

INTERRACIAL STAFF DISCUSSES INDIANS

Mrs. Maurice Merrill Talks About Needs of Tribes On Reservation

Round table discussion about Indians was held Thursday under the leadership of Mrs. Maurice Hitchcock Merrill at the regular meeting of the interracial staff of the Y. W. C. A. in Ellen Smith hall. Mrs. Merrill lived for several years on an Indian reservation in Oklahoma, and the round table discussion followed a series of meetings of the group which had dealt particularly with the question of the American Indian in our race problems.

One of the outstanding needs of Indians at the present time, according to Mrs. Merrill, is a revised organization of the national Indian commission. This commission was one of the first established by our government, and present conditions among Indians in America cannot well be treated by the handicapped organization of the commission.

All Indians are given a grant of land on the reservations, but since they are not temperamentally suited to farming, unscrupulous white men frequently manage to swindle the land away from the Indians, and, in Mrs. Hitchcock's opinion, some provision to stop this practice should be made by the commission. The discovery of oil on the land held by some tribes, especially the tribe of the Osage, has made the tribes very wealthy. These tribes in particular have been victims of the swindlers attempted by white men and women.

Coeds Bowl for First Time in Y. M. Tourney

Noise—Bang—not static. We are listening in on the girls intramural bowling tournament at the Y. M. C. A. bowling alleys. The poor "set-up" boys are working over time at the bowling alley, according to Mr. Kreps, who is overseeing the girls' bowling tournament.

One ball knock all ten pins over in a flash—that is ever so often—and most of the girls have never bowled before. With thirty-two teams out, the Y. M. C. A. will have to enlarge the bowling space according to the manager.

The two hundred boys of the state basketball tournament as guests in Lincoln last week, were given preference in the bowling alleys. For this reason the first flight of tournament was postponed until Monday, March 11.

Schedule of the games for Monday and Tuesday is:

Monday, March 11, 4:30—Chi Omega second team vs. Alpha Delta Pi second team; Delta Zeta first team vs. Alpha Xi Delta first team; 5:15—Omega vs. Delta Zeta third team; Wild Cats vs. Kappa Delta.

Tuesday, March 12, 4:00—Gamma Phi Beta fourth team vs. Theta Phi Alpha second team; 4:30—Delta Zeta second team vs. N'Ergettes; 7:00—R street vs. 1620 R street; 5:15—Gamma Phi Beta third team vs. Delta Zeta fourth team; Alpha Delta Theta first team vs. 1522 R street second team.

Iowa Course in Herding Draws Many Students

Ames, Iowa, March 8.—Included in the 165 men enrolled this winter in the annual winter quarter herdsman's course at Iowa State college are representatives from two foreign countries, Argentina and Mexico, and Maryland, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Louisiana. Arturo A. Pinerio, Buenos Aires, Argentina, and Raymond Bell, Mexico, are the two who have come farthest to attend the course.

Bell's father lives in the cattle country of Old Mexico where he owns about 200,000 acres of land near Durango. He sends hundreds of calves north to the United States each year and keeps many more to restock his ranches.

Young Bell, who is keenly interested in the cattle business, came to Iowa State especially to attend the herdsman's short course. He expects to return to Mexico after the close of the winter quarter March 20.

Mexico today is much like a new country, he says. Under the new constitution, adopted in 1917, land not being worked must be sold to anyone wanting it and as a result the peons are cultivating large tracts of land. The country is rapidly becoming settled, he states. Mexico is sending increasing numbers of students to other countries for education.

Pinerio is a native of the plains near Buenos Aires, in the heart of agricultural South America. His chief interest at the short course is in beef production. Pinerio is optimistic concerning the future of Argentina's agriculture. Argentina,

The costume consists of a wide purple shirt with a red embroidered border, a white embroidered blouse and a black satin basque. The usual embroidered apron and shawl are of white linen. Black satin slippers and flesh stockings complete the outfit. The doll is seated on a hassock beside an old flax spinning wheel. Some hand-woven Czech-Slovakian textiles complete the display.
