Farm House and Kappa Sigma Are Contenders for Laurels In Sport Program

Champions of the intramural sports for 1928 may be settled next week with the annual outdoor track and field meet scheduled to be run off Tuesday.

With the baseball, tennis and bowling tournaments yet to be played however, the chance for a dark horse looms brightly.

Ornamented plaques, which will be given to tourney winners in place of the skins awarded in former years, have been received by director James C. Lewis and will be awarded soon.

The baseball tournament will start the first of the week, games being played on the six municipal diamonds leased from the city.

RELAYS PROMISE TO UNEARTH CHAMPION

Ten-Event Decathlon Will Be Run For First Time in Mid-West Section of Country

Lawrence, Kans., April 18.—With twenty-four men entered in the decathlon event of the Sixth Annual Kansas Relays here the afternoon of April 20 and morning of April 21, it seems certain that the real all-around champion track and field man of the middle west and southwest is to be discovered.

Run Off Decathlon Friday The decathlon will be run off on Friday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock when the 100 meters run, broad jump, shot put, high jump and 440 meters will come in order.

On Saturday morning, April 21, at 9:30 o'clock, the decathlon athletes will start work again, this time to run off the 110 meters high hurdles, discus throw, pole vault, javelin throw, and 1500 meters run.

Favorites Are Name Favorites in the Kansas decathlon are Vernon Kennedy of Central Missouri State Teachers' College, winner of the decathlon at the Penn Relays last year; Jack McIntosh of Mommouth (Ill.) College, winner of the seven-event all-around of the Illinois Relays in March.

Among the twenty-two other entrants may be a dark horse who will upset the favorites, as the field includes some great athletes in other lines of sport as well as track. The list of entrants follows: D. Somers, Creighton University; R. Zvacek, Drake University; W. B. Davis, Grinnell College; B. Francisco and R. Moody, unattached freshmen from Marquette University; C. Corbin and Bentley, Oklahoma A. & M.; Joe Davidson, Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex.; Leo Dodd and H. Underhill, University of Kansas; E. Hess, University of Minnesota; B. Wyatt and Potts, University of Nebraska; Tom Churchill, University of Oklahoma; L. Beckers, Bradley Polytechnic, Peoria, Ill.; H. Williams,

Central Missouri State Teachers; W. Lauritsen, Doane College, Crete, Neb.; Charles and Grant, Haskell Indians; C. Smith, Missouri Teachers; A. Selik, Nebraska Teachers; and A. Walker, William Jewell.

The decathlon event has proven to be the popular event within the last two years as the annual Kansas Relays has shown. From among the 24 athletes who will compete in the Kansas carnival decathlon event, a real champion of the mid-west should be crowned since the cream of the all-around performers are to be present, Friday and Saturday.

Vernon Kennedy, Warrensburg Teachers star who won the ten-events at Penn Relays last year, is favored to place high while Jack McIntosh of Mommouth College is given an equal chance at first rating.

Clipping off the 26 mile jaunt in three hours and seven minutes from Oskaloosa to Haskell Saturday afternoon Eugene Anderson, full blood Navajo Indian from Arizona, won first honors in the Haskell tryouts for the International Marathon to be run at the Kansas Relays April 21.

The Missouri Valley baseball race is under way and the Oklahoma Aggies are leading the pack with four victories and two defeats for a total percentage of .666. Missouri follows with one won and one lost.

The Washington University track and field team scored an overwhelming victory over the University of Arkansas, beating the Razorbacks 83 1-3 to 47 2-3. The Bears took eleven of the fifteen first places, being superior in all events except the distance runs, low hurdles and the javelin throw.

"Abe" Wright, Oklahoma Aggie basketball star does not devote all his time to dropping the sphere through the hoop. Wright is one of the Aggie pitching aces and relieved Robinson the mound when the Aggies were two runs behind in the Washington game.

Several University of Nebraska notables will be present for the banquet and letter awards for the Great high school cagers on April 25. Among those who will be present are Coach Henry "Indian" Schulte, Herb Gish, Glen Presnell and Blue Howell.

Husker Fighter Thinks Luck Omens Important In Scoring Knockouts

Superstitions are prevalent among the ideas of many people—even college students. Curtis Poet, a Nebraska boxer, who won the Mid-Western A. A. U. championships of the 147-pound class this year is a notable example.

"Curty" left Lincoln Wednesday morning for Boston to determine whether he will get to participate in the Olympics at New Amsterdam, Holland, next summer or not, and his superstitions will have much to do with his success.

"Curty" is always near the ring to grab the gloves of the winner of the preceding fight. Some of his followers say that he will not don the gloves of the loser under such circumstances. After "Curty" has assurance that he has the winner's gloves cinched, he claims the corner that the winner had. All of these details are of great importance.

A friend once asked him to call someone whose number was M-1323. "Curty" politely refused because he considers "23" as unlucky as "13"—and besides "M" is the thirteenth letter of the alphabet.

"Curty" has had seventeen fights and he has won all of them but one—the thirteenth. It was a draw. During the fight many of his friends were shouting for him to show some more "zip" but all efforts utterly failed.

"You never expected me to win my thirteenth fight, did you?" he queried after the fight, just as though he considered himself quite lucky by getting a draw.

Record Crowd Is Expected

"The Last Shot" will be presented by Howard Payne, known through "The Love Hater" as Madame la Comtesse de Clairenne. "It will not only be 'The Last Shot,' but the last word as well if Payne is up to standard," enthusiastically advised a Nebraskan reporter.

Dance Acts Lincoln's artists—Harriett Cruise Kemmer, Wilbur Chenoweth and Harold Turner present "Harmony Supreme" at the close of Payne's "mellow-drama." They will be assisted by Clarence Schultz who "may yodel—you can't tell."

Conway Beaver and his Melody Monarchs from the Lincoln theatre will synopocate a "Kosmet Klub Revue" as the fifth act in the midnight fire benefit. The pony chorus from "The Love Hater" will combine their best and snappiest steps for a selection with Beaver's orchestra.

Maxine Mathers and the Melody Monarchs are scheduled for a specialty skit, to be followed by Helen Krarup and Delellis Shramek in another feature presentation.

The sixth act of "Midnight Revue" is titled "Incidentals from 'The Love Hater'" and includes Maxie Murphy, Al Abbott and Maude Harlow. These stars from the last show to "play the Playhouse" will present new lines with their well-known ability.

The entire University of Nebraska has announced its pledge to the support of Kosmet Klub in their attempt to pay back loss from the Playhouse fire last Saturday night.

Gass Writes Criticism On Modern Literature

Professor Gass continues to say that fate has been playing the jest with the novel as a pawn. The novel, which, for centuries has expressed man's feelings and mirrored his beliefs is failing.

Gayety Has Gone

According to Professor Gass the old gayety that made the novel attractive has gone. The fundamental things which were enjoyed in the old novel have been "one by one pitched overboard."

Professor Gass discusses the trend of modern consciousness and the relation between science and literature. His entire article is closely knit together and filled with thoughts which many persons feel but few express, according to persons who have read the advance copy of "Forum."

World Laughs and Curses at Errors When Typesetter's Fingers Make Slip

It's all very well for other human beings to make occasional mistakes, but only an editor, printer, or even a struggling journalism student knows the furore that can be excited when an innocent finger slips to the wrong key of a typewriter or linotype.

A musician can miss a note; an actor can muddle a line of Shakespeare; a waiter can bring beans baked a la New York style to a Bostonian; a tailor can press the cuffs of your trousers the wrong way.

Bible Suffers The Bible, doubtless because of its numerous editions, seems to have suffered more frequently than any other book.

Some words are common misprints. A London newspaper recently published a want-ad, most likely to attract the bachelors of the city; it read: "For Rent: One Room with Large Widow." A compositor left out a single letter and the word read of "the immoral works of Milton."

There was a headline in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch which read—repeating President Wilson's famous speech "God willing we can do no other—that being the reason for our entry into the World War—appeared 'Gold willing we can do no other.' It is said that for days the composing room was suspected of being Socialist.

Someone who has ever been in a composing room can understand how a letter can be transposed, but the Ithica Journal was really doing a little too much when they printed: "Mr. Jones appeared at a fancy dress ball dressed in the garb of a knight."

Mistakes, lots of times, get the best of editors. Bret Harte told of a fearful slip on a New York newspaper recently when a prominent woman died. Before her unfortunate death, the deceased had been giving much of her time and money to charity.
