

IOWA STATE ENGAGES IN ALL WINTER SPORTS

Cyclone Athletes Try Grand Push as Season Draws Near Close

Ames, Iowa, Feb. 28.—With the swimming and track teams of Iowa State College participating in Big Six championship meets on Friday night at Kansas City, the basketball quintet which appeared on the local hardwoods against Kansas on Wednesday night and the mat meet meeting Kansas Aggies here Friday night, athletes in the Cyclone stronghold are preparing for a final spurt in the Big Six winter sports.

Dope on all events, but the indoor track meet favors Iowa State. The basketball season closes with the Kansas game, Iowa State will finish third with the Big Six cage ratings if the Kansas game is won, and Missouri wins over Nebraska. The Cyclones won from Kansas early in the season.

Wrestlers Work Out. Coach Otopalik, wrestling mentor, is preparing his wrestlers to take the Kansas Aggie matmen with a rush Friday, following the setback received at the hands of the Oklahoma Aggies last Saturday. This meet will close the wrestling season, except for the Big Six championships the following week end.

Little or no information is available to Coach Daubert and his varsity swimmers on Big Six teams they will meet Friday, Iowa State won from Nebraska in a dual meet two weeks ago and expects to take the Big Six championship. Prospects of coming out on top in the track meet, held the same time as the swimming meet, are not so good, according to Bob Simpson, track coach. "Oklahoma seems to have the best outfit in the conference and it appears as though Iowa State, Nebraska and Missouri would fight it out for second place. It wouldn't take much of an upset, however, to put one of these three in the lead," Coach Simpson said.

Former Nebraska Man Quails Not at Orders Of Bandit Assaultants

Wood Pierce, former University of Nebraska student, assumed the role of hero the other night when he routed two highway bandits after a disastrous tussle. While stopping to fix a tire on route to Hastings, Pierce was encountered by two bandits who stopped their car and ordered him to hand over his valuables. Standing not upon the order of his actions he proceeded to tell one assailant with a jack handle and bumped the other's head on the side of the car. According to the story told by his friends, Pierce then drove off leaving the scene of battle marked by the recumbent bodies of the bandits. Pierce was a junior in the College of Business Administration until his withdrawal February 11 of this year.

DELEGATES ARE TO DELIVER REPORTS

Reports on the program of the southwestern regional conference of the Lutheran Student association of America, which met last week-end at Lawrence, Kansas, will be given by the delegates who attended, as part of the program of the Lutheran club meeting this Friday night, March 1. The meeting of the club will be in Morrill Hall, Gallery A, at eight o'clock. The usual place for the meetings is in the Temple building, so special notice is called to the change of place. All Lutheran students are urged to attend. The committee on arrangements promises a wholesome evening.

CONDRA ADDRESSES WELL-DRILLING BODY

He explained further that well-drilling associations help the drillers in obtaining equitable lien laws and in improving quality of work, and thus provide better water and better health for the state. He explained that the object of the federal authorities was not to direct the well-drillers but to help them in their work.

Mr. Fiedler then explained two means of locating leaks in wells. He made fully clear by illustration the pressure and meter methods of finding leaks.

Following Mr. Fiedler's talk a fiery discussion was conducted by Dr. Condra. Much discussion was made on the air drawing of wells and also of the condition of land in Nebraska. Dr. Condra promised to answer any question which might be addressed to him, at 7:15 in the evening. The group then visited the laboratories of the College of Engineering.

Condra Talks Again At 7:15 an illustrated address was given by Dr. Condra on "The Water-Bearing Formations of Nebraska." After the address a discussion was held, and the convention adjourned until Friday morning.

The following is the program for today: 9:30 a. m.—Well drilling methods, the speaker to be supplied. 10:00 a. m.—Questions and discussion. 11:00 a. m.—Well drilling problems, discussion by Nebraska drillers. 12:00 noon—Lunch at the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce. 2:00—Committee reports. 2:30 p. m.—Election of officers and unfinished business. 3:00 p. m.—Tips to the department of engineering of the College of Agriculture and to the Capitol. 6:30 p. m.—Banquet and fun, the place to be announced.

The present officers of the convention are H. H. Brown, chair, president, and Percy Stewart, Lincoln, secretary-treasurer. About seventy-five well-drillers are present at the convention. Many more were expected, but were prevented from coming by bad roads.

WOLCOTT ARRANGES TO LECTURE AT CITY 'Y'

Zoologist Chooses 'Life' as Subject of Address to Men's Forum

Dr. R. H. Wolcott, chairman of the department of Zoology in the University of Nebraska, will speak Sunday afternoon before the young men's forum at the city Y. M. C. A. on the subject, "Life as the Zoologist Sees It." His address will be a continuation of the series of lectures given before this group by scientists on "Life as the Scientist Sees It."

Dr. Wolcott, speaking from the standpoint of the zoologist, will take up life from the evolutionary standpoint. He will take up the smallest animal, pointing out its weaknesses and its dependence upon the elements of nature. He will take higher forms of animals as they have developed, telling of their constantly increasing emancipation of power, variety and action.

Will Talk on Man's Evolution. Finally Dr. Wolcott will tell of the evolution of man with his domestic ever environment, how he has become independent of the elements of nature and how his advanced mental equipment has enabled him to command the vast animal realm.

Prof. C. H. Patterson, of the department of Psychology, will conduct the next lecture in this series on March 10. Prof. J. O. Hertzler, of the department of Sociology, will speak on March 17 and Professor F. A. Staff will conclude the series with a lecture on religion March 24.

August Eiche's Love of Birds Dates From Boyhood Days in New Jersey

August Eiche's valuable gift to the university museum of a priceless collection of American birds, the subject of the radio talk given through the university studio, Thursday morning, by F. G. Collins, assistant curator of the museum.

The reason for Mr. Eiche's collection of birds was presented in an interesting way by Mr. Collins. It seems that he, Mr. Eiche, grew up in New Jersey with a happy love of the birds, and animals and plants around him. The day came when he was old enough to possess a gun, and his first trophies were a pair of Hudsonian godwits, shore birds, which are not often seen these days.

Became Bird Lover. One might have thought that Mr. Eiche would have grown to be a mere hunter and killer of birds, but words spoken by one of James Penmore Cooper's characters prophesied that many of the birds and animals of that day were destined to disappear in consequence of the changes coming over this beautiful virgin country changed the boys' motives for hunting. He began to desire to possess a record of "these beautiful objects which every year were becoming rarer and surely passing out of existence." The idea grew and later as the sporty lad grew up he pursued it systematically.

Collins Answers Inquiries. In opening his talk, Mr. Collins spoke, in reply to some inquiries which he had received from some of his regular radio audience, regarding the price of White's Natural History of Sebore. He then pointed out the value of having this book around where children, who were eager to read, might see it. He showed how beneficial this sort of an education would be in teaching young folks the beauty of wild life, and the need of preserving it. He then used the case of Mr. Eiche to illustrate the point.

While he was still a boy, Mr. Eiche's parents moved to Lincoln. Mr. Eiche has been one of the most active of Lincoln's business men, but for thirty-five years he has devoted his leisure time to completing the record of the vanishing loveliness around him.

Regardless of many offers from dealers and museums, Mr. Eiche has held on to his treasure hoard all the time that the university museum started some years ago by Dr. E. H. Barbour and the late Honorable Charles Morrill would be in a position to take the collec-
