HUSKER SPIRITS RUN HIGH WITH COMING OF PITT

Huge Bonfire Celebration
To Usher in Rallying
Friday Evening.

COACHES WILL SPEAK
Bible, Oakes, Gish, Schulte,
Farley, Weir Will Air
Enthusiasm.

Cornhusker spirit will be at its height this week as time draws short for the all-important inter-sectional football classic on Memorial stadium field Saturday with Coach Jock Sutherland's Pittsburgh Panthers. The Golden Panther eleven is rated as the most powerful gridiron eleven in the east and are coming west to Lincoln to meet Nebraska in one of the greatest gridiron battles in the country.

Spirit for the big classic in Lincoln Saturday will rival that of the famous Notre Dame games of old as university students on the Nebraska campus prepare for the coming of the Golden Panthers. The Cornhusker team back at Syracuse last Saturday found that spirit that is known far and near as characteristic of all Husker football teams.

Bonfire Spirit!
Several thousand of the Nebraska students are expected to attend the big bonfire rally Friday night on the drill field which will touch off the fuse for the Husker pep in Saturday's game. The bonfire rally which is scheduled for Friday evening will give vent to a voluminous outburst of the renewed Cornhusker spirit which may carry a fighting Scarlet and Cream football team to victory over the Pitt Panthers on Memorial stadium field in Saturday's game.

Hundreds of grads are expected to be on hand for the big game Saturday and all roads will lead into Lincoln as Cornhusker football followers trek to Lincoln and the stronghold of the Nebraska Cornhuskers for this great battle of the year. Many of the old grads will be on hand Friday night to open up the gigantic pep meeting and join with the students in welcoming the Pitt team to Lincoln, providing Sutherland brings his squad in Friday night.

Poetry, Student Life, Features Appear In Opening Awgwan Pigskin Number

"Loving Couplets (As Seen in the Penn Woods)" is the title of the poetry page in the new Awgwan. This is one of the magazine's new and novel features brought about by the complete reorganization of the editorial policy.

One of the poems to appear in this section, according to Ye Ed, was inspired by the love affair of an Alpha Phi and Kappa Sig. It was written by a young man of sentimental nature, who finds apt expression in the poem. A clever bow and arrow illustration will decorate the poetry page.

James Pickering has drawn a striking, many colored cover page for the Awgwan, intended to depict a football theme. Pickering drew many of the covers on last year's Awgwans. The new Awgwan will make its initial appearance Thursday morning and will be sold by members of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity.

MOTION PICTURES ATTRACT CROWD TO MORRILL HALL.

Approximately three hundred children and adults attended the program held at Morrill hall Sunday afternoon, between 2:45 and 4 o'clock under the direction of Marjorie Shanafelt.

A three reel motion picture, "Naturalized Plant Immigrants," was shown twice during the afternoon in the auditorium, and organized tours through the museum were conducted by F. G. Collins, assistant curator. These programs will continue each Sunday afternoon in the future, starting at 2 o'clock and will be open to the general public.

KENNEDY COMPLAINS OF STUDENT SUPPORT

Business Manager Declares
That Annual Receives
Poor Backing.

"Student support of the Cornhusker is certainly lacking at the University of Nebraska," declared George Kennedy, business manager of the university year book, Monday while commenting on the approaching sales campaign. The campaign will commence Sunday, October 27, and continue through Saturday, November 2.

"Each year there are at least twenty individuals and several organizations enrolled in the selling campaign. And how many annuals do they sell? Two thousand out of a possible 7,000 in the student body."

Poor Showing.
This is a very poor showing in comparison to other schools, according to Kennedy. He stated that something was wrong somewhere when only 2,000, 30 percent of the university's enrollment, will buy their alma mater's annual.

"It seems to me that the student body at Nebraska does not realize the importance of the Cornhusker. Surely the price can be no factor in their not buying. Four dollars and a half is very reasonable for such a book."

GIGANTIC RALLY HOLDS SWAY AT STATION TODAY

TRAIN IS DUE AT 9:40

Innocents Sponsor Welcome
For Victorious Eleven; Charters Leads.

Rally to welcome Nebraska's Cornhuskers home from their eastern victory over Syracuse will be held at 9:40 o'clock Tuesday morning instead of at 9 o'clock as stated by Sunday's Nebraskan.

No definite steps have been taken to organize the rally and it will be an impromptu affair, according to Eldred Larson, president of the Innocents, because of intervening classes. The Innocents are sponsoring the rally, however, and students are to meet in front of Social Sciences at 9:30 o'clock.

Big Parade!
The R. O. T. C. band will be present and will lead a parade from Social Sciences to the Rock Island station, Twentieth and O streets. Members of the Corn Cobs, male pep organization, will take part in the parade and assist in the welcoming. "Mike" Chart-ers, University of Nebraska yell king, will lead the welcoming crowd in a series of Nebraska yells at the station.

This is the first of a number of rallies to be held during the week for arousing enthusiasm for the approaching Pittsburgh-Nebraska game. For this reason, and because of the splendid victory achieved over Syracuse by a fighting Husker team, it is hoped that all who do not have classes will prove their loyalty by attending this rally.

Fire Chief at Grinnell Wins Battle With Dean by Tearing Down Fences

The squabble at Grinnell college between the dean of women and the fire chief in regard to the relative need and use of fire escapes on the women's dormitories is not likely to be repeated at Nebraska.

To prevent romantic young swains from bringing their dates home at the wee small hours in the morning and smuggling them into their rooms up the fire escapes, a fifteen foot fence was built around the base of the fire escapes on the women's dormitories at Grinnell.

College officials insisted that the fences were ornamental and intended to keep "peeping toms" out instead of keeping the coeds in after 10 o'clock. The fire chief insists that the fence is a fire hazard and must come down. The dean of women maintains that the buildings are fire proof and that the fire escapes are not needed and that besides there are other exits to the dormitories. Fences, how-

ENGBERG COLLECTION IS GIVEN TO MUSEUM

Aggregation of Sea Life
Includes Specimens of Water Fauna.

DEAN DISCOVERED MANY

The remaining part of the late Dean Carl E. Engberg's collection of marine specimens has been given to the university museum by Mrs. Engberg, and will be put on display there at an early date.

The collection consists of hundreds of specimens of both fresh and salt water fauna, many of which were not known to science until their discovery by Dean Engberg and have consequently been named after him.

Most of the specimens were gathered at Puget Sound, Wash., where during the summer months Dean Engberg worked indefatigably to complete his collection. He also exchanged with many other collectors and the group as a result, contains samples of sea life from all over the world.

Each specimen in the collection is carefully labeled and identified, making the assembling of the exhibit very simple, and increasing its value to the museum.

RECORD NUMBER ENROLLED HERE FOR MEDIC WORK

This year's enrollment of 227 pre-medical students exceeds any previous year's enrollment in that department, there having been ninety freshmen registered this year.

Pre-medical organizations include Nu-Meds, a society for all pre-medical students. The Nu-Meds have a banquet every month at which various speakers on medical subjects are heard. It publishes a paper, the Nu-Med News, which is distributed at each banquet. On pre-medical day in May all medical students are guests of the college of medicine at Omaha.

FELLMAN BRINGS RATIO VOTE IDEA BEFORE COUNCIL

Group Chairman Introduces Program for Equable
Representation.

WOULD DEPEND ON POLL

Election Board to Decide
Places of Candidates Chosen Highest.

A student council composed of representatives of every class of students in the university and one that would command the respect of the faculty and administrative officers of the university as being truly representative is the thing that David Fellman would like to bring to pass, through his system of proportional representation, he told a Daily Nebraskan reporter Monday.

Fellman is chairman of the Student council committee on student organizations and in that capacity submitted a plan at the meeting Wednesday for a reorganization of the campus political system. His proposal is especially significant because of the barb council's announced intention of getting members on the Student council equal to the number of fraternity and sorority members. Under Fellman's plan they would be represented in proportion to their vote cast.

Recognize Parties.
"The proposal," Fellman explained, "is predicated upon the frank acknowledgement of the existence of political factions or groupings on the university campus. We recognize that political parties on the campus are realities, and that they are to be dealt with as such, just as political parties are recognized in the state and national governments."

"The students of the university were split into two definite groups in the spring election of last year. Each was seeking to control the students' most representative group, the Student council. This fall's election witnessed a split in the fraternities again, so that the old three-party contest was again held. It is safe to predict that there will continue to be various alignments within the student body."

"What we wish to do is to frankly acknowledge the situation as it exists. But we are trying to do one more thing, and that is to make the council really a students' council, and not the council of the fraternities."

Memorial Motives.
Dean Stanton spent fifty years of his life on the Iowa State campus, from 1870 until his death in 1920. During this time he was instrumental in securing a set of ten chimes which are a part of the present carillon, and furnishing a fund for the purchase of more chimes. A suggestion in his will of a memorial was carried out through the addition of the new twenty-six bell carillon.

The dedicatory program for the carillon was broadcast over radio station WOI, Iowa State college of agriculture, and in an announcement received from Ames today it was stated that Anton Brees, celebrated Belgian carillonneur, will play a concert next Sunday from 3 to 4 p. m.; the last fifteen minutes of which will be broadcast over station WOI. Regular carillon concerts will be broadcast from 7:10 to 7:30 on Tuesday and Saturday mornings.

THOMAS RICE VISITS DR. CONDRA MONDAY

Thomas D. Rice, inspector for the United States soil survey in the central district of the United States, was in the office of Dr. George E. Condra Monday. Mr. Rice, assisted by Mr. Hays, soil survey worker in this district for several years, has been making soil investigations in the fields of Knox, Cedar, Colfax and Stanton counties.

Pershing Rifles, Founded Here in 1892, Is Rapidly Becoming National

Pershing Rifles is an organization of basic course R. O. T. C. students which owes its birth to General John J. Pershing. In 1892 Pershing as first lieutenant was cadet commander at Nebraska. As an incentive for better drill among cadets, he organized Varsity Rifles. That year the Rifles entered a drill competition in Omaha among similar organizations and won the coveted Omaha trophy.

The organization was named Pershing Rifles the next year and has carried this name for thirty-seven years. The company has been active continuously except during the war when it was temporarily disbanded. Members are picked from the basic course by virtue of their proficiency in manual of arms and soldierly appearance. Tryouts are held once each semester and prospective members are voted on by the active members.

appear before noon-day luncheon clubs. The personnel is limited to sixty members. The company drills once a week and has a banquet once a month. Members are denoted by a brassard of royal blue and white worn at all times with their uniform.

Two years ago Pershing Rifles became a national organization with the founding of a second company at Ohio State. Since then companies have been installed at University of Tennessee, Illinois, Iowa, and Northwestern. Several other companies have petitioned and will be installed soon.

Nebraska, because of the founding of the organization here, has the national headquarters with the national colonel and adjutant elected by the Nebraska company. The present colonel is Ray Sabata of Dwight and the adjutant is Carl J. Hahn of Twin Falls, Idaho. Stanley Day is captain of the Nebraska company while Ben Cowdery and Richard Deveraux are first and second lieutenants respectively. Al Lucke is first sergeant.

First Play Cruise.
"The singing of religious songs at Easter time was discontinued because of their lack of interest," stated Paul M. Bruun, an advance representative of Mr. Fasmach, the Christus praysayer of the play, who is in Lincoln to supervise the preliminary work for the presentation of the drama. The first presentations of the play were very crude but step by step through the ages the colossal production such as will be presented here was resultant.

Two different methods for a presentation were provided for. A professional enactment of the drama was given on the outside of the cathedral, from a street to a street, and an unfolding of the story took place on a platform in front of the cathedral.

The presentation of the drama was at first in the hands of the church but later the control was transferred to the town council, and each guild by right of tradition, presented a certain episode.

Construction Problems.
The designer must determine the wing area, the weight and the size of the engine. He must determine where the center of gravity lies in order to locate the correct position for the wings. Should he fall in any of these calculations, the plane would not be at all stable in the air.

Every member of the fuselage is designed to stand the maximum stress applied to that part plus a margin of safety. Static tests with sand bags are used to test the strength of various parts.

A well designed and constructed plane is so well balanced and has all forces in such equilibrium that the plane will right itself in the air.

5,000 Seats Left for
Pitt-Nebraska Game
Nearly 5,000 seats for the Pittsburgh-Nebraska football game Saturday are still available, according to an announcement made Monday by John K. Selleck, secretary of the athletic board.

Necessary special bleachers will be erected at the ends of the stadium to accommodate the record crowd expected to be in attendance at the game.

Before this however, as early as the ninth century in a small community called Freiburg, located in the Black Forest in Baden, rich in the traditions and superstitions of their ancestors, a dramatic device had been reported to by the clergy
