bachelor of Herders is offered to Eskimo college boys. The candidate must spend four years in the open learning how to manage a herd of reindeer.

Dissent Over Prayer Week Denver university holds an annual "prayer week." Considerable dissent was aroused during its 56th observance just over, acclaiming that the tradition lost caste because of the name and likening it to "eat more beans week."

TEACHERS needed now. BOOMERS TEACHERS AGENCY.

REPRODUCED SERVICE Capital Engraving Co. 319 SO. 12TH ST. LINCOLN, NEB. B-478

Pullman Robes for women. BLACK SATIN ROBES, in two different models, which are admirably suited to the needs of the college girl. One model is of black "sport satin" or Baronet satin, a rayon mixture, with embroidered floral patterns in red, yellow, or purple. The other is of black satin with collar and sleeve bandings of rose, red, peach or turquoise blue, and hand painted pocket in harmonizing colors. Priced 12.50 Second Floor. Miller & Paine

Golf Clubs and Golf Balls We Have Your Favorite LATSCH BROTHERS 1118 "O" Street

Write it—don't sing The chances are that you'll do a better job with a "Lifetime" pen. And you'll have the satisfaction of knowing, when you write to her, that you are working with the "niftiest" instrument procurable. Of green, jade-green radite, a handsome and indestructible material, is the pen you'll love to hold. Its nib is guaranteed for a lifetime. But what is more important, it is an infallible performer. At better stores everywhere. Price, $3.75 Student's special, $7.50 Others lower "Lifetime" Titan oversize pencil to match, $4.25 Sheaffer Strip—successor to ink—makes all pens write better SHEAFFER'S PENS - PENCILS - SKRIP W. A. SHEAFFER PEN COMPANY FOST WAREHOUS 1076 FOR SALE BY Latsch Bros., Tucker & Shean, College Book Store, C. Edson Miller Co., Meier Drug Co.

Temple Theatre MARCH 11, 12, 13. University Players Present 'He Who Gets Slapped' Andreyev's stupendous Asiatic Drama of Shadows. You'll weep, you'll laugh as you gaze into the shadowed mysteries of a tortured soul in the circus of life. The most brilliant Russian classic of the age Friday and Saturday Matinees at 2:30 Prices: Eve. 75c; Matinees 50c. Seats at R. P. Curtice Company