KANSAS TURNS THE TABLES
Old Man Football plays his cards wisely. He must be a Nebraska man. Yesterday afternoon when he let Kansas beat Missouri he stacked the deck, and consequently the championship of the Missouri Valley, which was supposed to be settled, is still in the playing.

With the disheartening 7-6 defeat at Columbia still in mind, Husker followers failed to realize that Nebraska might at least end near first place in the Valley race. Kansas Aggies bowed to Nebraska by a 33-0 score yesterday. Our formidable rival, Missouri, only succeeded in beating the Aggies 13-6. Nebraska ran over Kansas by a huge score; then Kansas came back at "Mizzou" with a left to the jaw in the form of a 14-7 score.

Just how dope men will predict the outcome of the Missouri-Oklahoma game remains to be seen. Nebraska is through with the Missouri Valley this year, and its fate in the rating lies in other hands.

Forgetting the scores, and turning to football teams for what they are, not what trouble they run up against on some particular days, Nebraska has made an enviable record in Missouri Valley circles this year. Bowing only to Missouri, and then merely because of goal kick, the Huskers have displayed a brand of football which commands the esteem of the whole Missouri Valley.

Old Man Football spoiled Nebraska's chances at a perfectly clean slate early in the season, but the Huskers firmly stood their ground and with only one more game left this season both the coach and players command the respect of the entire student body.

This Really Happened
"What do you think of all these floods in the East?" queried one Nebraska student of another in a psychology class Friday morning.
"Whatever floods?" answered his chum, who is supposed to be enrolled in this University for an "education."

If any more such instances occur, it is time The Daily Nebraskan leases a press wire so University students will know what is happening beyond the city limits of Lincoln, Nebraska.

THE EARLY BIRD

This is only November, but next year's Farmers Fair is on the way. Members of the Junior Fair Board were announced and application blanks for committee-ships were issued in the convocation held at the College of Agriculture last week.

Although Farmers Fair is not held until the last Saturday in April or on the first Saturday in May, it has been found necessary to start work before the Thanksgiving holidays to insure a complete success.

Co-operation is the keynote for students in the College of Agriculture when they stage the largest single student event in the University. The Fair occupies just one day. Yet months are spent in planning. Committees meet regularly each week to work out minute details of the Fair.

So while the downtown campus members sit placidly back and watch the activities of the Ag College, that small but concentrated body of workers begins six months of toil which are wasted in one day. That day when the whole student body, the whole city, and part of the state have their eyes focused upon the College of Agriculture of the University of Nebraska.

THE SOAP BOX
Daily Nebraskan readers are cordially invited to contribute articles to this column. This paper, however, assumes no responsibility for the sentiment expressed herein, and reserves the right to exclude any libelous or undesirable matter. A limit of six hundred words has been placed on all contributions.

To the Editor:
A humor column you say?
"You don't really think that Nebraska's student body can stand any more humor than is found in the Awgwan and still function properly from a scholastic standpoint?"

Personally I would like to see some humor column like several of the "Big Ten" dailies have, but too many innovations in your columns will not meet with the approval of the student body. They like to have one type of paper and get used to it. Any changes are unwelcome. At least that is what my friends think. If contributions concerning the humor column are still welcome, I would like to say "on with the humor". W. A.

Keep Your Eyes on Cecil
Of course Nebraska can not win all the first prizes offered for really worth while things, but she manages to grab off a mighty fine share of them. Comes now Cecil W. Means, representing the University of Nebraska, holding in his hand the first prize for having been the best individual judge of livestock at the American Royal Livestock show, Kansas City. Cecil scored 928 points out of a possible 1,000, 27 points more than his nearest competitor.

We suggest that you keep your eyes on Cecil. He will be a leader in making Nebraska an even greater livestock and dairying state than it now is. We pause, therefore, to give three rousing cheers for Cecil W. Means, champion judge of livestock. Cecil knows his animals. —Omaha Bee-News.

CHAIRMEN ARE ANNOUNCED

of all arrangements. They were appointed last year following the second conference held in Ann Arbor, Mich., which Miss Palmer attended. Committees will begin work at once and all plans are expected to be well underway by the beginning of the vacation period.

Large Attendance Expected
Word has been received from the national office and the largest attendance of the history of the organization is expected to be present at this conference.

Completion of the program will be made within the next few days and definite announcements will be made. Some of the world's most prominent educators are to be included on the program.

Official Arrives Soon
Chandler Wright of Tufts College, Medford, Mass., the national officer in charge of the third conference, will arrive in Lincoln within the next week to make final arrangements with the local committee.

The council committee will meet this afternoon for further instructions and to talk over the general conference plans.

ship and athletic and scholastic ability.

The forty-four students in this year's class were picked from two hundred applicants in the graduating classes of leading colleges last June. Miss Leora Chapman is representing Nebraska. A few of the colleges contributing these students are: Columbia, Vassar, Ohio Wesleyan, Drake, Northwestern and the Universities of Miami, Michigan, Alabama, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and Illinois.

Former Members Working
The thirty four members of the pioneer class—last year's—are at work in public recreation departments, community houses, and other civic posts throughout the country. Nebraska was represented by Miss Katherine Krieg, who is now director of the Girls' Federation, Council Bluffs, Iowa. Seven hundred and ninety cities team that visited Nebraska last Thanksgiving expressed their appreciation of the torchlight welcome, and stated that it was the heartiest "hello" they had ever received. It is hoped that the team this year will be equally impressive, and in view of the importance of this inter-sectional grid contest, it is quite probable that the procession will be equal in size, if not larger than the one last year.

Definite plans for the rally are not complete as yet, but the speakers for the pep-meeting will be announced later. Each sorority and fraternity will be asked to buy one dollar's worth of torches for the procession.

One of the chief speakers at the annual convention of the Iowa High School Press association will be James Mulroy, reporter on the Chicago Daily News and winner of the Pulitzer prize in 1924 for his work in reporting and getting evidence in the Loeb-Leopold murder case. Mr. Mulroy, then a cub reporter, is now the star reporter for that paper.

sas won from Nebraska by merely a few points in judging.
The Nebraska team was selected from a group of about sixteen girls. During only approximately a month was real coaching for the contest given. Other girls who did good work in this class were Henrietta Fleck, Eunice Mauer, and Beth Wilson.
Part of the expenses of the girls on the team were defrayed by the home economics club and a part by a fund acquired by money that has been won by university livestock which has been shown at the state fair.

on the part of college fraternities of their common ideals and aims. Through the efforts of the conference, mutual jealousies and rivalries have diminished and a clearer conception has grown up of the modern fraternity as an adjunct to self-government at American colleges and universities. Hamilton Wright Marble was the first chairman of the conference.

The conference has grown until today it includes practically all the long-established fraternities in addition to many of the newer ones.
