TICKETS ON SALE MONDAY
Reserved Seats at a Dollar
Each Will Be Available at
Orpheum Next Monday

Two new skits have been selected by the University Night committee to be produced at the University Night program to be given at the Orpheum Theatre, Monday evening, March 28. There are to be more skits presented this year than have ever been used before.

One of the new skits accepted is an Apache dance, which will be produced by Albro L. Lundy, a member of the wrestling team, and a partner. This skit was accepted after a try-out before the committee in the Temple Theatre. The latest skit accepted was written and will be produced by the Silver Serpents. It is constructed on the theme of the "Student Prince" popular musical comedy.

Rehearsals Have Begun
This makes all of the curtain skits needed for the program which is expected to last at least 2 hours and 20 minutes. With the show less than two weeks off, rehearsals have started in earnest. Plans are being made for a dress rehearsal which will effect all organizations participating in the program. Definite announcement will be made in The Daily Nebraskan as soon as arrangements have been made.

Tickets for University Night will go on sale at 10 o'clock Monday morning, March 21, at the Orpheum Theater box office. There will be only one performance of this production, as the number of students taking part is so great that it is impossible to get them all together for more than one presentation of the program. Seats may be reserved at $1.00 each with the exception of the last ten rows of balcony seats which can be had for seventy-five cents. It is expected from past experience that the house will practically sell out the first day the tickets are made available. There is no limit set on the number of seats that may be reserved by one person, and organizations can reserve blocks of seats if they wish.

PROM TICKETS SELL RAPIDLY

Interest Shown in Tradition to Be Revived Friday After
Five Year Lapse

PLANS NOW COMPLETE

With ticket sales rising daily and all plans complete, the Junior-Senior Prom committee stated yesterday after its meeting that everything was in readiness for the party Friday evening. This is the first time a Prom has been given by the juniors for five years, and a large crowd is expected to be present to revive the event, which before the war was the greatest of the season on the University of Nebraska campus.

All fraternity representatives of the committee will meet tonight at 7 p. m. at the Delta Tau Delta house where Louis Turner, in charge of ticket sales, will check in sold tickets. Tickets will be sold however, up until Friday by the representatives and at the College and Co-Op Book Stores.

Prom Girl to be Presented
A new idea will be introduced at Nebraska with this Prom, the selection of a Prom Girl, which is causing considerable interest in the party. The co-ed who receives the honor will be presented by Robert Stevens, president of the senior class, at an intermission during the Prom.

Tracy Brown's Oklahomaans of Omaha, and Beck's orchestra of Lincoln, will furnish the music for the evening, with no intermission except at the time when the Prom Girl is to be announced. Decorations for the party have arrived and the decorator expects to start work today on the Coliseum. The plans show that the objectionable feature of a large floor will be done away with and that lighting features never before tried in the Coliseum will be incorporated.

RUGH WILL SPEAK AT FORUM TODAY

Secretary of Student Y. M. C. A. in China Will Discuss Recent
Happenings There

"What's Happening in China and Why," is to be the subject of Arthur Rugh's lecture to be delivered at the World Forum luncheon at noon today. Mr. Rugh, who for many years has been in charge of the student Y. M. C. A. in China, comes to the University highly recommended and as one of the most renowned speakers of the year.

He has traveled all over China, visiting the universities and colleges and has acquired a broad knowledge of the conditions of student life in the Orient. Mr. Rugh has returned from his travels but recently and students are very fortunate in being able to hear him.

"Mr. Rugh is a very competent talker and will bring some excellent ideas concerning the problems of the East," Mr. Hayes, secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., stated yesterday.

Tickets can be secured at the offices of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. and from members of the World Forum Committee.

Library Cataloguer Resigns Position

Miss Marjorie Bowers, who has been senior cataloguer for the University of Nebraska Library since September, 1925, has turned in her resignation and it became effective Tuesday.

Her mother's illness was given as the cause of her resignation. Miss Bowers came here from Gary, Ind.

Former Superintendent in School
John M. Matzen, former state superintendent of schools, who has held the office for several terms, is now taking courses in the University as a preparation for future graduation work.

Conjecture as to Possible "Prom Girl" Candidates Heard on Campus

With the date for selection of the Junior-Senior Prom Girl drawing near, talk of possible candidates from among women members of the Senior class is taking an important place on the campus. The Prom Girl idea has never before been tried on this campus, but if interest increases as it has in the last few days, it will probably remain a custom and perhaps in later years will rank with the Honorary Colonel and the May Queen.

From a list of 300 possible candidates, in fact all of the senior women, already favorites have been reduced to about twenty in number. Talk around Social Sciences and the Silver Moon yesterday was running high and the names of possible Prom Girls was limited to one-fifth of the original number.

Voting for the Prom Girl will be limited to men attending the event Friday night, but it is a possibility, if not a fact, that the feminine guests will control the voting. The balloting will be done directly on the Prom tickets; the votes will be counted by

Mural Painting Series Is Begun In Morrill Hall

The first mural painting of a series which is to line the wall cases of the hall of the first floor of Morrill Hall is nearly completed and the second will be begun today. This scene depicts a glyptodon, a huge pre-historic animal which was nine feet long and fifty-two inches wide across the back, of which the armadilla is a modern representative.

This mural painting is being done by Elizabeth Dolan, an artist of New York City. It is done in colors, and much of the scene is in relief so as to make the parts more effective, and some frescoing is also being done on it. A model of a large glyptodon, which is in the British Museum in London, is displayed in the foreground of the case, making a very attractive exhibit in conjunction with the mural painting in the background.

Display Cases Being Filled
The long stretches of wall cases along the walls of the hall are rapidly being filled with permanent displays. The long succession of cases is a great advantage as specimens can be arranged in organic or chronological series which give an accurate and more unified conception of the exhibits. An interesting collection displayed in one of these wall cases is the anthropological display, which attracted much attention Sunday afternoon among the visitors at the Museum. The skeletons of the domestic cow and horse, with which the Museum was started more than thirty years ago, are exhibited in a prominent place.

The front legs of a civa thurium and a huge giraffe from India are some new specimens which are now on display. Another specimen which is quite new, and is now being exhibited for the first time, is a very large pair of tusks of the Elephas ganesi from India. This is mounted on a mahogany base and is shown in Elephant Hall.

University Women Are Acting As Mannequins At "L'Echo de Paris"

Seven university girls are featuring a spring style-show "L'Echo de Paris" at Gold's department store this week. They are: Eleanor Borson, Myrtle Call, Ruth Broughfield, Pauline Campbell, Ruth Muirhead, Gladys Reed, Bernie Pringle, Leona Guse.

There are many different types of costumes being modeled, including sport, afternoon, and evening attires. The style show is held on the second floor of Gold's store where a platform has been constructed. The platform is decorated with rose and blue hangings. The girls promenade in view of the patrons, displaying the attractive models to the best effect.

All these styles are patterns, which may be obtained from McCall's magazine. The display is especially interesting to girls who do their own sewing.

The style-show will be held each afternoon this week at two o'clock in the ladies ready-to-wear department at Gold's.

STORRS SPEAKS TO ENGINEERS

Electric Railway Expert Views
Transportation Industry
Optimistically

SAYS IT HAS BIG FUTURE

Approximately seventy-five men were present at a dinner meeting of the Nebraska Section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. There were several Nebraska alumni at the meeting, among whom were Morris Long, '17, who is now with the Bell Laboratories Incorporated, of New York City, Fred A. Brooks, '23, also with the Bell Laboratories, and Lucius S. Storrs, '90 and '04, manager of the American Electric Railway Association, who was the speaker of the evening.

Mr. Storrs spoke on "The Problems of the Electric Railway Industry." He has been connected with the transportation business for some time on the engineering side, the operating side, and the financial side.

"No city in the United States can grow to considerable size without an adequate public transportation system," he declared. He made the statement that the street cars in the United States transport annually seven times the population of the world.

Three Mistakes Cause Trouble
He mentioned three fatal mistakes that have caused the electric railway industry a great amount of trouble. They are the building of many lines for which there is no need, the fallacy of the fixed fare, and the use of private automobiles for urban transportation.

"Fortunately the motor bus is filling a very great need," he said in speaking of their use as means of public transportation. He expressed the belief that they would never be run in competition to the street cars, stating that there is only 4 percent less electric railway trackage now than there was at the peak in 1917.

Busses and Electric Cars Used
"The electric railway companies are now considering themselves transportation companies and are using both motor busses and electric cars," he said.

Mr. Storrs stated that he believed the future offered great possibilities for the electric railway industry, because the traffic problems would not permit the use of private automobiles to any great extent in the large cities. "The big problem confronting the electric railways," he declared.

Copy For 1927 Cornhusker Is Still Missing

A number of organizations have not turned in their list of members and officers to the 1927 Cornhusker. Four representatives of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company are in Lincoln this week, interviewing University students who will be graduated in the spring, and who are interested in entering the field of work with telephone companies. The representatives, three of whom are graduates of the University of Nebraska, spoke to eighty students in Social Science 302 Tuesday on various phases of the telephone industry.

Mr. Brachen, of the Northwestern Bell company, Mr. S. L. Lambert, assistant to the president of the N. W. Bell, Mr. George Bickly of the personnel department of that company, and Mr. Long of the Bell Laboratories, New York, are the men who are here in the interest of the Bell company. Y.M.C.A. SECRETARY SPEAKS AT VESPERS

C. D. Hayes Tells of Experiences
While in China Under Auspices of Y. M. C. A.

Anecdotes about his life in China comprised most of Mr. C. D. Hayes' talk at the vesper service yesterday evening. Mr. Hayes is general secretary of the University Y. M. C. A. and has spent several years in China under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Before telling his Chinese stories the speaker related a certain episode of his boyhood days in Virginia. There was a patch of woods through which he was forced to pass at night on his way home. Although he knew these odds thoroughly in the day time he was never quite sure of himself in the dark. One night he lost his way and after floundering about he lay on the ground and looked at the star-lit sky. Just at that moment he saw the tip of an old tree and his sense of direction came back instantly. Sometimes we are lost in the intricate by-paths of our lives and we struggle uselessly until exhausted when we at last find the path again.

China Faces New Day
"There is a new day dawning in China," Mr. Hayes said. "Never before in the history of that country has there been such an intense spirit of patriotism. The foreign ambassadors, however, are slow to recognize this change and try to carry on their relations as before."

At this point Mr. Hayes said that the British ambassador was determined to find out more about Chinese conditions before he formulated his policy.

The speaker's second story was of a young prefect in one of the Chinese cities who at a very young age won great honors. This young scholar was well versed in the doctrines of Confucius. With all his accomplishments and honors life was unsatisfactory to him. He took advantage of the Revolution to go to a Buddhist monastery in southern China to see if the new religion had anything satisfactory to offer him. It was then that Mr. Hayes secured the young Chinese man as an English teacher. In the course of their reading they translated a Chinese version of Pilgrims Progress. They were working on the part wherein the Christian is praying. The Chinese teacher told his American pupil that he could not understand prayer. Mr. Hayes prayed with him and at last the heart of the seeker found the satisfaction for which it had been searching.

Helen Clarke led the meeting. A longer meditation than usual was held and the girls were urged to utilize the time to scrutinize themselves.

MEANS ADVISES PREPAREDNESS AT CONVOCATION

United States Senator from Colorado Describes Results
Of Past Unpreparedness

SPANISH WAR VETERAN

Senator Means Now National
Commander of Spanish
War Veterans

"Your flag is your protection and yours to defend," declared Senator Rice W. Means, United States Senator from Colorado, in his address on "Our National Defense" delivered at University convocation Tuesday morning. Professor Grummam, in charge of University Convocations, introduced the Commander of William Lewis Camp of the Veterans Bureau who introduced Senator Means to a large group of students and residents of Lincoln.

Senator Means, who is National Commander of the United States Spanish War Veterans, is making a tour of the country in this capacity and is visiting here through the auspices of the local chapter of that organization. While in the city, he will be entertained by the United States War Veterans and the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Civil War Fought for Union
"The great Civil War, some say, was brought on because of slavery," stated Senator Means, "but quite to the contrary for as President Lincoln said, 'The Union, it must be preserved.' A sacrifice was made then to preserve this union and it is up to us to fulfill our destiny. We would not today have the opportunities we do if it had not been saved. We all have war. Service men know the horrors of war and are in favor of doing away with it but we must defend our nation."

The G. A. R., which was established soon after the Civil War, has done a great deal towards teaching patriotism in the schools. They established Flag Day in order to teach reverence for the flag but they failed in one thing, that of keeping a National Defense. The Indian wars that followed after the Civil War found not such a great need for a standing army and after that military facilities began to disappear and it wasn't until the Spanish-American War that the real need was felt.

"Great men are dating our greatness from the day we entered the Spanish-American War," Senator Means declared, "for it was there we learned the necessity of self defense." President McKinley held back from declaring war against Spain because he realized our unpreparedness and it was not until the sinking of the battleship Maine and the nationwide cry of the people arose that he declared war.

It was the demand of the people to aid suffering neighbors that prompted the action on the part of the United States. It was not for aggressiveness. Power did not cause it. America has never taken the initiative in any war but has clashed to defend our rights and our people.

Great Loss of Life
"The loss of lives in the first year of the Spanish-American War exceeded the loss in the first year of the World War and yet there was only one-tenth the number under (Continued on Page Two.)"

Every year, students graduated from the School of Engineering and the College of Business Administration are placed with the Bell company. Prof. T. T. Bullock, of the College of Business Administration is chairman of employment for that school, and is instrumental in helping graduates obtain positions with organizations in various lines of industry.

There are at present, sixteen graduates of the Business Administration college engaged in the field of telephone work. This field, according to Dean LeRossignol is an ever-widening one, and the telephone industry a promising line of endeavor for university graduates.

Following are the names of the graduates who are employed by telephone companies in various parts of the country: Merritt L. Chaffee, '18, Roger A. Jenkins, '18, George D. Driver, '20, L. H. Redelfs, '20, Arno J. Wessel, '20, M. V. Johnson, '21, D. M. McClellan, '21, J. W. Redelfs, '21, D. H. Mitchell, '22, H. A. Willey, '23, Ernest A. Andre, '24, J. M. Hawke, '24, A. W. Stunkle, '24, Milton P. Beechner, '25, Henry G. Egger, '25, and Merle M. Hale, '25. Of these men, nine are located in Omaha, and three in Lincoln.

MEETING IS HELD ON BETTER HOMES

Dr. Gray, Miss Brown and Miss Fedde
Attend Better Homes Conference at Des Moines

Dr. Greta Gray, research and home management specialist; Miss Mary-Ellen Brown, state leader of home demonstration work; and Miss Margaret Fedde, chairman of the home economics department, attended the Better Homes Conference held last week at Des Moines. The conference was under the auspices of the Federated Women's Clubs.

The object of the meeting was to follow the work of the survey of equipment made by the Federated Women's Clubs in the past year. A great number of exhibits of household plans and furnishings were on display.

Among the more prominent speakers was Ross Crane, noted decorator, who showed the furnishing of a living room for six hundred dollars. An interesting part of the demonstration was the noticeable use of very strong colors, the tendency was to use less of gray. Figures also seemed to predominate.

General Lord, who has charge of the United States budget, spoke in terms of household budgets. Mrs. Sherman, president of the Federated Women's Clubs, spoke on equipment of various kinds.
