HELLO DADS!

Every man who has a son or daughter in this institution will receive a copy of this paper asking him to visit the University on October 29 for Dad's Day. Approximately 5,000 letters were also mailed out this week, containing a personal invitation of the same kind. If these dads really knew what a day of pleasure awaited them, all 5,000 would want to be here.

Such a completely successful occasion is impossible, of course. Many dads cannot spare the time from their business to journey this far. Others are making sacrifices to give their sons and daughters a University education. These men feel that they are doing their children more good to stay at home and earn the "where-withal". This class of Dads, however, does not include the large majority, many of whom do not understand the true significance of Dad's Day, or they would be more interested in attending.

This annual occasion is not merely a football game, where young and old sit in the Stadium to watch Nebraska play Syracuse. That is the most advertised event of the week-end plans, because it has an undeniable appeal of entertainment. Perhaps that rule will draw many dads to Lincoln. The University welcomes even those Dads who attend for that purpose. But the University also hopes to change their attitudes before the day's activities are over.

When each dad boards the train for home and leaves his son or daughter he should have gained a more thorough understanding of the University, its ideals, and the part his children are playing in this extraordinarily large drama. To do this he must understand the workings of the University. This has been largely accomplished by the informative letter sent out earlier in the semester to parents, explaining the problems which confront the students, the liberties which they enjoy, the rules which govern them, and miscellaneous informative matter which should prove valuable to interested parents. This situation however, cannot be effectively explained on paper. But with the visits of the dads each fall and the mothers in the spring, what was hoped for in that letter may become a reality.

That is the serious side of the situation. Dad's Day, on the other hand, should be one of complete enjoyment and companionship between dads and students. Mix the two up, and Dad's Day will be beneficial and enjoyable for all concerned.

Have you noticed the notice column lately? Just about every honorary organization on the campus has called a meeting for this week or next. It looks like one of these last-minute calls to arms.

A PART OF US

Two college men, who had not seen each other for some time, recently met on the campus. One of them remarked, "Are you going to University this year, Sam? I haven't seen you for ages."

"No, I'm out at the Farm this year," Sam replied. "Dad owns a ranch out West, and when I graduate, he wants me to manage it. He thought I should know more about Agriculture, so I enrolled in the College of Agriculture."

The idea that the College of Agriculture is not connected with the University of Nebraska seems to exist, not only among students, but among many out-state residents.

The College of Business Administration, the College of Law, the College of Engineering, and others are divisions of the University. The College of Agriculture is included in the list. It is as much a part of the University as is the School of Journalism, or the School of Fine Arts.

The mis-conception exists, undoubtedly, because the College of Agriculture has its own campus, located nearly three miles from the rest of the school. Other universities have the agricultural buildings on the same campus with the rest of the buildings. There, it is easily seen that the College of Agriculture is a part of the University.

The term "Farm" should be discarded when speaking of the College of Agriculture. It is highly probable that it would soon become generally known that the College is just one of the Colleges comprising the University of Nebraska.

THE SPECTATOR

An event of moment occurred on Thursday which I venture to say was obscured by the Excitement over the alleged Honorary Societies; the which one must confess is a natural Condition of Affairs, but a pitiful one, for the Event I refer to, in my Opinion, carried more Weight than a Year's squabbling over the silly Honoraries. That Event was the publication in The Daily Nebraskan of a letter from two Russian students, Messrs. Sorokin and Mozer, in which it was set forth that three Negroes were refused Membership in the Cosmopolitan Club of this University.

Now it is not my Purpose to lift an Harangue against the Cosmopolitan Club, nor a paean in praise for the Negroes, for the Reason that I myself and I dare say a few Thousands of other Individuals are not aware of what the Cosmopolitan Club represents, or of its Nature and Function. But I bethought me when I read the letter of Messrs. Sorokin and Mozer, that here was a Matter of Moment the full Details of which should at once be brought to Light. From the context of the Remarks of the Russian gentlemen it may be inferred that the Cosmopolitan Club is open to Students regardless of Race or Religion; and if this be true then I am afraid that the Cosmopolitan Club is in a bad Way. But I do not propose to accept this View until word comes from the Officers of the Club the one way or the Other, for one must admit the Possibility that Messrs. Sorokin and Mozer are merely a pair of Bad Boys who are Peeved because their suggestions were not heeded. Yet if the Complainants have a just Grievance, and if it is truly based on the Fact that three Negroes were excluded from the Club because of their Race, then I am sorry to say that our College Community would measure up to the Level of the Gary, Indiana, high school, where the Fourteen Hundred Students but recently refused to attend their Classes because Negroes were allowed to attend the same School. And that, methinks, would indeed be a Sad Realization and a severe Shock, if we were to find ourselves in such a State of Barbarism.

Surely there is but one thing for the Officers of the Cosmopolitan Club to do; and that to come forth with an Explanation of the entire Affair.

As the Spectator I could not help observing that War has been Declared upon the Honorary Societies. For myself, I have little to say on the Matter. If the Honoraries were truly important things in College Life then I should certainly applaud the Council's plan to give a Trial for all such Organizations. But I have never been able to generate enough Enthusiasm about these Societies to care whether they lived or died, and while I confess a passing Interest in the Matters just recently brought out, I can not say that I am Stirred. In any Event, I should say that the Innocents Society should be investigated along with all Others, but I know, too, that such is probably unthinkable to the average Student Council member.

In this connection I might mention the Fact that a Representative Section in the College Yearbook has been announced, and I counsel the Freshmen not to allow themselves to be tricked into believing that the Cornhusker will really have a Section devoted to Representative Men and Women. Perhaps there will be the Photographs of ten men and women, but there will be no representative Students, for those curious Individuals have a Habit of hiding themselves from the Glare of the Public Eye, and some times they are hard to find.

During my alleged Illness I have not forgotten the Incomprehensibility. The following Poem is another Gem.

FUTILITY
Darting through the air
are birds
Flying black against a sun-flamed
Western line;
Mountains of silver mist stretch
Upward as if to clutch and hold
High Heaven.
Step on the gas, Rossy,
I'm hungry.

and a defensive passing game next week as a final touch before the intersectional game. "Speed" Hoffman, reserve halfback, has been showing rapid strides of improvement in the past week and is one of the fastest backs on breaking up passes and getting down under punts. Witte, Farley, and McBride are also showing up good on the defensive end of the game and were knocking down forward passes from the hands of the frosh in practice last night quite consistently.

scheduled to start at 9:30 in the morning and will last until eleven. Thomas Elliot, chairman of the event, stated yesterday. "We have outlined a series of events that will give the two classes a chance to show all they've got in all branches of activity," declared Elliot. "And we want to make this a scrape that these men will remember for years to come."

The alumni returning for the Homecoming game will be urged by the innocents to attend the olympics, as a part of the day's program for them. A space on the field will be set aside for the grads from which they will be able to view the proceedings with safety.

OCTOBER 29 IS DAD'S DAY

of the season. A special "Dads' section" has been reserved in the stadium. Students wishing to sit with their fathers in this section may trade in their tickets for seats in the special section. Since the victory over Georgetown last Saturday, Syracuse has been rated as one of the most powerful teams in the east.

Informal inspection trips around the campus are being arranged for Saturday morning. All classrooms will be open to Dads so that they may see the work that their son or daughter is doing, and the scholastic environment of the University of Nebraska.

"Dads will find it well worth their while to put aside their business problems and spend this day with their children at Nebraska," stated one dad who has attended the traditional Dads' Day for three years. "I consider it a pleasant duty to spend this day with my children in university, and learn of the current happenings in that institution. Dads' Day offers an opportunity to do this."

Individual letters have been sent to every Dad of a Cornhusker student, urging him to celebrate Dad's Day in Lincoln, and a copy of this Nebraskan will also be mailed to them.

MIXER WILL FOLLOW BABY INTERNATIONAL

A mixer will be held tomorrow evening at the College of Agriculture campus in the Students' Activities building immediately following the Baby International, according to an announcement by the Block and Bridle club which is sponsoring the two affairs.

The proceeds of the mixer will help send the senior animal husbandry judging team which will compete at the international livestock exposition November 26 to December 3.

The Block and Bridle club, sponsoring these events, is a national organization. Third semester men majoring in animal husbandry are eligible for membership in the club.

DIRECTORY LISTS REMAIN IN PLACE

Students Cautioned Not To Make Corrections on Proofs; Cards Are Provided

The names of the university students which begin with K, L, M, N, O, P, Q and T, compiled by the managers of the 1927-28 Student Directory, will remain on the Social Science bulletin board today, and all those whose names begin with these letters are urged to examine the proofs and correct any possible errors.

It was requested, through the article in yesterday's Nebraskan, that students should make their corrections on cards, furnished for the purpose, or on sheets of paper of the same size, but some have disregarded the request and written on the proofs. The copies should be kept as neat as possible, to enable the printers to copy them accurately, and writing in on them makes some of the names confusing.

The names of honorary organizations, with the names, addresses, and phone numbers of their officers, should be turned in to Sherman Wheelton in Temple 101, as no records of these are available.

ker students have been extended an invitation to attend the game and spend the day with the Nebraska students. A large number are expected at the game and a special reserved section has been set aside for the Cornhusker fathers. This section is in the east stadium just above the student section.

Coach Ernest Bearg will leave for Syracuse today to scout the Syracuse-Penn State game and Coach "Funny" Oakes will watch the Pitt Panthers in action against Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh. Coach Oakes witnessed the Orange eleven in action last Saturday and Bearg will view the Husker foes for next Saturday in action again.

Orange Team Is Young
Syracuse has a passing attack that dawned the strong Georgetown eleven last week to upset all the dope in eastern football. Sport critics and coaches had the Georgetown ball-buggers doped to put a win over on the green Syracuse team.

Coach Lew Andrews has a young and inexperienced team on the field this season, but speed, passing, and ball-kicking of the highest calibre have been developed out of the material the Syracuse coach received at the beginning of the season. Captain Ray Barbuti, big Orange fullback, is one of the highest scorers in the east and accounts for a good amount of his yardage through the opponent's line. His position in the backfield is held by two backs that were the sensation of the Syracuse-Georgetown game, Goldman and Sebo. Coach Andrews will stress team work
