Mennonite Settlers Prove Valuable Element in Population of Nebraska

To many, the words, "Mennonite migration" signify nothing. Yet in the history of pioneer Nebraska the Mennonite migration which filled the vast areas of Nebraska prairies in Jefferson, Gage, Clay, Hamilton and York counties in the decade of 1870-80, was of great importance. The story of this migration is given in "Nebraska History and Record of Pioneer Days."

The Mennonites had left Prussia a hundred years before to avoid military service. They had settled in southern Russia with solemn guaranty of exemption from that service. When the Czar broke the contract and began to marshal all his subjects for the great war preparation in Europe which followed the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, these people left the fruitful farms they had made and came to Nebraska.

They brought to Nebraska a perfectly disciplined, religious, frugal, hard-working people. Almost without a single exception, they made a success of their settlements and of each individual home in them. Working with steadiness and devotion, they showed how homes could be made upon the high prairies of central Nebraska. Also they brought a deep, even if at times, irrational, belief and practice in peace doctrines, for they were Quakers.

A call for a Freshman tennis team will be issued next Monday. A team from this class will be chosen and meets with other schools will probably be scheduled for it.

Prof. Henzlik Visits South Dakota School

(University News Service) Prof. F. R. Henzlik of the department of school administration, inspected last week a normal school at Springfield, South Dakota, for the North-Central Association of schools and colleges. Lay New Floors in Field House As Building Nears Completion

The University field house is gradually nearing a state of completion, with the favorable weather of last few weeks. A large force of workers are busy carrying out the construction of all parts. The temporary wood floor that was laid during the basketball season has been taken up. Another layer of cement will be put over the present one before the permanent wood floor is put down. The permanent floor will probably not be installed until the construction work is nearly finished. The floors of the aisles that run underneath the balcony are being covered with a layer of cement. The steps leading to the basement have just been constructed. There is a stairway on each side of the field house. Part of the basement floor has been laid already, and the rest will be put down as soon as possible. The basement floor will be of cement, but it will probably not be entirely finished at present. The locker rooms will be located in the basement and will include a small room with showers for the use of the visiting teams and one for the varsity athletes. The ticket booths and the offices in the south side of the building have been plastered. There will be ample office space in the field house, with offices all along the south side. The seats in the balcony were completed for the high school turnover. They are of the same type as those in the stadium. Work on the mammoth stage was neglected during the winter months so that the building could be made ready for basketball. With all the athletics out of the way now, the back wall of the stage is being bricked. The back of the stage is fifty feet back of the north wall. During the basketball season the opening for the stage was walled over. In future tournaments the stage will probably be used for one playing floor. The radiators for the heating-system are in the building now. They will be installed as soon as possible. The showers will be put in as soon as the basement floor is completed.

"The Goose Hangs High", a popular play among the collegians this year was given by the Wesleyan group, Martin Flavin's "Children of the Moon" by the Wesleyans. The visiting actors brought no scenery with them but used the home clubs' property.

Nebraska Has Affirmative on Regulation of Child Labor By Congress

OPEN-FORUM TO FOLLOW

Negative Team Will Enliven Discussion; Several High School Delegations Coming

The University of Nebraska's 1926 intercollegiate debates—the twenty-fifth since the organization of the Intercollegiate-Debate Seminary (the "Think Shop") in 1901-1902—will be held Wednesday evening, March 24, in Memorial Hall, with the University of South Dakota, and Thursday evening, March 25, with the University of Iowa at Iowa City, on the question of amending the Constitution to give Congress power to regulate child labor, a question much debated this year in the college world, east and west. Nebraska will maintain the affirmative against South Dakota.

The open-forum discussion, with questions from the audience, is going to be enlivened by the presence of Nebraska's negative team—Geo. A. Healey, '28, Lincoln; Ralph G. Brooks, '25 (Wesleyan), Law '27, Lincoln; and Lloyd J. Marti, '23, (Hastings), Law '27, Lincoln—which has delayed until midnight its start to Iowa City for the contest Thursday evening, in order to hear the local battle and to heckle the affirmative team.

Frost To Open Nebraska's Case

Nebraska's case against South Dakota will be opened by Lincoln Frost, Jr., '27, Lincoln. The second speaker will be Edward G. Jennings, '26, Lincoln; and David Sher, '28, Omaha, will be the third speaker.

Delegations from schools in Nebraska High-School Debating League are coming to study the workmanship of the University debaters. The largest delegation heard from so far is thirteen from Ceresco.

The University Cadet Band will furnish music.

Nebraska's representatives are picked students appointed at an open try-out competition last winter by a committee of University professors and former varsity debaters. They have been investigating the subject by the intensive "Think Shop" methods.

Sketches of the Nebraska representatives follow:

PLANS FOR PASSION SERVICE OUTLINED

Miss Erma Appleby Speaks At Vesper On "The Christian Experience Of Salvation"

In preparation for the Passion service to be held at Ellen Smith Hall on next Tuesday at 5 o'clock, Miss Erma Appleby talked on "The Christian Experience of Salvation" at the Vesper service at 5 o'clock, Tuesday, in Ellen Smith Hall. Irene French was the leader and Betty Coleman sang a vocal solo.

"Just a week from tonight," stated Miss Appleby, "we will be gathered together here for the simplest and most solemn Vesper service of the year. This service will probably have two-fold effect on each one of us. We feel that there is set before us human life as human life ought to be and we will also have the sense that God is in it all, that somehow His love is set forth in the death of this human person."

"An infinite number of men, disciples of Jesus, have been like Jesus, have been delivered of their transgressions and from their littleness. We might understand better how to live Christian lives if we would live over the experiences of the disciples," pointed out the speaker.

"Salvation," pointed out Miss Appleby, "is a word used often. Most people have the idea that salvation is the escape from living eternal life in unpleasant surroundings. I do not deny," she said, "that some kind of fate awaits us after we are out of this life, but a bigger meaning of the word salvation may be interpreted as meaning "how am I to escape from my littleness and my selfishness in this life."

"Salvation is the achievement of character. At no time do we desire it more than when we look at Jesus and realize what He made of a human life, and begin to wonder what we are making of ours," stated Miss Appleby.
