LINCOLN
"The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" portrays Richard Barthelmess in a role very similar to the one he played in "Tol'able David." In fact, the story and the setting are the same.

troubles of a young man who marries himself into a predicament that is exceedingly difficult to explain when the original prospective bride comes upon the scene.

Dr. Niebuhr Gives Address Tuesday

your parents tell you. Then your own experience begins to play a part. Your experience must justify authority. Religion must be tested by experience—all kinds, social, moral, mystical.

A few people in every generation make themselves the measure of all things, Dr. Niebuhr pointed out. "It is awful affront to make your own experience the final test. The experiences of others must enter in. If you are going to be successful you must take into consideration the experiences of all generations which have been boiled down into what is called tradition, and which enters into all realms of life, not-religion alone."

Progress Not Universal
Because we have made such mechanical progress we are under the illusion that we have made moral and physical progress. Past ages had a far deeper and more profound knowledge in this line than we have. There isn't a mistake that we can make that hasn't been made before so it is at our peril that we disregard the experiences of past generations.

Rebellion is mostly a matter of age," the speaker continued. On the one hand we have the conservatism brought by age and experience and on the other the rebellion of the new generation, sincere in its belief that tradition is superstition. If we want a civilization that will make the most progress with the least amount of friction we must look toward the past, assume that it holds some truth and carry on our own experiments in addition.

Catholics accepted the authority of the church. The Protestants substituted the authority of the Bible. There is now a tendency for youth to substitute for both the life of Jesus. Christianity at its best is not an institution or a book but a personality. When authority is combined experience it becomes inspiration.

"Do things as you want to prove them. This is the only way to arrive at a vital religion. You must make authority true through your own experience. Reverence the experience of your own soul."

Seventeen Students Join Commercial Club

Initiation Ceremonies and Banquet Are Held Tuesday; Faculty Members Give Talks
Seventeen Business Administration students were initiated into the Commercial club Tuesday evening in the club rooms. Those taking the oath of the organization were: Leon Frankel, Bert Weber, Reinhold Gruber, Walter Lundy, Irvin Grunwald, R. H. Miller, Harold Morgan, Kenneth Sandrock, Claude Pilger, Merrill Johnson, Vincent Eggston, Walter Lehmkuhl, Willard Urbon, Harry Pritchard, Fred Olney, Abe Sadoff, and Morton Richards.

Following the initiation a dinner was served at the Hotel Nebraskan. Over forty students and faculty members attended the dinner and the Kappa Phi string sextette provided the music for the evening. Victor Brink, instructor in the College of Business Administration, was toastmaster and was the center of the entertainment.

Mark of Prehistoric Worm Resembles Tire

Fossilized Imprint Six Hundred Million Years Ago Is Like Goodrich Tread

Seattle, Wash.—Automobiles 600, 000,000 years before the time of man?

A visit to the geological laboratory in Science hall at the University of Washington would seem to prove so, for a plaster cast taken from an ancient fossil shows a perfect imprint of a Goodrich Silver-town cord.

Automobile firms will never get to use this choice bit of valuable advertising, however, because the mark was made by a gigantic worm ages ago. Professor Weaver of the geology department explained that the worm, which must have been about a foot in diameter, had left his mark in the soft mud, then it had been covered with rocks and water until it had fossilized.

The fossil was discovered in the Atlantic ocean several years ago, and the University received a plaster cast of it. Its scientific title is "clini-clinchites wilson."

High School Girl Athletes Will Have Part in K.U. Relays This Week

Lawrence, Kan., April 17.—For the first time in the history of the Kansas Relays, women high school athletes will take part in a series of events which, though not actually connected with the Relay program, will nevertheless be of that nature and will bring to Lawrence more than seventy-five girl athletes from the leading schools of this section, including the Kansas City, Mo. schools.

The attraction is the first Woman's Play Day, given under the auspices of the University Women's Athletic association. Included on the program are field events, hockey and volleyball games, and other major and minor sports. The field events and games will be run off Saturday, April 21, the morning of the Kansas Relays. Saturday, after the games and field events have been completed, the visitors will be given a luncheon in the University cafeteria and the group will then attend the Kansas Relays in a body.
