Much interest has centered around the Claude Bragdon exhibit of scenes and costume sketches for Walter Hampden's theatrical productions which is now on display in Gallery A of Morrill hall at the University.

These include designs for "Hamlet", "Macbeth", "The Merchant of Venice", "Cyrano de Bergerac", "The Eternal Theme", and "Cappone-sacchi" the dramatization of Brown-ing's "The Ring and the Book", which has just closed at Hampden's Theatre in New York. The sketches for "Cappone-sacchi" are attracting special attention because the University Players will present this play the last of April with Hart Jenks, former Nebraskan who was a member of Hampden's original cast, in the leading role.

"Mr. Bragdon," says Prof. Paul H. Grummann, director of the School of Fine Arts, "is one of that small group of artists in the theater who have brought a fresh spirit into theatrical productions. He is well-known as an architect and author, but his dominant interest just now is the theater by reason of its vital

While in Lincoln

"No matter how strong is your professional training, no matter how strong your ability in your chosen profession, your success depends more than fifty percent upon your personality," stated Mrs. Florence Robnett, chairman of the Chicago Collegiate Bureau of Occupations, in speaking to University women Monday morning at convocation on "Vocations and Professions." "Ave Marie," sung by Miss Vera Upton, soprano soloist accompanied by the band, and "Columbia Kolka," a cornet solo by Raymond McCormack, were especially well received, as were Flotow's "Stradella" overture and "Coronation" march by Meyerbeer.

For an encore Miss Upton sang "Beauty's Eyes," while Mr. McCormack responded with "Indian Dawn." This is the band's last concert this year. It will resume outdoor drill this week, and will play for the military review today at 5 o'clock.

Impersonators Wax Warm in Female Roles

Embryo Actors in University
Rival Popular Favorites
In Talent Display

(By Alene Miner)

Hoey! Bang! Tap! and only graceful arms appeared to the human eye focused on the third story window of the Temple. The grace with which these arms were swaying would make even a Ziegfield Follies girl envious, and the height those limbs kicked would make her blush.

Who are these talented dancers? They are none other than the Society chorus of the musical comedy "The Love Hater." "Herb" Yenne says that they crept up flat-footed like when they tried out but it was pre-ordained that these unusual college men should surpass the bald headed row's idols in the art of dancing—and how they can vamp!

Rivals Stars

There is nothing wintry about the leading lady, (man) a former follies girl. She will probably win many a contest and secure as many dancing trophies as Marion Nixon or be a close runner-up on Joan Crawford when the tour is over. Her social secretary, Madam la Comtesse de Clairene, (Howard Payne) is perfection when it comes to handling the men. Regardless of the fact that she

UNIVERSITY IS HOST TO OPERA COMPANY

Large Stage and Seating Capacity
Permits Presentation of
'Il Trovatore'

University of Nebraska will be host to the Chicago Civic Opera company next Thursday when this world famous operatic organization comes to Lincoln for the presentation of "Il Trovatore."

In arranging for the appearance of the Chicago artists, the University is giving its students an opportunity that is presented to no other student body in the Missouri Valley region. The performance was made possible only by the size of the stage in Nebraska's massive Coliseum where the elaborate scenic spectacle will be shown. The seating capacity of the building makes possible the local slogan, "A famous grand opera company at prices that will fit any purse."

Rosa Raisa Heads Cast

The Chicago company, headed by Rosa Raisa, world renowned dramatic soprano, is the greatest travelling musical organization in the world. Some idea of the magnitude of the company may be gained when it is known that railroad fares alone for this gigantic group, during its trans-continental tour, will exceed $200,000.

Scenic, costuming and lighting effects for "Il Trovatore" will arrive

The girls were suffering from severe lacerations on the legs, minor cuts and bruises. Mr. Trumble and Mr. Barger were both treated at the hospital for small cuts on the hands and legs. The girls were better Monday, and according to members of Miss Johnson's sorority, will be out of the hospital in two or three days.

The accident occurred, according to Mr. Trumble, when in order to avoid a collision with a car coming west on Van Dorn street, Barger gave a quick swing to the left, which overturned the roadster in which the four people were riding. They were cut by flying glass from the windshield. The car was badly damaged.

State Tractor Laboratory Is First in World

Nebraska's state tractor testing laboratory, the only one of its kind in the world, has now tested 147 tractors, answered more than 30,000 requests for information, and entertained delegations from several foreign countries as well as from practically every agricultural state in America.

Individual buyers and large companies have sought the truth at the agricultural college of the University of Nebraska before they purchased. Manufacturers have also benefited by the state test. Many of them have said the rapid improvement in tractors has been largely due to the measuring stick that this state has applied to each new model before it could be sold in the state.

Most Guarantees
All of the machines tested in the last four years have met the recommendations of the manufacturers. This shows remarkable engineering especially when the improvements of the past eight years are considered, the tractor testing officials say.

In the last eight years, manufacturers have speeded up their machines 80 per cent, cut down the weight per draw-bar horse-power 55 per cent, and cut down the fuel consumption
