Three Outstanding All-Talkies Come To Lincoln for Next Week's Showing

'Buddy' Rogers and Nancy Carroll Promise 'Illusion;' Gloria Swanson Has 'The Trespasser,' and John Gilbert 'His Glorious Night.'

There is probably a most enjoyable week ahead for the film fan. Never in my experience with theatres have I seen such a unified program of excellent shows presented in one week. When you have such film favorites as Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Nancy Carroll, John Gilbert, Gloria Swanson, June Collyer and many others all coupled up on one week's theatre presentations, I should say you have a group of entertainment, no less.

Getting down to the well known alloyed tacks, we find "Buddy" Rogers and Nancy Carroll, the lovable screen sweethearts of "Close Harmony," paired off again for a week of romance at the Stuart. "Illusion" they call it. The picture is based upon the novel of the same name by Arthur Train and deals with a circus theme. Critics everywhere have been kind to "Illusion," rating it as the best of the Rogers-Carroll all-talkies and placing even above the well remembered "Close Harmony."

Gloria Swanson Speaks.

Look what we're getting in on! The midwestern premiere presentation of Gloria Swanson's first all talking production, "The Trespasser," starting Monday at the Orpheum. As guest of the recent preview of this picture may I say in common terms, "it's a little dandy." If you admired Gloria in silent showings you'll be wild about her in her first all-speakie. And besides, she sings.

"The Trespasser" is Miss Swanson's graduation exercise from that small group of screen luminaries who are yet to be heard on the audible screen, to her new position in stardom and the rightful popularity of which she is justly deserving. You'll think so, too.

A Gilbert All Talkie.

Next week, the Lincoln theatre is having six glorious nights with "His Glorious Night," John Gilbert's first full length all-talking picture. Some of you, no doubt have heard Jack speak from the screen before and the same some of you will welcome the news of his return to Lincoln with this new 100 percent dialogue picture. The rest of you who haven't heard him will be equally glad to welcome him.

Jack seems to have that ability for making love that causes most of us to feel like amateurs but at the same time puts that he-man wholesomeness into his acting that is unmistakably pleasant. The story is okay, the acting is fine and Lionel Barrymore's directing is excellent.

Pardon, please, if I have impressed you all by speaking too highly of next week's theatre attractions but personally, I feel I can't say too much in favor of these three pictures and believe you will agree with me after seein gthem.

Gotta go now—
PLAY BOY.

FIRE CHIEF AIDS COEDS TO BREAK DORMITORY RULES

GRINNELL, Ia.—It used to be that if Grinnell college "Romeos" desired to meet their coed friends "at the foot of the fire escape," they were obliged to climb a fifteen-foot iron picket fence. These fences, erected around the lower landings of all escapes, were designed to prevent coeds from slipping down dormitory fire escapes to keep after-hour dates. Violation of college rules by the strategy last year brought about the move, college officials said.

Glee shook coed ranks at the college today as workmen tore the fence down. For the college girls, incensed at the "penitentiary" and "zoo" aspect of the dormitories had carried the matter to the state capitol.

The fences were removed after Fire Chief E. C. Wheeler received instructions ordering their removal from the state fire marshal at Des Moines.
