have been moved from the three main floors of the old museum building. All the cases that belong in the mineral gallery have been installed, as have most of those for the rock gallery. Some of the material has been placed in the wall cases lining the halls but the arrangement of this cannot be completed until all specimens have been moved over and until the museum staff has time to display it properly.

Most of the office equipment has been moved, and the bookcases and books and some of the other material for the library have been moved, and the bookcases and books and some of the other material for the library have been moved and are now being properly arranged. The seats for the large lecture room are expected soon and when these arrive this room will be in readiness for Sunday afternoon lectures and other large meetings.

A very large room in the basement is devoted to the display of the museum's many collections of birds. The cases are now arranged in a definite series about ten feet apart. Nearly all of the other collections which are to be displayed in the basement rooms have been moved, but as yet most of them have not been permanently installed.

COUNCIL DOES NOT ACT ON PARTY LIMIT

mittie early in February to every fraternity and sorority on the campus. The questionnaire related to the discussed issues of representative parties and Varsity dances.

Several Appear Before Council Tom Elliott, of the Council athletic committee reported on investigation regarding student representation on the athletic board.

The recent ruling that no parties should be held on the nights that varsity parties have been scheduled gave cause for several members of campus organizations to come before the council requesting that they be permitted to deviate from the ruling in view of the fact that they had planned parties for this Saturday night, the same date that has been set for the St. Patrick Varsity. These requests were declared invalid since the ruling has been announced in the Daily Nebraskan and in the Lincoln papers, and presidents of the different organizations were given due warning of such a probable move.

To waive the ruling in favor of these requests would be to relinquish it when put to its first actual test. Every possible caution is being taken to insure Varsity parties being as representative as possible.

CHURCH WORKERS BRING RICE HERE

Prominent Oklahoma Clergyman Will Have Fall Schedule During Three Day Visit Here

The Federation of Church Workers, with the cooperation of the United Religious Campus council is bringing Dr. John A. Rice, prominent clergyman of Tulsa, Oklahoma, to the city next week. He will, no doubt be able to help students to solve social problems as well as to help them in interpreting the Bible in such a way as to secure real spiritual help.

Dr. Rice will have a full schedule during his three-day stay at this campus, if tentative plans are carried out. According to this program, he will speak at the Vespers Tuesday at five followed by a round-table discussion at seven. On Wednesday, he will speak at the World Forum a noon lead a talk and discussion group at four, and, perhaps give an address at seven. He will speak at a convocation Thursday at eleven, address the Ag College Forum at noon, and give a talk and discussion at four. A dinner will probably be given in his honor Thursday evening.

Dr. Rice is the father of Prof. J. A. Rice, of the Classics Department of the University. He is pastor of the Methodist church of Tulsa, and is prominent in religious circles, being an especial authority on the Old Testament. He was formerly professor of Bible in the Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas.

Model Finished For First Museum Panel

The model for the first mural panel for the new museum has been completed and the painting of the panel will soon be done by Elizabeth Dolan. This panel will depict a glyptodont, a prehistoric animal which was nine feet long, and fifty-two inches wide across the back.

H. W. CALDWELL, PASSES AWAY

tions of the alumni much greater than most University professors. It was seldom that the older alumni called at the office without inquiring about Professor Caldwell.

"The affection extended to him was the result of admiration for him as a scholar and professor and the comradeship and concern that he gave to a great majority of his students. I can just recall when Professor Caldwell was one of the regular speakers at football rallies. I have heard some of the older alumni relate how he used to join with them in their celebrations of football victory. I think it may be truthfully said that Professor Caldwell will always occupy a prominent place in the memory of all who knew him."

Fossler Comments

Another expression of the regard and esteem in which Professor Caldwell has been held was made by Laurence Fossler, professor of Germanic languages who was intimately acquainted with Professor Caldwell during student days as well as in their service on the University faculty. Professor Fossler says:

"I have known Professor Caldwell forty years or more. I knew him as a student and was a member of the same literary society as he was. He was just one class ahead of me.

"He was always very active in student activities. In the old days, he always took quite a part in our simple sports, despite the handicap of his size. He always took an active part in the literary society as well as being a conscientious student.

"He enjoyed the love and respect of his students to a very marked degree. In the rising tide of historical study, he got his inspiration from Professor G. E. Howard, who is still living. Professor Caldwell gave up his principalship at Lincoln high school to pursue graduate studies at John Hopkins university. He came back as an assistant to Professor Howard, moving up in that department until Professor Howard was called to Leland Stanford. On Howard's going to California, the department was separated into European and American history divisions. Professor Caldwell was given charge of American history.

Interested In Social Sciences

"Professor Caldwell was interested not only in history but also in the social sciences, jurisprudence, etc. Quite a number of courses which he introduced into American history were separated into other departments as the University grew. In that way he may be regarded as having sarked the differentiation of the different departments of the University.

"His students, now scattered all over the country, were greatly attached to him. They thought he was their friend and advisor. Professor Caldwell did his work honestly, conscientiously, and efficiently."

Professor Caldwell's services as a teacher were augmented by extensive writings. Among his published works were: History of the United States 1815-1861; Studies in History; A Survey of American History; Some Great American Legislators; Life of Henry Clay; Expansion in the United States; and Source History of the United States. He was engaged in writing a new book when his health failed him several years ago. He has also written valuable reference works on education and civil government in Nebraska.

Travelled in Europe

Travel in Europe furnished practically the only break in Professor Caldwell's active service to the University until his retirement in 1922. He traveled in Europe in 1911-12, working in London several months with material on the vice-admiralty courts in the colonies. He belonged to the American Historical association, the American Political Science association, and was secretary of the Nebraska State Historical society from 1891 to 1907.

Professor Caldwell married Miss Lisbeth Barnes at Baltimore, Md., on June 25, 1890. Final funeral arrangements are being held pending his wife's return from California where she has been spending the past few months for her health. The body is at Castle, Roper, and Mathews.

Miss Shanafelt Has Articles Printed

Two stories by Marjorie Shanafelt, secretary to Dr. Barbour, have recently been printed in well known magazines. One entitled "The Wanderer" appeared in a recent issue of Nature Magazine, and one called "The Plant That Is An Animal", illustrated with pictures from real life, is printed in The Flower Grower.

Have You a Long Narrow Foot?

I have and I have the most terrible time trying to get fitted, but today I walked into Speier's to discover shoes as narrow as my feet. They are good looking, too. There is a clever sports model with round toes and box heels in rose blush calfskin and cherry patent leather. There you will find the shoe for any occasion, the all around shoe that you can wear for the campus or to a tea, the spike heeled slipper in blond and parchment kid for dress, and the strictly sports shoe. Then, too, the department has the entire mezzanine floor and it is so convenient to take your time in choosing, especially when shoes are temptingly priced at $7.50 and $8.50. Stop in at Speier's and pick out YOUR spring footwear.

A Young Girl's Fancy

(First Series)

In the spring a young girl's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of clothes; Coats and suits and dainty dresses Expressed in the newest pose.

Down to Speier's she'll blithly wander Pick a suit for campus wear From the tweeds and checks and mixtures Tailored blue? She'll find it there.

Next she'll ask to look at dresses, And from all the world of hues—Blush rose, spring green, blue, and tan—Gracious! 'twill be hard to choose.

Coats of college lines she'll find there That she'll want to be her own; Add a blouse just for good measure, Have this new wardrobe sent home. —Speier's

Walk a Block, Save Money!

We've been going to Lewis' for food after a party all the time, but we never thought of going there for lunch. Today I happened onto one of their luncheon menus and from now on I walk a little and save money. Virginia baked ham, potatoes, and rolls and coffee and mince pie for thirty cents! Can you do better any place in town? We couldn't so tomorrow we are going down to Lewis for lunch. Walk a block or so farther and eliminate a twenty minute wait for service, isn't such a bad idea. They have a special student lunch, too, for a quarter, and that sounds just as good. And by the way, Mr. Lewis says that anytime you have a new idea for a fountain dish, tell him about it and they'll be glad to fix it for you.

The Hat Of Many Colors

I learned a new word today—compose, which is being used a lot this year in the best millinery circles. It means colors in combination, either three shades of the same color or harmoniously contrasted colors. I must tell you about a compose hat I saw at Ben Simon's. It's a close, black hat of hair braid, but the UPPER crown is of narrow ribbon, red and green and sand, whipped together in rows. That hat would just set off that new suit of yours, Elice, but I must tell Sarah about those new flower trimmed felts and novelty straws at $5.00 and $6.50. Those in the orchid shades are perfect for anyone who has a blond complexion like hers.

If You Have A Date Or-- if you haven't, and want to have an awfully good time this week end, you'd better plan to see the "Easy Mark." The ups and downs of Sam Crane (the easy mark) in an oil deal into which he is lured by a pair of smooth villains will keep you laughing all evening. It is a story of a small town dreamer with ambitions and the plan ran in New York for a solid season. The comedy, which is treated in an extremely human manner, is being produced this Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings with the usual Friday and Saturday matinees at 3 o'clock and 2:30 respectively. Tickets, one dollar for the evening performance and seventy-five cents for the matinees, are on sale at Ross P. Curtice Co. Better get yours now.
