GRUMMANN LISTED AS SPEAKER AT VESPERS

Head Fine Arts Department Gives Talk on Museums of Europe

"Art Galleries of Europe," was the subject of an address given by Prof. Paul H. Grumann, director of the School of Fine Arts, at Vesper services 5 o'clock Tuesday evening in Ellen Smith hall. Through his own personal observations and experiences he was able to make many interesting sketches of European art galleries.

In the very heart of London there is an imposing old monument, known as the Nelson Monument. Beside this old monument stands one of the most wonderful museums in the world, the National Art Gallery of England. There are numbers of art museums in Europe, the most important being located in Holland, France and England. In closing Professor Grumann especially emphasized the two great museums in Washington, D. C., and stated that in all of his tours in Europe none of the foreign museums were greater than these two famous American art galleries.

The meeting Tuesday evening was led by Edna Schrick. Lois Gake sang "The Swan Song," composed by Edward Grieg. University women have been fortunate in obtaining some very prominent people to appear before the Vesper services held each Tuesday evening at Ellen Smith hall. The National Y. W. C. A. president, Mrs. John M. Hanna of Dallas, Texas, will give the address next Tuesday evening. She has the reputation of being a very interesting speaker and will have an important message to deliver at that time.

Sixty percent of the delinquents were freshmen.

CAMPUS POLICEMEN ARE TO CARRY GUNS

Officer Regler Was Helpless Before Attack of The Prowler Monday

SHOTS ALL WENT WILD

Because of the helplessness of L. C. Regler, campus policeman, to protect himself from the unknown prowler following an attack upon several university girls Monday evening, the campus policemen will be armed, according to a report given to The Daily Nebraskan by the chief of police.

After the assailant's attack upon the girls Regler pursued the fellow. The prowler fired five times at Officer Regler, as he ran across the street and disappeared from sight behind the College Book store. The shots were wild, but one of them barely missed the officer.

Three girls, members of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, witnessed the murderer's attack upon the group of girls. They are Katherine Williams, Leona Jensen, and Janice Foote. According to their story, the prowler chased the other girls into the library and was waiting behind a car for them to leave the building, when he was chased by Officer Regler.

The girls were not able to see his face, but they said that he was short of stature. From some other victims the assailant has been identified as about thirty-five years old and dark complexioned.

The prowler is believed to be the same person who has attacked girls on the campus at several times during the year.

Chinese Figures Adorn Calendar In Coppock Goal

Even the most casual observer is immediately attracted by the unique calendar which adorns the wall in the dining room of Ellen Smith hall. A huge calendar with gaily colored Chinese figures representing its 365 days, it shows the progress made by the workers for the Grace Coppock drive, directed by Maurine Drayton to secure funds for the education of women in China.

Large dragons, orange and gold, designate the first Sunday of each month and the twelve girls who are in charge of the groups of workers. A Chinese dog of Fo with string eyes and open mouth begins each successive week of the month. Dainty misses in flowing native garb, kingly men in royal attire, or Chinese boys with gay lanterns represent the days of the week and the girls who form sub-groups.

Dorothy Craig conceived the idea of such a chart whereon the Y. W. C. A. might record the daily progress of the drive and carefully worked out its arrangement. The quaint little figures offer incentive to the individual workers to attain their goals, but it may spoil the effect of the calendar, for the figures disappear when a day, week or month has attained its goal.

SCHULTE DRILLS SCARLET TRACK MEN FOR RELAYS

Nebraska Mentor May Take Quartet of Hurdlers to Illini Meet

MANY EVENTS ON DECK

Texas Relays, K. U. Annual Event Are Scheduled for Coming Weeks

Varsity track hurdlers were put through their paces in a strenuous workout, Tuesday afternoon, in anticipation of a possible trip to the annual Illinois indoor relay carnival, which is scheduled for this Saturday at the University of Illinois field house. The return of Coach Schulte to the Memorial Stadium track, following a week's illness, called for some special attention on the limber toppers, in an effort to put a shuttle relay hurdlers team in excellent shape.

The Nebraska mentor hopes to be able to take four hurdlers to the Illinois affair to compete in the shuttle event, a new addition to the program this season. The wealth of hurdlers on the Cornhusker cinder squad, makes prospects loom bright for a possible victory in the event.

Lamson, Fleming, Arganbright and Thompson will make up the Scarlet and Cream quartette if the trip is made. All four of these men have earned their spurs as hurdlers, Fleming, Arganbright and Thompson being letter men from last season while Lamson, a sophomore, has been leading the group a great share of the present season.

Wyatt and Krause, quarter milers, ran through a heat of the quarter, Krause running with a handicap while distance men were doing some lap work.

Nebraskan Would Create Reward Fund

For the arrest and conviction of the campus prowler, who has been frightening girls at night for the past several weeks and who Monday night fired four shots at university officer Regler when the latter surprised him accosting a group of young women at Eleventh and R streets, The Daily Nebraskan will sponsor a contributions reward fund.

The reward will be paid only upon conviction, following arrest of the culprit. In case the man is not taken into custody prior to the close of the semester, all money collected will be returned to the contributors. College of Agriculture Sets Date for Seventeenth Annual Display

Friday, April 19 is the day set for the seventeenth annual Livestock Feeder's Day at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture. At this time the results of the experimental work being done with cattle, hogs, and sheep over the past year will be reported.

An outstanding program is being planned according to Prof. H. J. Gramlich, chairman of the animal husbandry department under whose direction this event is held. A special feature of this year's meeting is an attendance contest by counties. The details are not ready for announcement but will be given to the county agents and others interested.

An attendance of over a thousand people at previous meetings is some indication as to the interest in such a program, those in charge feel. Plans are being made for a larger crowd than ever before, due to the increased interest in the livestock business the past few months.

Uninitiated Student Gets Scare When He Views Cadavers in Dissecting Room

Reporter for Daily Finds Anatomy Class Busily Engaged at Work With Many Sharp Tools

Convocation Speaker

Partly secluded in a building on the campus is a room full of waist high benches and on these benches are human corpses. The room is the dissecting room of the students of anatomy, located on the third floor of Bessey hall. The place has been a favorite extra beat for malicious Nebraskan editors who knowingly send woman club reporters to the place to get news and features, and who come back with a startled and far-away look in their eyes as if they had just witnessed ghoulia at work.

Students have heard of the dissecting department in one way or other. The place has whetted their curiosity and they are incited to visit this mysteriously secluded spot that appears to be the haunt of ghouls. They come back invariably with unclassified ideas concerning their reactions to this branch of knowledge and some even shudder at the thought of the courage and equanimity that dental students and students of anatomy preserve who work their regularly.

Class is interesting.

The class in anatomy is a very interesting class. Small groups of students, usually two or three in number work upon a cadaver. They begin 'he day's work by proceeding to pull back the heavy cloth covering that conceals the cadavers

Who Will Catch Night Prowler? Fair Coeds Ask

Men on the Nebraska campus need not feel alarmed if the coeds are seen carrying strong ash clubs and short wicked-looking pistols because the fair sex must protect themselves from a mysterious night marauder who inhabits the environs of Social Sciences and the library.

Who is this person that jumps from behind the convenient buildings, trees or bushes and pursues the ladies in this most unconventional fashion? This question is being asked on the campus today and as yet no one has answered it.

Many Descriptions Given

When asked to give a description of the marauder, the victims have described him as being anything from a dwarf to a giant. Some say he is dark and middle-aged while others say he is not. One fact at least remains, he is an unknown quantity.

Coeds who are in the habit of studying at the University library or Social Sciences library have been subject to attacks by this unwanted prowler. The arm of the law has been shackled by the absence of firearms, but since the ver to the campus policemen.

Campus Building Bears Marks

Administration hall had the appearance of a Chicago west-side garage yesterday morning as bullet marks were found in the south side of the building. The prowler was evidently answered by the Interior Police and Regler and decided to exterminate the guardian of this peace.

HISTORIAN'S RELIGION IS OLDFATHER'S TOPIC

Talk Concludes Series of Discussions in World Forum Group

WILL POSTPONE MEETS

"The Religion of an Historian" is the subject of a talk to be given by Prof. C. H. Oldfather at the World Forum luncheon today noon at the Nebraska hotel. This address is the last of a series on religion, as considered in the various professions or vocations.

Dr. Oldfather, professor of ancient history and languages, is a graduate of Harvard of the class of 1906. He holds a Ph. D. degree from Wisconsin, and has also had a full theological training. He is considered well qualified to speak on the subject of religion.

Two weeks will intervene before the next series will start, according to C. D. Hayes, university Y. M. C. A. secretary, on account of the meetings to be held next week by Dr. Stanley Jones. The new series will begin April 3, under the auspices of the new Y. M. C. A. cabinet.

Tickets for the World Forum luncheon may be purchased for thirty-five cents at the university Y. M. C. A. office in the Temple, or at the Y. W. C. A. office in Ellen Smith hall.
