days before fraternities were known to the achool. Judge McLucas, in the address of the evening, called particular attention to the alumni the "deplorable low salaries" paid to members of the faculty of the University of Nebraska. "The school has grown from four city blocks in size when attended, to an institution with sitzy acres of ground," he said.

Need More Money

"We have a stadium, prospects of dormitories, a dental building, and other improvements. The attendance has been on a marked in Room, crease. But mere buildings and attendance do not make a school.

Each year we lose members of the faculty whose services have been invaluable, because they can go elsewhere and receive just compensation for their work which is not obtainable at Nebraska." Judge McLucas told the alumni

it was up to them to get behind the movement to bring about an increase in the budget for the purpose of paying the faculty better
