Work of 1929 Track Team Goes for Husker History

Beginning Year With Doubtful Hopes, Schulte's Men Flash Through Dual Schedule Undeclared, And Take Big Six Title

(By Fritz Daly)

Nebraska's 1929 track season will go down in Cornhusker history pages as one of the most brilliant since Scarlet and Cream colors were first carried on track and field. Accorded a slim chance of emerging victorious at the opening of the schedule, Coach Henry F. Schulte, the veteran Husker mentor, assembled a well rounded group of strong cinder performers to walk through an undeclared dual schedule and cap the climax with a thrilling Big Six championship.

The loss of several outstanding performers from the 1928 team left dark hovering clouds over Memorial stadium cinder paths for 1929 but the addition of plus the increased development of performances of several of the veterans, brought smiles of joy from local Husker track fans to grow into loud shouts when the Cornhusker squad scored a first place victory on State Field, home of the Iowa State Cyclones, last Friday and Saturday.

New Awgwan Editor

Raymond D. Murray, '21, Topeka, Kans., will be editor of the Awgwan, humor publication, during the first semester of next year. Murray served as associate editor for two semesters.

The annual Kansas City Athletic Club's indoor carnival, was the first meet in which the Nebraska team took part. A victory over Kansas in their heat of the mile university, two seconds and three thirds, were counted by the Schultomen. The mile relay team of Campbell, Krause, Mays and Wyatt won out the Jayhawks in a thrilling finish while Lamson opened his varsity competition with a second in the high hurdles and Oslan was second in the pole vault.

Win From Big Field
Wirta's third in the vaulting event, Janulewicz's third in the half and Mays' third in the 600-yard Shannon Douglas cup were the other Nebraska places in the open events. Athletes from all over the Middle West took part in the affair.

Local track fans had their first opportunity to witness the Huskers perform, February 16, on the stadium indoor boards when the Nebraska team swamped the Kansas Aggies representatives in their annual indoor dual mix-up by a 56 2/3 to 15 1/3 score. Clean sweeps in the hurdles, 60-yard dash, 440 were the highlights of Nebraska, placing two men in every event.

Coach Schulte and his crew gave their first notice of assembled strength against the Iowa State team, February 23, when Coach Bob Simpson's team went down to defeat 59-45. First places were evenly divided in this meet, six go-

Club Works on Glider As First Class Project

Red' Long Backs Machine Construction; Plane Company Assists

The glider, which the university glider club is constructing will be ready for covering by the first of the month, according to Melton Leeson, treasurer of the organization. The club members enthusiastically announced yesterday that the wings were completed except for a few minor fixtures.

"Tall Group" consisting of the rudder, elevators, and stabilizer are practically finished, with the exception of the rudder, which has not been assembled. The body of the glider is now being constructed. The boys expect to do a great deal of work during the two days vacation of this week.

Long Backs Plane
"Red" Long, of the College Book store has agreed to finance the project, thus insuring the completion of the glider. The organization has decided that it will not limit its activities to the building and flying of gliders but that it will take up a study of the other forms of aeronautics.

The Lincoln Aeroplane company have made a proposition to the club, according to Harold Zipp, by which they can acquire an airplane.

Thursday afternoon the club plans to make a tour of inspection of the Arrow Aircraft corporation, through the courtesy of J. G. Aldrich.

VISITING TEACHER INSPECTS
A visit was made to the campus during the week by Lois Meredith, New York, of the national committee of Visiting Teachers. She conferred with Miss Behb, visiting teacher giving night courses to Lincoln teachers, on the work here.

Japanese-Hawaiian Senior States Opinion of Students at Nebraska

"Nebraska students on the whole are very provincial and hard to get acquainted with," according to Taduo Nishikawa, a Japanese-Hawaiian who will be graduated this year from the University. But Mr. Nishikawa added, "Once the barrier is broken down the students make very dear and sincere friends."

Mr. Nishikawa was very outspoken in his praise of the university faculty. "The instructors have treated me royally," he declared. "I have experienced no racial discrimination from any of them. Some of my friends at other schools tell me that students of other races are discriminated against."

Ten years ago Mr. Nishikawa could not speak a word of English. He attended a primary school with little children when he was nearly seven in order to learn the English language. He made rapid progress in completing his preparation for college in five years. He Cliff P. Sandahl, '29, Genoa, is the newly elected editor of The Daily Nebraskan. He will serve in that capacity during the first semester of next year.

STAFF GETS SUPPLY OF EXTRA YEARBOOKS

Cornhusker Will Sell at Regular Price During Coming Week

Extra copies of the 1929 Cornhusker, which were ordered last week, have been received, according to a statement issued by Bruce Thomas, business manager. These books will be sold from the Cornhusker office, south basement of University hall, tomorrow morning.

The new supply will sell at the regular price of five dollars. The supply is limited and the business staff of the Cornhusker expects to dispose of the number in the early part of this week. Publicity received from student comment is considered sufficient advertising to enable the staff to sell the books rapidly.

The Daily Nebraskan carried a review of the 1929 Cornhusker in its columns last week. The book is larger by some fifty pages than that of last year, and the art work is considered superior to such features in any Cornhusker that has been issued at the University of Nebraska. Numerous features, including a novel student life section, make the 1929 yearbook an outstanding college annual, in the opinion of those who have seen it.

Sell From Booths
During the past week, starting on Wednesday, Cornhuskers were distributed from the Cornhusker office and from booths in Andrews hall and Social Sciences. Students who had reserved books received them at the office, and cash purchases could be made at the booths. Members of the business and editorial staff of the yearbook supervised the sale.

"An Investment in Memories."
The title that has been given to the 1929 Cornhusker. The publicity staff of the book has stressed the importance of a Cornhusker from the standpoint of increasing value. Each year, according to advertising issues for the yearbook, adds to its value.

University Extension Provides Credits for Trip During Vacation

A summer vacation trip with college credit has been arranged by the department of geography and the university extension division.

The trip is to include travel through Nebraska and Wyoming to the Yellowstone park, the Salt Lake oasis, and the Rock mountains. The scheduled starting date is August 10.

The trip will be made by bus, under the direction of Prof. E. E. Luskley of the department of geography. An acceptable written report of the observations of the trip will entitle the students to three hours of college credit.

Gresham Gives Portion Of Old Tree to Museum
A portion of a tree has been given to the museum by E. W. Leonard of Gresham, illustrating the methods used by beaver in felling a tree. The wood was brought here from British Columbia. Mr. Leonard also presented an old pack saddle to the museum.

Ivy Day Ritual Includes Poem Read by Author

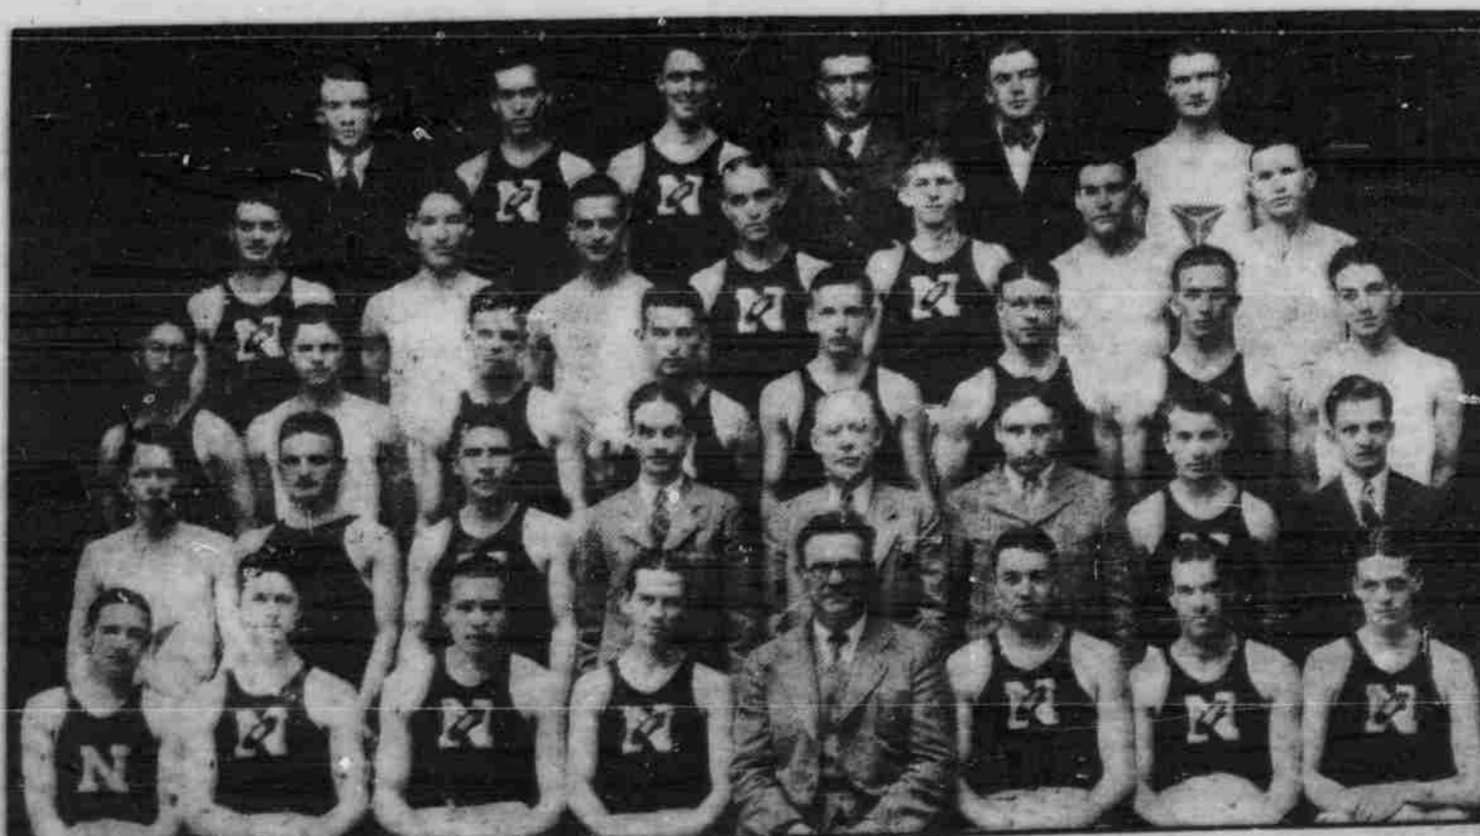

May Queen Crowns Writer With Laurels; Open To Seniors

The Ivy day poem is one of the many traditions of Ivy day. It is sponsored by Mortar Board, senior women's honorary society. The poem is read after the May Queen has been crowned. The poet is crowned with laurels by the May Queen.

All seniors are eligible to submit poems. Marie C. Mengers wrote the prize winning poem last year which follows.

IVY DAY POEM
The fair ones grace
The wreathed place
Where ivy tendrils cool are creeping;
The years are sped,
The paths we tread
Blend for a single reaping;
We crown the May,
We greet the day
Of life begun, new harvest bringing;
White petals fall,
Brave voices call
Hall and farswell—hoping,
Singing.

INTRAMURAL STAFFS WILL HONOR ALUMNAE

All University Girls Are Invited to Traditional Affair Friday

Alumnae will be the guests of honor at a luncheon to be given by the committee of the Women's Intramural Sports organization Friday noon at the Cornhusker Hotel. All university girls are invited to attend the luncheon which is a traditional affair of W. A. A.

During the meal announcements will be made of the group winning the highest number of intramural points for the year, and the plaque will be awarded. Awards will be made in each group winning first place in a tournament during 1928-1929, girls winning the university "29" will be also announced at the time.

In charge of the luncheon are Dorothy McGinley, chairman; Jean Towne, Creta Kinesbury, Martha Miller, Marion Davis, and Eva Spelbring. Tickets are on sale by intramural board representatives, and at the intramural office in the women's gymnasium.

GRADUATE DENTIST DIES AT IOWA HOME
Dr. Duane F. Wertz, graduate of the University of Nebraska dental college in 1923, and former prominent musician of Lincoln, died at his home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, last Tuesday evening, after suffering for more than a year from heart trouble.

After graduating from the University Doctor Wertz practiced dentistry in Oklahoma until his health failed. Funeral services were held on Wednesday at Elgin, Iowa. Word of the death of Doctor Wertz was received by O. H. Ziegenbein of Ashland.

Given the night before Ivy day, the tradition of Dance Drama grew out of the original practice of a folk festival which ended with the crowning of the May queen. Now the May queen is presented on Ivy day, and the Dance Drama has achieved its own special traditional place in Round Up week.

Tickets are now on sale by members of Orches, or they may be purchased at the armory by phoning or calling for them. General admission is fifty cents, and a few reserved seats are left for seventy-five cents. Children under twenty years of age will be admitted for fifteen cents, payable at the gate.
