COUNCIL TURNS ATTENTION TO ELECTION CASE

Representatives of Student Body Will Attempt to Get At Facts of Matter

REPORT ON "REP" PARTIES

Great Majority of Greek Societies Appear to Favor System of One Party Each Year

The Student Council will attempt to get definite facts concerning the unfairness they believe to have been practiced in the casting of ballots for senior class president in Tuesday's election, according to Glenn Buck, chairman of the Council. If it can be proved that any student violated the election rules their names will be turned in to the university authorities.

The Council definitely decided in their meeting held yesterday afternoon that another election would be held for the position of senior class president next Tuesday in the Temple lobby and that stringent rules would be formulated by an election committee which would be carried out in every detail. The polls will be most carefully guarded and will be open from twelve o'clock, noon, until five. All students qualifying as seniors, those having 89 semester hours or more, will be entitled to vote.

Receive Twenty-two Replies

A report from the form letter sent to fraternities and sororities in regard to the holding of one representative party during the year was presented at the meeting. Out of the twenty-two letters received nineteen were favorable to limiting the number of these parties to one a year, three were unfavorable to this recommendation. A number of suggestions were received in regard to the improving of Varsity Dances. These will be turned over to the committee on varsity dances.

Recommendation will be made to the inter-fraternity council that action be taken by that body in regulating the fraternity "rep" parties to one a year.

The next regular meeting of the student council will be held March 2 in the Temple building.

BOWLERS RESUME TOURNEY TONIGHT

Four Matches in Greek Bowling Tourney Scheduled for Saratoga Alleys This Evening

The annual inter-fraternity bowling tournament will be resumed this evening at the Saratoga alleys beginning at 7 o'clock. The teams playing tonight are: Pi Kappa Phi vs. the Deltas, the Sigma Nus vs. the Sig Eps, the Xi Psi Phi vs. the Phi Deltas, and the Kappa Sigas vs. the Pi Kappa Alphas. The first two teams mentioned are playing in the first round and the rest are playing in the second.

The Phi Kaps, who won their first round game, are to play the winner of the game between the Pi Kappa Phis and the Deltas. The Deltas did not enter the tournament until the first round was over and the Pi Kappa Phis won a bye. This change in the schedule made it necessary to make an extra game tonight. The Phi Kappa game will probably be held either Saturday or Monday.

The results of the first round are as follows:

Thursday Night
Kappa Sigma, 2390; Delta Upsilon, 2278.

Beta Theta Pi, 1893; Sigma Nu, 1954.

Messages Received From Alumni Following Charter Day Ceremonies

Old Grads and Friends of University Express Pleasure Over Extensive Program. Chancellor Avery Listens In at San Diego.

The old chapel bell which once called University of Nebraska students to classes, pealed forth again and was heard all over America by loyal and devoted alumni of the University, when the Charter day exercises were broadcast over the University radio station.

Alumni from more than twenty-four states, from coast to coast, sent in messages of congratulation and appreciation during the evening's program. Fond memories were revived in the hearts of the old grads and tender reminiscences, not one whit faded by the march of years were again aroused as the old chapel bell rang its anthem of love and devotion, and the band played its tunes which have inspired football teams on the field of battle for the past half century.

From San Diego, Calif., where Chancellor Avery is regaining health came the following message Monday, in anticipation of the exercises: "Dean E. A. Burnett, Acting Chancellor of University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska.

The Alumni of the University of Nebraska residing at San Diego, California will hold a dinner in honor (Continued on Page Two.)

FLING SPEAKS BEFORE FORUM

Professor of History Discusses "America and Its Relation To World Civilization"

PRESENT PROBLEMS NEW

"There is a world civilization, America is a part of it, and America has certain responsibilities because she is a part of it," declared Dr. Fred Morrow Fling, professor of European History at World Forum at the Grand Hotel Wednesday noon. He discussed the topic, "America and Its Relation to World Civilization." "The trouble with the United States," stated Dr. Fling, "is that we have become part of a world civilization and have not become conscious of it." Consequently, the speaker averred, we are approaching our problems with a decidedly provincial attitude. He pointed out that a world civilization had never existed before, that this is the first period in which all people have lived together as one compact, interdependent social body.

6000 Years of Background

"We can't understand our social, racial, and economic problems until we grasp this fact," emphasized Professor Fling. He pointed out that he had 6000 years of background. At the beginning of that period races existed but they were savages. There was no contact. "All this has changed in these 6000 years."

The place of society today was declared to be analogous to a person who had lost his memory but who was forced to carry on as best he could. He called attention to the fact that people can't get along without a complete and trustworthy memory. He said that history was taught because the same thing was true of society.

Pointing out that tremendous changes had overtaken the world in the last 100 years, Dr. Fling called attention to how compact and interdependent the world had become as a result. "In the face of this," he went on, "how ridiculous it is to talk of going our own way. We are part of it!"

Lack of Unity Caused War

Failure to organize the world was declared by the speaker to be the cause of the world war. He pointed out that there were two ways to organize the world; by domination and imperialism, as in the past, or by democracy and the co-operation of states.

Calling attention to the beginnings of arbitration and the Hague conferences, Dr. Fling pointed out that all the elements necessary for the organization of a world society were at hand. War came because we were too ignorant to use them, he stated.

Turning to a discussion of the League of Nations and World Court, Dr. Fling showed the part the United States played in bringing the League into existence, after which we turned our back on it. Blame for the actions of the United States in this regard was placed by the speaker, not on the American people but on a (Continued on Page Three.)

PRACTICAL VALUES ATTRACT STUDENTS

Decided Increase in Night Class Enrollment; Business English is Most Popular Course

A decided increase has been exhibited in the registration of evening classes over that of former semesters. The practical value of the classes has attracted men engaged in various businesses and professions who desire to further their educational interests and are unable to attend the University during the day.

Business English, which is offered by Prof. M. H. Weseen, is the most popular course of the semester, due to the practical value the business men derive from it. Among the other well attended courses are Spanish, Business Law, Campfire Guardianship and a history course which has interested many of the city teachers. Algebra, English Composition and Principles of Economics have been discontinued.

Invitations have been extended to members of the Nebraska State Legislature, which now has several men registered in the University, to attend the classes offered at night.

Kwei Chen's Sister and Brother-in-law Killed By Chinese Marauders

Word was received yesterday by Mrs. Hartley Burr Alexander, wife of Dr. Alexander, that the sister and brother-in-law of Kwei K. Chen, who attended the University last semester, were killed in a raid by bandits in Yufisien, China. The marauders also kidnapped Kwei Chen's five-year-old nephew.

Kwei Chen left this semester to attend the University of Wisconsin where he went to continue his work under Dr. Alexander.

Law Students Start Action To Get Grades

The seniors of the Nebraska Law School, becoming indignant at the slow action on the part of the professors in getting out the grades for the semester, have filed a petition in the supreme court, registering their complaint.

The petition, drawn up and signed by the notorious attorneys of the senior law students, was found on the bulletin board Monday morning.

The following is a copy of the petition: "IN THE SUPREME COURT OF NEBRASKA LAW SCHOOL Senior Law Students) Petition

Charles H. Morrill Makes Impressive Record as Friend of the University

The new building dedicated to "science, art, and industry" and named in honor of Charles H. Morrill is a fitting tribute to the man who

Since 1892 he has been a generous contributor to the support of paleontology in this institution, and the major part of the vertebrate collection in the Museum has been secured by his aid.

CHARLES H. MORRILL

The fossil collection known as the Charles H. Morrill Collection has the reputation of being the best in the Midwest. By 1915 this collection contained almost 150,000 individual specimens of various kinds, some very rare and of world-wide reputation. The greater part of this material was taken from the fossil fields of northwestern Nebraska. Specimens are continually being added so the total number in this group is now very large. In the last two years Mr. Morrill has given approximately $60,000 to be spent in securing specimens, chiefly of fossils, and to send out expeditions and research parties to get material to be added to his collections.

In his book "Morrills and Reminiscences" Mr. Morrill, who is now eighty-five years old, says regarding his services to the University: "I am a firm believer that every man who has the good fortune to accumulate more than he needs to give his family and himself the comforts of life owes to his fellowmen and his community a debt that he should pay by contributing something for the further benefit of that community. In doing this while I am still alive, I have had the satisfaction of seeing for myself something of the good that was being accomplished. This has fully repaid me for whatever I have contributed to the cause of science and for the interest I have taken in the up-building of the University Museum."

Morrill Hall in which the School of Fine Arts is now located, and into which the Department of Geology and the Nebraska State Museum are now being moved, stand as a splendid and worthy tribute to the long period of active service and the liberal financial contributions made by Charles H. Morrill to the University of Nebraska.

For more than twenty years, scientific expeditions known as Morrill Geological Expeditions were sent out annually to collect in Nebraska and adjoining states.

TAKE-OFF AWGWAN TO BE OUT MONDAY

The Take-off number of the Awgwan will be out on Monday rather than on Friday, as was announced, due to a delay in the printing. It will be on sale then at the College Book Store, and at all down town news stands.

This issue is full of local features, among them a two page take-off on the Daily Nebraskan. There is an interesting full-page cartoon of campus activities, entitled "The Mirror." In "Aunt Mammie's Mail-Box" the troubles of many local characters are dealt with in an entertaining manner. Due to these facts, many persons will find themselves in this issue of the Awgwan, not designated by name, but readily tagged by actions that are characteristic.

The Kappa Sigma-Phi Sigma Kappa class A game was postponed until Thursday evening.

In the most exciting fray of the evening, Kenagy came through with the goods and Phi Gamma Delta snatched a 15 to 12 game from Pi Kappa Alpha.
