THE PURPOSE OF THE COLLEGE

In an admirable accumulation of statistics under the name, "The American Arts College," by Dean Kelly of Minnesota, it is estimated that there are almost as many statements of purposes for colleges as there are colleges in the United States.

The state of Nebraska as a democratic state in a democratic United States, is undertaking to educate its citizens and future citizens. Representing organized society, the state has decided that it needs well-trained doctors, lawyers, and teachers; and there are colleges for the training of doctors, lawyers, and teachers.

In the first place, the fully developed individual should be made aware of his environment. He should have some acquaintance with the human tradition (man's accumulated experience), the history of civilization, and the nature of the world today.

Many college students do make good money selling encyclopedias, maps, hosiery, spark plugs, and similar stuff. But many others fail miserably and lose both time and money.

WHAT'S A VIKING? What are the Vikings? This newspaper made the mistake of believing that the organization was composed of very modest "joiners," but no sooner had a word of praise been uttered, than into the office came a member of the organization with a list of new members and officers for the coming year.

WE SECOND THE MOTION!

A GROUP SONATA (Silver and Gold, University of Colorado) The deficiency of many of our present-day fraternity chapters is best explained by likening the fraternity to the music of primitive times—a music with a central theme, but rendered in a monotonous, over-and-over manner.

But in marked contrast with this irksome sameness of primitive music, there is the Beethoven sonata. Here we have the product of a true genius in this field of art, a musical composition with a dominating motif throughout, but a motif that is expressed contrapuntally.

These definitions are obviously quite incompatible. Turning to the student life section of The Cornhusker, we find this explanation, written by an active member of the society: "What can one say of Viking, and the kindred organizations? There was a time when the Vikings held an annual 'beer-bust.' Then there was some excuse for the outfit; now the weaker-hearted, including a present innocent, vetoed the plan last year, and all possible excuse for existence promptly passed.

It is significant that many of these companies confine their efforts to freshmen. The writer was offered three such positions during his freshman year. But since then, although he has many more acquaintances, none of them have "recommended" him for such openings.

This explanation of the society's existence is likewise unsatisfactory for reasons which any member will be glad to give you. By way of caution, permit us to add that the student life section of The Cornhusker is not supposed to be taken seriously.

In conclusion, it can only be said that the question remains unanswered, because a truthful answer has never been given to it. If The Nebraskan were not prejudiced by its love for the members despite their "big man" mania, it might attempt to formulate an answer. But the prejudice exists, so the question must be passed on to readers: What is a Viking, anyhow?
