Frances Gettys, '18, Opera and Concert Artist, Here on Monday

The Lincoln Concert and musical season will be opened Monday evening at the City Auditorium by Frances Gettys, '18, whose phenomenal success on the concert and opera stages of Rome and other European cities was heralded throughout the United States last year. Tickets for the concert are being distributed by members of Alpha Chi Omega, of which Miss Gettys is a member. They are also on sale at the Curtsie Music Company.

With the coming of a widely advertised American girl who made her success in New York last year, Lincoln will have every opportunity to compare the merits of the two singers. Miss Gettys made her concert debut in Rome, Italy, less than a year ago and the papers immediately hailed her as having "by unanimous judgment the most perfect soprano voice heard in Rome in years". Her appearance on the stage was forthcoming and her success was imposing, according to the glowing accounts carried in many of the leading Italian newspapers.

Her Italian audiences are said to have been the most critical in the world.

In her Monday night concert Miss Gettys will be assisted by Ernest Harrison, pianist, and an instructor accredited to the University of Nebraska. The program will consist of arrias from the Italian operas in which Miss Gettys played leading roles; modern Italian songs; and songs in modern English.

Miss Gettys specialized in language at Nebraska. She was appointed an instructor in the department of modern languages and taught French in 1919.

After appearing in her Lincoln concert Miss Gettys will leave immediately for Europe where she has been booked for a year of concert and opera engagements. There she has been given an opportunity to create a role in a new opera which has never been given in Italy. The composer is Francesco Santoliquido. She will use one of his songs in her Lincoln program.

FARM BOYS URGED TO GO TO COLLEGE

Jardine Points out Opportunities in Agricultural Fields; Trained Workers Are Needed

Emphasizing a belief that is held by many prominent farm leaders, Secretary of Agriculture, W. M. Jardine, recently pointed out that agriculture today offers promising opportunities to young men and women who are especially trained to work in its many diverse fields.

"More farm boys and girls in college," declared Jardine, "is an integral part of any sound program for the permanent betterment of agriculture. Agriculture grows more complex every year, and it needs trained men and women to meet its problems."

During and following the world war, there was a pronounced decrease in enrollment in agricultural courses. This drop, the secretary feels, was natural. The war called a vast number of young men into the army and into essential industries, and, during the period of post-war prosperity, many farm boys hesitated to leave good-paying work. Finally the recent agricultural depression caused many young folks to postpone going to college.

"Agricultural enrollments in colleges have begun to come back," Jardine said. "There were a few more freshmen last year than the year before. Now is the time, in my estimation, to study agriculture. There are exceptional opportunities for young men."

Though he admitted there were some who would not agree with him as to the opportunities in farming, the secretary explained that these views should not interfere with the plans of farm boys and girls who are prepared to enter college. Investigations conducted by the department

Counting the gravestones in a cemetery at night, roaming the dark streets looking for three black cats, maintaining all-night vigils, and other "assignments" imposed upon "pledges" during the "hell week" preceding initiation into fraternities, will probably be taboo as a result of action by deans at the University of Wisconsin.

WISCONSIN STUDENT COURTS STOP WORK

Men Abandon Self-Government After Twenty-year Attempt To Administer Power

Men students have abandoned the job of self-government at the University of Wisconsin, after twenty years of trying to find a way to administer the discipline power granted to them by the faculty and the Regents.

The Student Court submitted its resignation in a body at the recent annual meeting of the Board of Regents and the board approved the recommendation to discontinue the court. Beginning with the fall semester in September the full control of discipline of men students will pass back into the hands of the faculty.

Behind this event is an interesting history of twenty years effort at self-government. But while the men have failed in their effort, the women of the university have built up a Women's Self-Government association that is becoming stronger each year.

The Student Court was the first formally declared chartered self-governing body of Badger men students. It was the outgrowth of a series of informal Student Conferences set up by President C. R. Van Hise early in his administration, some 20 years ago. Following some moves of this informal body in 1911 and 1912 to intercede with the faculty on behalf of students disciplined for infractions of college rules, mainly hazing, the Student Court was chartered by the Board of Regents with the duty "to maintain good order throughout the male student body, and to enforce university regulations within its jurisdiction."

Steady decline of student interest in its legislative and judicial organizations of recent years has culminated in the disbanding of the Student Court. It is agreed on the campus that the court died of inanition, and that the question of self-government generally has ceased to interest the men students.

field. Showers and lockers are provided for both men and women students in physical education. Lockers will accommodate 250 women and 275 men. Three hand-ball courts are provided for.

Four stairways lead up from the vestibule to the main floor, where special offices are provided for instructors in physical education. The main auditorium is 100 feet long by 72 feet wide. It will accommodate a standard basket-ball court, and provide 11 feet on either side of the court for seating space, together with a gallery which will seat 700 people.

A stage 24 feet wide occupies the west end of the building. A booth is provided for a moving picture projector. The main auditorium is suitable for public meetings, classes in physical education, and other student activities. This room has a seating capacity of about 1500.

With the completion of this building a greatly extended program in physical education, athletic sports, and social opportunities for class and college societies will be provided. The students in the Agricultural College are now to be provided with all the necessary social opportunities which can be found in any other college in the university.

The new Activities Building will be opened about the first of October. Two shifts are now working on the great building in order to have it done by that time. The new instructors have been engaged and are at present holding their classes in the old gymnasium. W. W. Knight is the football coach and will be assisted in his duties by Walter Krimmelmeyer.

Booklet Distributed to Students

Several attractive leaflets and booklets describing the advantages of the College of Agriculture, have been prepared by Dean Burnett's office, and are being distributed on request to prospective students.
