FINAL ACTION

Nebraska's Student Council will meet this afternoon to give final consideration to the question of the underclass societies.

The Council's recommendation for the abolition of six underclass societies was unanimously approved by the faculty committee on student organizations last week.

The attitude of the faculty committee was clear. It was willing to cooperate with student government in attempting to better campus conditions.

Protagonists of the removal of the honoraries expected strong opposition to their aims. That opposition was not stronger was probably due to the sureness with which the Student Council moved.

The faculty committee itself took its time in assuring itself of the soundness of the Council's investigation. It gave the societies in question opportunity to present their case.

The faculty committee's gesture in referring the matter back to the Student Council was a significant and friendly one. It showed a new confidence in the Student Council, a confidence springing from the work attempted by the Council the past two years.

There can be little doubt as to student sentiment. The class honoraries have been a sore spot to students in more ways than one.

PROBATION AGAIN

With the Inter-fraternity council scheduled to meet soon, investigation of advance probation tactics is reported to be quietly under way.

Desirable as is an investigation of the unfortunate violations of last week-end, there are other phases of the problem which the Inter-fraternity council needs to consider.

One of the present standards, in particular, seems unsatisfactory. The Inter-fraternity council's action of last year set the probation period for the closing hours of the first week of the second semester, exclusive of registration week.

Last year, shortly after the passage of the rule, probation was postponed a week due to the Pan-Hel Ball. Again this year, probation was postponed a week because of the Intra-mural Carnival and the Inter-fraternity ball, successor of the Pan-Hel ball.

Other factors also indicate that establishment of the second week as the regular probation period would be desirable. Placing the probation at that time would make it possible for students to get a sure start on their semester's work before the three-day antics period begins.

From the standpoint of new students, the second week would be far better than the first. It would enable them to partially recover their balance after the whirl of a few days of rushing.

TAKING THE HINT

Campus courtesy or rather the lack of it is the subject of a rather pointed attack published in "The Soap Box" today.

Although the bulk of the student body is undoubtedly courteous at heart, students as a whole are prone to be careless of the simple courtesies which make life move more smoothly.

Courtesy is primarily consideration. Students rush from class to class, from activity to activity, from gathering to gathering. The atmosphere is none too conducive to reflection on courtesy.

ANOTHER NEED

The University faces a difficult situation in regard to the present inadequate library building which is not big enough nor well enough equipped to meet the needs of a large student body.

more noticeable in the fact that the library is closed on Sundays, which cuts off many students from doing their required reference reading.

A good percentage of students have their week days and Saturdays well filled with classes and part time work. These people have only Sundays left which they can call a free day, in which to read their outside references.

The library closes at a fairly early hour in the evening, at 10 o'clock. Certainly there is a big enough demand for the use of the library every day of the week to allow at least two hours' grace for study there on Sundays.

The additional day would also lessen the uncertainty of procuring books in classes where the enrollment is large, and the assigned library texts are limited, a condition which is plainly existent here.

There will be a meeting of the Nebraska boy to be courteous to co-eds upon the campus? Have customs so changed that the girls must step off the walk to let the boys pass by? I wonder.

A solitary girl approaches several boys coming down the walk and instead of allowing her the privilege of half the walk the boys "take" the walk.

Monday noon some Sir Walter Raleigh opened the door of Social Science to let another girl and myself pass in. It was cold and blustery. The wind was very strong and the door was hard to open.

Here's to the Scotch and may more of the boys become a little more "Scottish".

THE AXE ON HONOR SOCIETIES

Such finely named honor societies as Vikings, Silver Serpents, Iron Sphinx, Green Goblins, and Mystic Fish are facing abolition by the University authorities at Nebraska following a campaign by the Daily Nebraskan, student newspaper.

Nothing is more desultory to a virile college spirit than the existence of a flock of defunct organizations. On the other hand, however, nothing is more conducive to vital and concrete achievement than the existence of a number of powerful organizations which have the interests of the University solely at heart.

It has been demonstrated more often than is necessary for proof that strong honor societies can accomplish a tremendous amount of good when properly directed.

AN INVENTORY OF ORGANIZATIONS

Six honorary societies at the University of Nebraska, charged by the student council with being purposeless organizations, are expected to be killed by faculty action.

The agitation was begun by the Daily Nebraskan, which held that the only justification that could be advanced for many of the societies was that they gave ambitious men and women the opportunity to add more high-sounding and exclusive groups to the list of their activities.

The right to existence of many of University of Washington's varied honoraries, professional fraternities, clubs, groups and societies might also be questioned. There is little a student can do, say or think without finding an organization for what he does, for what he says or for what he thinks.

Undoubtedly many of them have a valid right to live. They are means to an end. They are an incentive and an encouragement to the student. They foster interest and help build friendships.

But there are other groups that seem to be an end in themselves and little else. They overlap and duplicate and all they contribute is another activity to be listed as a college achievement.

An inventory should be taken of every campus group and its function. Those that contribute nothing to the University and nothing tangible to the members should be wiped out.

There would still be enough left to go around.—University of Washington Daily.

Kosmet Klub Tryouts Will Be Saturday

"We will probably be able to use some good vaudeville acts," announced a member of Kosmet Klub. "Any talent such as uke players or specialty dancers can try out with the pony chorus." If the judges appreciate any of these acts, or novelty singers and dancers, the acts will be selected as features for the show.

Freshmen Cannot Enter Freshmen will not be allowed to enter the trials on Saturday. Announcement of the cast will be made shortly after the tryouts so that rehearsals may start at once.

The principals of the cast, and a description of their various characters follows: Sylvia Sylvester, a former follies girl. Young, small, and beautiful. In fact she is the leading lady.

Madam La Comtesse de Clarienne, an elderly lady, very particular. Rather large physically, the Madam has had a very brilliant past, good and otherwise.

Phillip Cornell, a young professor of philosophy who has taken it upon himself to write a book. He is rather an interesting fellow. His trousers don't go unpressed. He has been too busy with his study to give a great deal of thought to women, but now he is on his way to Europe for a vacation, he finds he is attractive enough to get by with the females and learns that Kipling was right—they are more deadly than the male.

Vernon Ladd, a young undergraduate acts as the professor's secretary. Vernon is a good fella in spite of the fact that he wears heavy shell glasses and has a vocabulary high above the average.

There is also a vaudeville dance team. One Mazie Murphy, a clever hooper, ignorant and full of the world's choicest slang. With her, as her partner in the act, is Albert Abbott. Al is Mr. Personality himself. He admits it.

Sorel Cabrillo is the Secretary of the Exchequer of the little province of Liguria on the Italian coast. Sorel is a man of perhaps forty, experienced, suave, clever. A polished gentleman. With him as a traveling companion is one Signore Santita, a short, fat, round faced man of about sixty, and a contriving member of Liguria's governing body.

Eleanor Harper is a sweet young girl of about 20. Not yet a graduate of her midwestern university. Guido, Keeper of an Italian villa. Francesca, Housekeeper of villa. Giovanni, Italian barber.

Huskies Score Over Drake in Fast Contest

(Continued from Page 1) Huskies by making good on a close in shot. Myers sank a free toss and Witte shortly followed suit. A long effort by Myers avished through the netting, and baskets by Zvacek and Munn put the invaders on even terms with the Huskies at five all. Successive baskets brought the score to nine apiece but from there on, the Scarlet clad team went out ahead with Holm taking the leading role. Krall and Holm cooperated to bring the score at 17 to 9 as the half closed.

Starting the second half with a scoring spree, the Bulldog quintet lowered the difference in points when Myers made two field goals and two free tosses in rapid succession. Bows sank a follow in shot and with ten minutes to play, the Drake cagers were trailing the Huskies 24 to 22. Rallying and displaying a smooth working offensive, the home team rang up a series of long shots, meanwhile holding the Drake players to three baskets by Barnes, Myers, and Zvacek. As the final gun sounded, Myers was fouled and made good one of his two gift tosses to make the final score 34 to 27 in Nebraska's favor.

Nebraska Ties Washington By winning the last three games, Nebraska has advanced to a tie for sixth place with the Washington Bears with a percentage of 455. Nebraska has won five contests and dropped six for its present standing.

Toward the end of the Drake game, the close score had the members of both teams fighting desperately for possession of the ball. With three minutes to play, exhaustion caused them to slow up a bit and the Nebraskans coasted in with a seven point lead. Brown turned in an excellent game at a forward position and showed great ability to make his scoring attempts count. Holm and Krall played nearly the whole game and their defensive tactics made the Drakesters resort to long shots. Myers was easily the star of the visiting quintet and worked with Simpson in breaking up the Nebraska offensive play.

Playing Kansas and the Kansas Aggies on successive nights, the Huskies will attempt to improve their Valley standing. The game with Kansas Friday night at Lawrence will afford a good chance for a Nebraska win for the Jayhawks are in the midst of a slump. The tilt at Manhattan is a different matter for the Kaggies have already defeated the Huskies and are moving up in the standings with each game played.

The box score of the Nebraska-Drake game follows:

Table with 4 columns: Name, fg, ft, pts. Drake: Myers f 4 3 2 11, Zvacek f 2 2 1 6, Parisho, c 2 0 1 4, Simpson g 0 0 4 0, Barnes g 1 2 1 4, Bows c 1 0 1 2, McCarthy g 0 0 0 0.

The Most Sensational Improvement Ever Made In Permanent Waving!

—the first machine West of Chicago equipped with the amazing new

Frederic Combination Heaters

Mrs. G. F. Champe of Speier's Beauty Shop introduces this remarkable invention to the women of Nebraska and Middle West!

After days of study in the East under Paul Killings, famous permanent wave and executive of the Frederic company, Mrs. G. F. Champe has received the first permanent waving machine equipped with these new heaters to be used West of Chicago. It was one of the first units completed at the factory and was shipped from New York City to Lincoln by air express.

You are invited to come in and see this most amazing heater that has revolutionized the entire industry. It is a reverse heater—scientifically designed, mechanically accurate—that waves the new hair, leaving the old wave open to the free circulation of the air. You can see the old wave during the whole treatment, air cooled, untreated, without any heat conducting metal around it. Yet instantly this remarkable heater, can be made to wave the new hair and tighten the old wave. Mrs. Champe will give a demonstration of this new Frederic Vita-Tonic Permanent wave machine. You are cordially invited to come and bring your friends. Mrs. Hatford, representative of the Ladies' Laboratories of Kansas City, will demonstrate their new all day Friday giving formula. All preparations are made for each individual skin.

These Are the Phenomenal Features—

- (1) The few new inches of straight hair are waved without subjecting the former wave to any treatment. (2) If desired, the new straight hair is waved, and at the same time the previous wave is slightly lightened and restored to its first loveliness. No direct heat is applied to the old wave—just a gentle steaming which tightens the old curl. (3) An extension unit makes a full length heater of the hair or even longer shown above making it possible to wave hair from roots to ends in the desired types, like any other full-length heater. (4) Any head of hair can be waved every three months—four times a year—with guaranteed satisfaction, regardless of hair texture, color or method of waving.

The new Vita-Tonic scientific compound assures beautiful lustrous waves, and absolute safety in treating the most delicate textures and shades of hair—especially valuable for chestnut brown, ash blonde, grey and snow white.

Now We're Offering This Scientific New Freardic Vita-Tonic

Permanent Wave at $6.50

The Frederic Vita-Tonic is a supreme triumph in permanent waving artistry. It adds lustre and beauty to all types of hair and assures perfect results in waving. It safeguards and promotes hair beauty because its action is so gentle and mild. Mrs. Champe will be pleased to explain it further.
