Nebraska Represented At Y. W. C. A. Meeting

"that the influence of the Y. W. C. A. in regard to national affairs as child labor, the question of peace, and of compulsory military drill, was increasing and would play an even greater part in future events, although the latter was not openly discussed. There was however an open, and free discussion of all problems confronting the various groups as to race, religion and other questions of like matter."

The students met separately, and established the following six principles or purposes as the basis of the student Y. W. C. A.: I. Search for God-Adventure. II. Fellowship or the understanding and potentiality of people which answers the question of the relationship to other people, and Intelligent Love as regards service. III. Worship or the identification of realities greater than ourselves. IV. Understanding of the significance of events—the moral struggle. V. The goal which expresses the highest we know and indicates the steps by which it is reached. VI. Being definitely a Christian.

CLASS ON INSPECTION TOUR

Animal Husbandry Students Visit the Omaha Stock Yards
One of the classes of the Animal Husbandry Department of the College of Agriculture went to Omaha May 6 to inspect the stock yards. Prof. W. W. Derrick supervised the trip.

Guides were provided to show the class through some of the packing houses. The desire of the packer and the demand and supply of various grades of meat were discussed. The yards and the method of handling the cattle were also studied.

For the past three months the class has been studying beef production and shipping. The trip gave the students practical instruction and the opportunity to see conditions as they exist in the care and production of this product.

SUMMER POSITIONS OPEN FOR STUDENTS

Y. M. C. A. Employment Bureau Receives Jobs for Men Who Wish Work
A large number of odd jobs are being turned in at the University of Nebraska Y. M. C. A. Employment bureau together with some offering permanent employment.

According to William S. Trumbull, employment secretary, the employment situation has been unusually good this spring. There were times when difficulty was experienced in securing enough men to fill the positions he had open.

Students interested in obtaining work should keep in close touch with the bureau. By so doing they will not only be well remunerated but will also make it possible for the office to give better service to those employers using it as a medium.

The first graduates of a chemistry-commerce course in the United States will receive their diplomas from the University of Wisconsin in June.
