Both students and faculty members seem to be heartily in favor of the plan to lengthen Thanksgiving vacation and shorten spring vacation one day. The columns of The Daily Nebraskan give abundant proof to this statement. We are not at all surprised in this, in fact the benefits of the change are so obvious that the support of the entire University public was almost certain even before the matter was brought to their attention.

The apparent success of this vacation plan is a real victory for the Student Council. At the beginning of the year the Council, a much berated and rundown organization, announced an ambitious program for the year. The furtherance of this vacation plan was one of the things on that program. If this goes through, as it probably will, the Student Council should get the credit for it. The acceptance of the plan will also show the willingness of the administration to cooperate with the students. This spirit of cooperation between the two bodies will do much to further the interests of the University.

The World Forum Wednesday noon luncheons have started again and two meetings have been held already. C. D. Hayes, secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., spoke at the opening meeting and Dr. Bixby, State Journal columnist spoke this week. This is about the only real discussion group on the campus at the present time in which the subjects which should interest students are discussed. Despite that fact, the meetings are not as successful as they should be. What the Forum needs is less speaking and more discussion and the subjects should be of more interest to the student body in general than they have been in the past.

There is real need of discussion on this campus. The lack of interest on the part of students in the matters which they should naturally be interested in is almost appalling. There are a few who take note of what is going on around them, but general interest and discussion on campus problems is practically unknown.

There is at the present time a movement on foot to start discussion groups in fraternity houses. It is certain that some discussion groups should be organized. The question is whether or not the fraternity is the group which should be chosen for this.

The Kosmet Klub has announced the selection of the musical comedy written by Herbert Yenna, "The Dream Pirate," for its 1926 production. The cast will be made up entirely of men. This will be an innovation at Nebraska but there is no reason why it should not prove successful here as it has at other large Universities.

Since the cast will be made up entirely of men the Klub will be allowed for the first time to take the show on a tour of the state—something which has never been sanctioned before. This tour will furnish an excellent means of advertising the University to the people in the state. The time in between acts will be devoted to speeches and perhaps moving pictures and songs all connected with the University.

This tour of the state, especially if it is continued and becomes an annual affair, will mean a great deal to the University. It will establish a connection between the people in the state and the University which is obtainable in no other way. This feeling of good will toward the University is something which must be cultivated carefully if this institution is to attain the heights to which it is reaching.

Strange Customs
Co-education in foreign schools is a comparatively new thing and women students are in the minority. Until very recently university men, especially in Germany, had secret fraternities to which women were not allowed to belong. These bands held meetings in ruined castles and caves where they composed and sang songs. Duels were fought between rivals for the hand of some fair lady. The more scars a man bore on his face, the greater was his standing among his fellow students.

The University and the State

To show the far-reaching effects of the plans for the future campus made by the Campus Planning Committee, the following editorial, printed in the Norfolk Daily News, is reprinted.

Publication of cuts showing the proposed development of the University of Nebraska campus, after the conception of the campus planning committee of which George N. Seymour of Elgin, former president of the regents, is chairman, should attract additional support to the request of the university authorities for a carefully considered ten-year budget plan for university building. Last year the state legislature was asked to take a long look forward and make provision for a building program to be extended over a number of years, but it did not see fit to do this. Instead, it adhered to the plan of appropriating only for the biennium, holding that it ought not to commit future legislatures to a definite building program.

There is much to be said for this position. Generally speaking, it is a sound one, not to be departed from except when it can be clearly shown that the interests of both the taxpayers and the university will be promoted by doing so.

It appears to us plain, however, that both economy and sound practice favor the long term building program. An institution as large and having as many component units as the University of Nebraska ought not to be built piecemeal. It should be developed in accordance with a definite plan to be worked out now before construction has gone to the point where it would be difficult to bring about a unity of design. Such a plan has been worked out by Mr. Seymour and his committee and the state owes them an expression of grateful appreciation for their work.

It can show this appreciation best by making certain that the next legislature adopt a policy which will permit a real step to be taken toward a realization of the committee's plan. This will not involve the spending of more money than would the piecemeal program. In fact, the economy of building to a well worked-out plan is so apparent that it almost goes without saying that it will be the most economical and will involve the smallest possible contribution from the taxpayers. At the same time, it will prove best for the university since it may then go ahead with its construction program knowing in advance just what to expect.

The people of Nebraska want to see their state university go forward in step with the rest of the nation, and this can best be assured by a settled policy of campus development.

Other Opinions

The Spirit of a True Cornhusker

To the Editor:
As freshmen we wonder just what this so-called Spirit of a True Cornhusker is, and just what it really means and so desire to seek its ideas trying to live up to it. On the campus we hear about it. The upper classmen on their way from classes talk about the coming events of the activities that interest them. Some speak about the football teams, the Awgwan, the Blue Print, the Daily Nebraskan, Glee clubs, Class officers, Fraternities, Sororities, and so on.

The greatest tradition of the Cornhusker institutions is the spirit of the University as a body. A man or woman who has spent 4 years in the University of Nebraska, carries away something that will discover him no matter where he may be found. If one were to go to either the east or west coast, he will find the Cornhusker known for his true spirit. This is due to the fact that our great colors, the Scarlet and Cream, are displayed in such a credible fashion by our football and track teams. This that I have just mentioned is very small in comparison with the honors of the men and women who are leaving the University of Nebraska and especially those who have gone before really spread the Spirit of a True Cornhusker.

Getting back to the freshmen. He is wondering how it is possible to obtain this much lauded spirit. Already a number of special meetings have been held to start him out right and try to help him in such a way that he may follow the line up the steps till he acquires the Spirit of a True Cornhusker. Now during the next few games let us keep our eyes open and watch our upper classmen, the cheer leaders, Corn Cobs and Tassels and join in with helping to develop a winning spirit, the spirit of a True Cornhusker.
