MID-SEMESTER

Next week, the week of November 8 to 13, is mid-semester examination week. By Saturday noon of that week the scholastic standing of every student must be in the hands of the Registrar.

By that Saturday the fate of the new student will be in the balance. Saturday the thirteenth of November is home-coming day for all old grads of the University of Nebraska.

As usual some will be dismissed, but it is hoped that the number may be smaller this year. Those who received delinquent slips at the quarterly examination time need to be most concerned with making a good grade in the coming tests.

Many parents are sacrificing much to keep their sons and daughters in school. It is the duty of these sons and daughters to at least keep up in their work.

Therefore students, and especially freshmen, must make the grade. It is for their own good, the debt they owe their parents, and the debt they owe their school, that they should rise above this obstacle.

WILLIAM GOLD KEYS

Yesterday the ten leading students of the freshman class of last year in the College of Business Administration were presented with gold keys by William Gold, Lincoln business man, in recognition of their achievement.

While it is not our belief that scholarship rewards should be bestowed too lavishly, it seems that the Business Administration college is creating interest and promoting better scholarship by their stand on the subject.

Thus the student in the college of Business Administration has excellent opportunity to win some of the rewards offered for scholarship.

wards of the same nature were offered.

Saturday night the United States Navy Band, under the direction of Lieutenant Charles G. Benter, will give a concert in the University Coliseum, planned expressly to interest students and residents of Lincoln alike.

All of Lincoln and especially the students of the University should welcome the appearance of the President's own musical organization in Lincoln this week-end. The band will visit only a limited number of cities in the country on the second tour that it has ever made, and the University should be highly complimented that it chooses Lincoln as one of its stopping places.

The University is pleased with the coming appearance of the organization is shown by the fact that a monster reception has been planned for the time when the band arrives. The R. O. T. C. band, the Corncoobs, the Tassels and a company from the regiment has been selected to meet the musicians when they arrive Saturday morning.

The very low price of one dollar has been placed on tickets; a price that is indeed low so as not to be prohibitive to students. On the night of the concert, balcony tickets will go on sale at the Field House at seventy-five cents each.

The band is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, group of musicians in America is without doubt. It is composed of the foremost band talent in the country, and has been given the status of official Navy Band by President Coolidge, who supervises every move the band makes from Washington.

A demonstration of the great value of the Coliseum will be seen Saturday night when the band plays from the giant stage. This is the second time the building has been used for other than an academic function since its completion.

Preparation is being made to seat well over five thousand for the program, and an estimate has been made that three thousand University students will help to fill those seats. It is to the benefit of students that they take advantage of this opportunity to hear a band of international reputation and it is hoped that they turn out in numbers to hear what promises to be the best entertainment of its kind in Lincoln for some time to come.

A PROM THIS YEAR

To the editor: What may be a myth on this campus at present will soon become a reality. What is a tradition in other colleges will be a tradition here as well. The Junior-Senior Prom of 1926 will take place!

The future need not be measured by the past. And this committee will do its best toward success. It is gratifying to know that many of the Juniors and seniors have already expressed a desire to help.

At the University of Kansas, women who live out of town must have special permission to drive home after a dance.

BARTER OF YOUTH
(Ohio State Lantern.)

Somehow or other this whole education system of ours seems to be woefully inefficient.

For instance, consider the element of time. The child starts to school at the age of five or six, depending on whether or not his community has a kindergarten.

Thus when he is at last ready to tackle the world he no longer has the advantage of youth. He has bartered his youth for education.

Why is this barter necessary? In grade school, junior high, senior high, and college the student has his summers free.

Rising in wrath to come to the defense of one of its two gods several journals of the great colossus of the south of us have taken exception to the opinion of a distinguished English critic, Ernest Newman, respecting the American type of music, that is to say, jazz.

them as far as advancement is concerned. Then, too, summer school is looked upon as a convenience for habitual flunkers and a stigma, however mild it may be, attaches to him who registers for the summer courses.

If the grade and high schools were put on an eleven-months' basis, instead of eight and a half or nine, the ordinary high school diploma could be obtained in about three-quarters of the time or at the average of fifteen instead of eighteen.

Thus if the grade and high schools were put on an eleven-months' basis and the curriculum enlarged, the student could be ready for college at the age of sixteen or seventeen and would be far more ready for it than he is now.

Likewise he would be out of college by the time he had reached 20 or 21. Then if he wished to top off his education with travel, which is the ideal thing, he could do it with far less trouble than under the existing system.

The critics of such a system will say that the students would oppose it. They get that idea from the student portrayed in comic cartoons, not from the actual student of today.

At Forty

"At Forty" the housewife in some sections of Europe wears a black bonnet to signify the end of her youth. A quaint custom—you say—but it usually signifies a fact. Heavy tasks, indoors and out, have made her old—at forty.

Of all the uses of electricity in America, the most important are those which release the woman from physical drudgery. Electricity carries water, washes clothes, cleans carpets, cooks the family's food—better and quicker than could be done by hand.

A trip to town or an hour's rest in the afternoon pays a woman dividends in good health "at forty years." And what is youth but that?

Men and women who have had the benefit of college training and college life have learned to place the proper value upon rest and recreation. They appreciate the relief afforded by electricity.

Upon great generators which send out current to light the homes and carry the burdens of millions, you will find the G-E monogram. Upon industrial motors, on electric railway trains—wherever quality and un-failing performance are first essentials—the G-E monogram will be found.

A series of G-E advertisements showing what electricity is doing in many fields will be sent on request. Ask for booklet GEK-1.

as "the one thing in music that is alive today." Yes, jazz has already strangled real music to death, as far as quantity is concerned. But many comic strips will be necessary to offset a Rembrandt or a Turner. Even an unusually sensible New York daily says that "its rhythms are palpitating with the new blood of tomorrow."

Mr. Newman rightly denounces most severely the jazzers of the classics. It might be of credit to its geniuses were jazz really original. But, on the other hand, it represents plagiarism in the lowest form. Spoilation is easier than creation, seems to be the policy of the artists in "tin pan alley."

We are loath to assume the role of prophet, but our contention is that jazz is merely an expression of the prevailing spirit of the day; a wild effervescing disposition that is a result of the trying times between 1914 and 1920.

The first period of play will be held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, and women members of the faculty wishing to play are asked to bring gymnasium suits or knickers, as well as a sweater. Gymnasium shoes, tennis shoes, or sport shoes with flat heels, should be worn. Those who wish to dress at the gymnasium should come at 10:30.

Three hundred and fifty-five students out of every 2700 at the University of Colorado were discovered recently to claim neither church membership nor religious preference.
