

SENIOR LEADER TO BE ELECTED NEXT TUESDAY

New Election for the Choosing of a Senior President Will Be This Week

FORMULATE NEW RULES Effort Will be Made to Eliminate All Possible Unfair Practices

The selection of the senior class president for the second semester will be made Tuesday at the special called election in the Temple lobby from twelve o'clock until five, according to announcements made by the Student Council.

Only members of the especially appointed election committee who are to function in this election will be allowed to act on the election official board. The ballot box will be placed behind the counter and the ballots will be put in the box by election officials.

Each ballot handed out will be signed by the Council member who has given it to the voter. This is being done in order to keep a definite check on the number of ballots handed out.

It is indeed regretful that measures must give their name, college, and college year, and this information, as has been the custom in the past, must correspond with the registrar's report.

Yearbook Office Asks For Personal Copy For Student Life Section

Wanted—plenty of good, live, student life copy! That is the latest plea from the 1927 Cornhusker office.

A large quantity of material, including pictures, cartoons, and text matter has already been worked up, but student life editors are looking for more of the inside dope which only "individuals who know" can furnish them.

"All student life copy must be in by March 15," said W. F. Jones, Jr., editor of the yearbook, who must be personally responsible for every bit of matter that goes into the section.

"At that time all of it must be censored and passed by the Student-Publication Board. A rigid ruling demands this of the student life department. We want all the inside dope we can get as soon as possible."

About twenty-five pages, more than in the 1926 book, will be given to the section, which will feature "digs" and truths on Nebraska students. Some original cartoons and many snapshots and pictures will make it more interesting than ever before.

As every division of the book will be improved this year, it is the idea to make a better Student Life section than ever. Hence, the plea for more copy and better Student Life material.

DEBATERS MEET KANSAS AGGIES

Question of Farm Relief to Be Discussed Here This Saturday

University of Nebraska debaters will clash with a team from Kansas State Agricultural college on the question of farm relief here Saturday afternoon this week.

With the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which they are debating, already past both the Senate and the House, the topic holds greater current interest than any question argued in recent years by Nebraska debaters. The question to be debated is "Resolved: That the essentials of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bills should be enacted into Federal law."

Nebraska will have the affirmative in the debate which will be a no-decision affair as has been the custom in intercollegiate debating in recent years. The Kansas State negative team will stop off here on their return from a debate with the University of South Dakota at Vermillion, at which Professor H. Adelbert White, Nebraska debate coach, will act as a single expert judge. The Nebraska negative team will not get into action until March 18 when they will meet Grinnell college.

Many New Men Speaking for Nebraska will be David Fellman, '29, Omaha; Lloyd L. Speer, '30, Superior; and Evert M. Hunt, '28, Lincoln. The affirmative alternate is John P. Jensen, '28, Blair. Although Hunt is the only speaker who has represented Nebraska in forensics before, the team is rapidly rounding into shape under the intensive training going on in the "Think-Shop," University debate seminar.

Evert M. Hunt spoke for Nebraska in the debate on parliamentary government with South Dakota this year. David Fellman is a former Omaha Central debater, with several seasons of successful high school debating behind him. Lloyd L. Speer is the only freshman to make either of the debate teams this year. He represented the strong Superior high school team in the state debate conference while in high school.

John "Jug" Brown, captain-elect of the 1927 Cornhusker football team, who received a broken nose in the Oklahoma Aggie-Nebraska basketball game last night, "Jug" has been going great all season as the running mate of Captain Clark Smaha, and this injury will probably keep the Nebraska forward out of the game for some time.

MILITARY DRILL ISSUE DISCUSSED

Bill To Abolish Compulsory Military Drill Given Grilling By Interested Parties

DEBATE LASTS 3 HOURS

House Roll 500, which would abolish compulsory military training at the University of Nebraska, received a thorough grilling Friday night before the education committee of the house representatives when the supporters of compulsory drill and those who would see it wiped from the curriculum of the university, debated for three hours before the committeemen and an audience that taxed the capacity of the improvised house chamber.

At the end of three hours of discussion, Chairman Troy L. Davis called a halt to the committee discussion on this bill. Representative Frank Wells, of Jefferson county, who introduced the bill in the House, introduced the Rev. Ervino Inglis; T. F. A. Williams, Lincoln attorney; Mrs. Clara B. Clayton; Homer Kyle; and J. F. Moredek. These supporters of the bill were given three quarters of an hour to present their arguments.

The Reverend Mr. Inglis declared that the objection to military training in the university was not the drill feature of the course but that students were compelled to submit to the teaching "that war is necessary and unavoidable and cannot be prevented." He said that enough signers had been obtained that a referendum vote could be taken.

Mrs. Clayton, who spoke for the women signers of the petition, attacked military training from the peace standpoint, and Honer Kyle delved into the legal aspects of the case.

Frazier Heads Opponents

The leading opponents of the bill were C. C. Frazier, state commander of the American Legion; Frank D. Eager, of Lincoln; Municipal court judge, E. B. Chappell; and Mrs. C. E. McGlasson of Lincoln. State Commander Frazier spoke of the need of a national defense system, and Mr. Eager followed up by declaring that the bill was not designed to give students a chance to choose their own courses but directed to the National Defense Act.

Judge Chappell said that the drill did not interfere with students who were working their way through university and told of his own experiences. A dozen or more persons took part in the arguments before Chairman Davis stopped the hearing.

First Term Summer School Courses Announced By Extension Department

Classes for the first term of summer school at the University of Nebraska will begin June 6 and extend to July 15, according to the preliminary announcement issued by the extension department. The second term will follow immediately and continue until August 26. This will leave a period of approximately three weeks between the termination of the summer sessions and the opening of the regular term in the fall.

Summer courses will be offered in the following colleges; Graduate, Arts and Science, Agriculture, Engineering, Law, Teachers, Pharmacy, Business Administration, Dentistry, and in the School of Fine Arts and the School of Journalism. The Summer Sessions offer excellent opportunities to all classes of students, undergraduates, and graduates, to continue their studies along academic lines during vacation periods with a minimum loss of time from their regular occupations. The sessions will be of particular value to the teachers being designed to permit them to meet the new certification requirements and at the same time aid in earning additional credit hours as will lead to a college degree. Present students may shorten the time required to get their degree by attending the summer session.

In the field of supervision and school administration unusual opportunities are given to make contact with some of the most outstanding educators in America. Among those who will offer special courses at the summer session are: Dr. William H. Kirkpatrick, Teachers College, Columbia University, will give a series of general lectures and have charge of the course in the Philosophy of Education two hours a day for two weeks during the second summer term. Dr. Kirkpatrick is at the present time on a trip around the world, visiting and lecturing in various educational institutions. His experiences on this trip will be made the basis for some of his lectures.

Dr. Arthur F. Harman, Superintendent of Montgomery County, Alabama, is the leading educational expert

WRITERS GUILD HEAR STUDENTS

Representatives of University Publications Are Main Speakers of Meeting

JONES IS FIRST SPEAKER

At the meeting of the Nebraska Writers' Guild, at the Lincoln hotel Saturday afternoon, representatives of the staffs of university publications had a large part in the program. W. F. Jones, Jr., McCook, editor of the 1927 Cornhusker, the first speaker of the afternoon spoke on "Editing a University Year Book." "The financing of the book is one of its big problems," he declared. "It involves $25,000 each year. Most of the revenue comes from the $4.50 subscriptions. The organizations, military and athletic departments, pay for their sections, and the advertising firms pay for the rest.

In the summer the theme is planned, in the fall the staff is selected and the subscription campaign is held. The biggest work comes in January in collecting all the copy and arranging about the pictures," Mr. Jones pointed out.

Cejnar Gives Ideas

William Cejnar, Omaha, editor of The Daily Nebraskan, told of "The Troubles of a University Editor." "The paper presents the daily life of the students," he said, "but the appeal is entirely local.

"The college editor can't get away from his public for he has to attend classes," he declared. "The best way is to come out fearlessly in what you have to say." John Boyer, Pawnee City, editor of the Awgwan, discussed "Editing a Humorous Magazine." "The policy of originality has been adopted," he suggests, "and it has some of the foremost writers of the university. This publication has the added troubles of cartoons. One of the troubles is to keep clear of the matter that the censors won't like and yet get the public wants."

DEADLINE SET FOR PICTURES

Fraternity and Sorority Members Must Return Studio Prints By Wednesday

Fraternity and sorority members who have not returned their studio prints to Townsend's or Hauck's must do so within the next four days. If proofs are not returned by Wednesday night with the selection of each student, the studios will make the selection and that picture will go on the organization panel. This ultimatum is necessary because the panels must be sent to the engravers by the first of the week.

All other copy on the fraternity and sorority sections is in and the only thing holding up the printers is the panels which must be engraved as soon as possible. The organization layout will be different this year, featuring the picture of the house and a cut of the pin on the pages.

The editorial staff is calling for copy from other organizations on the campus who have reserved sections. Printing has begun and the goal of the staff is to have everything in by the 15th of March, which includes all copy and all pictures to the engraver. That is necessary for more time will be given the binders for binding the book this year.
