

LEWIS SCHEDULES LAST COLOR MEET

Double Point System of Counting Is Installed to Supplement Fourth Track Event

Tri-color cinder competition will come to a close for this season with the tri-color track meet to be staged Tuesday afternoon May 8, on Memorial stadium track and field, Jimmy Lewis, director of the meet, announced Saturday. As only two meets of the present series of four have been run off, Tuesday's competition will serve as two meets in order to complete the series and a double system of counting will be used.

Because of this change the senior division point-system will be on a 14-12-10-8-6 basis and the five places for the juniors will be recorded on a 10-8-6-4-2 basis. Some hard competition is assured because of the use of this system as the results of Tuesday's meet will determine the winners of the final series of meets.

The events will follow the regular tri-color outdoor schedule beginning promptly at 4 o'clock. As usual the directors of the meet ask all competitors to be on time or they will not be allowed to enter the event.

German Languages Are Gaining Popularity As War Prejudice Drops

Germanic languages are again becoming popular, with heavy enrollments in the department, Dr. Laurence Fossler, chairman, reports. Each semester, during the year just closing, the registration has been beyond the 400 mark. "Students, especially those in advanced courses, naturally feel the need of knowing German, the scientific students more particularly, viewing it as an instrument in the laboratory. Thus the course in scientific German is larger this year than at any previous time," said Dr. Fossler.

Gradually too, the high schools of the state are introducing German into their courses of study. Fremont has lately joined the ranks of the schools that offer their students an opportunity to take preparatory courses in German.

A committee made up of representatives of the high schools and the University is just putting the finishing touches on a two-year high school course in German. It will be incorporated in the forthcoming Nebraska high school manual.
