At The Theatres

Why do producers call some pictures "Fashions for Women," at the Lincoln instead of being a fashion show, as the title would indicate is a smart comedy take off on what happens in Paris when introducing a new mode. Raymond Hutton, who played opposite Wallace Berry in "Behind the Front" and "We're in the Navy Now," takes the part of a high minded publicity agent who gets results, and does not care by what method. Esther Ralston is a chorus girl who looks like a fashion beauty and when the beauty disappears, Hutton gives her a chance at being a mannequin. Things run smooth until some of the old flames fail to note the deception. Style show or no style show, Esther goes after her man and gets him.

When speaking of mystery all incidents are rather trivial compared with the happenings in "The Gorilla," playing this week at the Lyric.

The Pierre Watkin Players have had this famous thriller in contemplation for some time and they are giving it an unusually fine production.

Ralf Hardole and Alex Campbell do the two famous detectives, Mulligan and Garrity with a vengeance that is most comic. This mirth relaxes the tense chill of the story which outstrips any two mystery

Joan Crawford, the champion Black Bottom artist of the Pacific Coast, is featured in "The Taxi Dancer," at the Rialto, the first half. A young girl goes to New York to make good, and finally takes to dancing so as to be able to pay doctor bills for a sick friend who has gone blind from bad bootleg. She meets many people and is a taxi dancer in a night club, she becomes involved in a murder and has some time trying to evade the law.

"Rubber Tires," at the Colonial is a good natured comedy of a family who start to California in an old car bought from a junk dealer. The dealer sees an ad announcing that the company will pay $10,000 for their car of serial number 1, and this is the car he has sold the family, so he goes after it. There is a young hero, who goes after the family also and has a runaway auto.

The Liberty offers a song, dance and patter bill of unusual quality. Gertrude and Boys sing, dance, and tumble. Miss Primrose does song and patter. Forbes, Prout and company are an act with an established reputation introducing new steps and songs. Wally James and Helen Sinclair do "Taxigabbling," the way you would like it. O'Donnell and Blair are the funniest pair of comedians that have graced the Liberty stage for some time.

"The Night Bride" at the Orpheum, is a racy comedy of a girl who starts out to marry one man, finds him in another woman's arms and sort of resents the intrusion, at least until after the wedding is over. The wedding march is a wild affair, with cops and comedy aplenty. Sort of reminding of the life that is to come. But like all good pictures, everything comes out all right in the last fade-out.

Dr. R. A. Gartner, head of the division of organic and biological chemistry in the University of Minnesota conferred with Dr. M. J. Blish, chemist for the agricultural experiment station, early last week in regard to some problems involving the colloidal properties of wheat and baking problems.

APRIL ISSUE OF MAGAZINE READY

The issue is thickly illustrated with pictures of former Farmers Fairs. The pictures include views of the Midway, various floats, the Yellow Dog, the pagents, the Snorpheum, and the Follies. There is also a picture of the present Farmers Fair Board, who have the production of the Ninth Annual Farmers Fair under their control.

Extra copies are for sale at the Finance Office of the College of Agriculture for those that desire extra copies to send home. The magazine is printed in colors and makes a very fine souvenir.

Museum Notes

Childs Frick, Research Associate in Paleontology of the American Museum of Natural History, has spent the last two days here visiting the University Museum. He has been going over much of the material, but is especially interested in the specimens of fossil horses.

Mr. Frick lauded many of the Museum's collections and spoke highly of some of the splendid specimens.

Mrs. S. R. McKelvie has made three paintings on slabs of slate showing the conception of the Java Ape Man as imagined and built up by the scientists from a skull and part of a thigh bone, and these paintings are displayed in the Museum in the anthropological collection, with a model of this skull. These paintings are done in color, and Mrs. McKelvie is now working on others which belong in the series.

The original specimens of the Java Ape Man were discovered in Java in 1892 in an old river deposit in Java, and are now in the Teylo Museum at Haarlem in Holland. The University Museum has only a model of the skull, which is about as large as that of a small man, and has immense ape-like brow-ridges instead of the usual human forehead.

The second mural painting for the wall cases of the Museum has been completed by Elizabeth Dolan of New York. This depicts various fossil turtles, and models and specimens of them will be displayed in the foreground of the same case.

The third mural painting has been begun, and is a panorama of western Nebraska showing the two famous hills, University and Museum, which have been the source of much material for Museums throughout the world, and glimpses of the Niobrara river. The fossil animals from that locality will be mounted and displayed in this long wall case when the painting is finished.

Weseen Praised For Radio Course in Business English and Letter Writing

From Canada to Texas and from every section of Nebraska and some of the nearby states, Prof. Maurice Weseen, of the College of Business Administration has received letters congratulating him on the radio course in Business English and Letter Writing which he closed Tuesday evening.

Twenty lectures were broadcast from the University studio over station KFAB, at eight o'clock Tuesday evenings. Twenty-one persons registered for credit in the course, while numbers of others followed the work for personal benefit.

From practically every walk of life people have written to Professor Weseen commending his work. One elderly woman writes, "Your radio lectures have been of material assistance in keeping my mind youthful. I am not to blame for having an old body, but I should be to blame for having an old soul."

Several teachers have written for a copy of the course, because, they said, they had found it so practical in their work in English.

A physician in Oklahoma writes that he tuned in one evening accidentally and became so interested in the lecture he wanted to get a copy of the entire course.

"You can never realize," writes another, "the pleasure and benefit derived from your lectures, by a daughter of a pioneer, whose opportunities for an education were limited. Rest assured that nothing short of a land slide will be able to keep me from the loud speaker next Tuesday at eight o'clock."

From Winnipeg, Canada, a man writes for the lessons, and is especially interested in that part of the course dealing with the pronunciation of words. He stated that he was asked daily to help two children with their spelling lessons and he wanted to be sure of the words before pronouncing them.

Several members of the Omaha police force are taking the work and Professor Weseen has a number of letters from them asking for individual help on some phase of the lessons.

This is the third year this course has been given and each year the number listening in and registering for credit in the course has materially increased.

Freshmen Numeral Men To Have Picture Taken

A picture of the freshmen basketball numeral men will be taken at 12:15 today at the Campus Studio. Since the numeral sweaters have not arrived yet it will be necessary for the men to borrow sweaters from the men who received the football awards.

The following men will report at the studio today: Beechner, Ralph; Calvert, Alfred; Grace, Harvel; Hansen, Erwin; Mileski, Pete; Toms, Howard; and White, Lloyd.

Prof. Boris V. Morkovin of Prague University spoke at the University Convocation at the Temple. The title of this illustrated lecture was "The Life and Creative Genius of Slavonic People."

Russell Kendall, Urbana, Ill., was elected president of the Block and Bridle Club at a meeting held in the club rooms of the organization in the judging pavilion. Daniel Seebad, Papillion, was elected Vice-president, Wendell Woodward, Overton, Secretary; Ed. Crowley, Cambridge, treas-

Miss Breen, buyer for Orkin's Smart Shop, is going east today and will return with many pretty things for the college maid. And who would feel right on Easter day without a brand new Easter bonnet?
I wouldn't I know. And you wouldn't either. No, of course not. So go down to Orkin's Millinery department now and pick out YOUR Easter hat.
For girls, as usual, you can always find the smartest things at Orkin's. Each hat is selected with a personal touch that makes its possession all the more delightful. There are no two hats alike, and not a factory model in the house.
So, don't forget! Stop at Orkin's.

We may be on the last lap of the school year, but it is not the least of all. In fact, as the point system so ably puts it, the entire time might be called one major activity after another. Bot don't let a little thing like that bother you. Just follow the column and you'll pull through.

Complete Your Wardrobe Tomorrow Because—

Orkin's smart shop for Women has just received the next summer release in Irene Castle and Nikro models in dresses and coats. And when the college girl slips into an Irene Castle dress she knows that she is well dressed.

So take tomorrow afternoon off to see their smart coats and frocks. Coats range from twenty-five to fifty dollars in price and dresses from thirty-five to sixty-five dollars. The predominating material and shade for the balance of the season and mid-summer wear is navy blue georgettes.

Just one more thing for spring is here and the out-of-doors is calling. Orkin's carry a complete line of riding breeches and boots.

Thinking of You Every Day

Mother and Dad! Your brother and your Sweetheart! Of course they are thinking of you EVERYDAY. And you? Well something during the day you usually find a minute to cram in a tiny thought about the folks at home, too.

The folks at home sort of take it for granted that you are thinking of them when the whirl of college life gets so much so that you haven't even a minute to write home and let them know that you are thinking.

Don't make them take you for granted this Easter time. You can't go home, but you can send a thoughtful little messenger—a greeting card—that will please the folks you left behind a lot. It takes so little of your time, and it means so much to them, if you drop in at George Bros. to make your selection.

Good News For Collegiate Legs

There is, in town, a most good looking type of hose that seems to have every advantage. They are made in three weights, chifon, service chifon, and service.

Both chifons are silk throughout. Now in many hose the heel is reinforced with lisle, and when they are washed the lisle shows through. But these hose are reinforced with silk, and when THEY are washed—why there isn't any lisle to show through.

They are long in the leg with very short tops—an extremely desirable item in this day of very short skirts. Last but not least, they are sold at the uniform price of $1.95 or a box of three pair for $5.50.

You'll find them at Magee's in all the new shades.
