

IN THE VALLEY

By FRED ZIMMER

September 25 marks the opening of the football season proper for most of the college elevens throughout the country. Due to the common agreement that no practice should be held before September 15, the Missouri Valley teams will not go into action until one week later. By all the signs of the prophets it seems apparent that college football will attract larger crowds to the "battlefields" and create greater public interest than ever before in its history.

Everything points that way—the intersectional games on the schedules, the increasing demand for tickets, and the enlargement and building of many a stadium to meet the demand for more seats. Over two thousand collegiate games will be played this season. There are nearly five hundred teams of college ranking, which means that there are over five thousand first string varsity players and nearly twenty-five thousand on the various squads. This does not include those out for freshman football nor the countless number of high school players. When one stops to consider that there are, on a conservative average, ten thousand fans watching each of the collegiate struggles and many more thousands following with interest the accounts of the games, one can readily understand the importance that football holds in the realm of sportdom.

Missouri Valley conference teams, which have rapidly forged to the front and attracted national attention in the last few years, will line up against the nation's crack elevens in their twenty-three non-conference games to be played this fall. Outstanding among these are Nebraska's contests in the east with New York University and in the west with the University of Washington. Drake's game with Notre Dame, and the Navy, and Iowa State's Turkey Day bout with the Southern Branch of the University of California.

Drake, who plays their opening game with the Huskers here October 2, faces the stiffest schedule in the history of the school. Following the Husker bout the Bulldogs will journey east to tackle the Navy; then will meet Oklahoma, Mississippi, and Kansas at home before leaving the local lot to meet Ames and Notre Dame; and finishing the schedule with a local Thanksgiving game with Grinnell.

Ted Sloane, Drake's first all-American football player, who was a big factor in the Husker defeat last season, is now a midshipman at the United States Naval academy. Because of the freshman rule in effect at Annapolis, Sloane will not be eligible to compete against Drake October 9. He will, however, have a chance to display some of the aggressive spirit that made him famous on the gridiron when the middies engage the Army in the annual bout at Chicago the first Saturday after Thanksgiving day.

One of the new Valley rules placed in effect this year is the limiting of the amount of football practice on school days to two hours. The new ruling is for the purpose of creating a uniform system of practice and to limit interference with school work, caused by long hours of football practice.

Forty candidates for the varsity squad turned out for the initial practice at the University of Kansas. The squad is under the direction of Earl Steele, assistant coach, as "Cappy" Cappon is ill and may not be able to meet the teams for several days.

FRESHMEN SHOW UP IN VARSITY TANGLE

Witte and Miller Look Well in Backfield; Annual Tilt Is Saturday

Football tang in the air furnished the incentive for a spirited scrimmage between the yearlings and the Varsity Thursday afternoon on stadium sod. The Varsity piled up a 32 to 0 score but had a real task to accomplish it. Fighting stubbornly, especially during the first twenty minutes of the game, the youngsters gave the first string all it wanted in the way of a tough workout.

Yesterday's practice tilt showed for the first time, the strength and number of the frosh squad. "Dutch" Witte, Lincoln product, advanced the ball regularly and turned in the best game for the freshmen. He was forced out early in the game by a wrenched ankle but was up and around again before the game ended.

McBride and Miller, who took Witte's place, did considerable line bucking, keeping the Varsity men from sifting through. "Chief" Elkins turned in the best punting efforts of the afternoon, getting them off with two or three opposing linemen covering him.

Richards, Pawnee City man, starred at tackle, often smearing the Varsity backs before they got started. Great things are expected from him next year.

The fullback position had two creditable performers, Farley and Sloan bolstering the center of the line in Varsity fashion. Sloan, by the way, came through with the prettiest tackles of the game.

Another scrimmage is scheduled for Saturday afternoon. It will probably be a full game, and will be open to the student body. The starting lineup of the freshmen was:

Lewandowski and Toms, ends.
Richards and Broadstone, tackles.
Craig and Ray, guards.
Case, center.
Witte and Elkins, halves.
Miller, quarter, and Farley, fullback.

DISTANCE RUNNERS TRYOUT ON FRIDAY

Cross Country Aspirants Will Meet Today For First Tryout of 1926 Fall Season

Preliminary trials for the Varsity cross-country team will be held Friday, starting from the stadium at 4 o'clock. Coach Henry F. Schulte announced yesterday evening that he expected from twenty-five to fifty men to make the run.

Captain Hayes seems to be rounding into shape. It is now thought that his ankle, broken this summer, will not bother him. Dickson and Reiser are the other two letter men eligible.

Today's run will indicate which of the non-letter men are likely to win permanent places on this year's team. Most of the men have only been working out since school opened. A few worked two or three times a week all summer.

Among the likely prospects who have been working are: Chadderdon, who placed in both the half mile and the mile in the Missouri Valley Freshman telegraphic meet last spring, Schulz, who has been working all summer, Lesser, a numeral winner last spring who has been working all summer, Ritcher, a numeral winner last spring and a member of the Freshman mile relay team which won first place in the mile relay in the Freshman telegraphic last spring, Campbell, also a member of the victorious Freshman mile relay team, and McCartney, a substitute on last year's crack cross-country team.

Coach Schulte said the material should round into a fairly good team. The loss of Lawson, Zimmerman, Lewis, Searles and Ross necessitates a green team. There is a quantity of material, especially from the younger classes, indicating a strong team in succeeding years.

Kansas State presents the most formidable array of cross-country talent this season. Their whole team from last year, which won the valley championship last fall, is back. Kansas is expecting new strength from their Freshman team. Iowa State has lost Conger but expects a strong team without him. The same is true of Oklahoma. They will miss Rutherford but still have Niblick to keep them up among the leaders. Drake, Nebraska's first cross-country opponent, is as yet an unknown quantity. Missouri and Oklahoma A. & M., likewise, have not been heard from.

Student Council Work Is Praised by Students

fused to comment on the situation, but stated that he hoped to get in touch with the Council as soon as possible and see what might be done.

"I can not understand why orchestras should be charging from thirty-five to fifty per cent more this year than they did last," declared Francis Jones, editor of the Cornhusker. "It seems most unreasonable, something should be done and the Council should receive the hearty cooperation of every campus organization, in their attempt to lower the prices."

Many have commented on the action regarding "clean politics" appearing as the Council's slogan.

"I am heartily in favor of anything the Student Council may do to elevate standards of student politics. Zealous guarding of the polling places will help considerably," asserted Edward Morrow, former editor of The Daily Nebraskan, on hearing of the decision of the Council.

Members of the military department expressed appreciation to the Council for the consideration shown them by refraining from making public the identity of the Honorary Colonel until the evening of the Military Ball.

"Keeping the identity of the Honorary Colonel secret until the night of the Ball makes the affair decidedly nicer, adds to the party and we are glad to learn of the Council's action in the matter," declared Colonel Jewett of the military department.

William Cejnar, captain of Scabard and Blade, honorary society of advanced R. O. T. C. course, expressed his opinion by saying, "The Student Council is to be commended in restoring this traditional feature of the Military Ball. With the new Coliseum as the setting, the student body may look forward to a brilliant opening of the formal season."

Council committee chairman will continue to work on activities begun according to a statement from the chairman and the next meeting will be held Wednesday, October 29.

College Graduates Wanted in Business

and more limited to graduate students?

"At college graduation, we learn, he is eager to realize on what amounts to a considerable investment. How many of the men taking the average courses really consider their studies a training for their future work, an investment from which they expect a monetary return? Should we not see a much larger percentage of the higher marks given out if this viewpoint were generally held?"

"Among his other attributes at college are mentioned indebtedness for his college expenses and, in the same breath, tastes for golf and for club life that require considerable money."

"How much opportunity of learning to know their fellows falls in the way of the students, relatively poor in this world's goods, who earn their expenses in whole or in part? In fact, is not one of the criticisms most often heard in discussions of the life at our colleges to the effect that the clubs and fraternities are filled with rich men's sons whose allowances from the family probably continue after graduation?"

"Arrived at work, our typical young graduate has heard before closing time the first day about there being no chance for a man in that organization. After a few months of this, we see him sever his job and seek a new job, where he finds, to his surprise the same disloyal talk."

"Is it possible that four years at any of our colleges will so warp the judgment of a first-rate high school boy that he will be unable to size up his fellow employes, or be fooled by the idle talk of the men with whom he daily comes in contact?"

"Much is being done and much still remains to be done along the line of breaking in the green college hand. A new system of apprenticeship is being developed which has its disadvantages as well as its advantages."
