Mr. Boss will remain in Lincoln s long as is necessary to carry at the experiment in religious edpeation. He proposes to work with ministers of the nine Metho-churches of the city, and will dertake to find out what the actual need is in the way of reand young people.

The plan will bring together four different groups of the city, namely, Methodist ministers, faculty members, groups of business men, and the Methodist Stuness council of the University of Nebraska. Each group will make some study of young people's work and report what, in its judg-ment, is the best in the way of religious education.

In addition, Mr. Boss proposes to give certain tests which will reveal students' needs. These tests will cover the life and teachings Jeaus as well as the Old Testament. Using these tests and the reports as a basis, courses of dy will be arranged to further eligious activity.

A similar method is followed in other leading universities and is also a part of the actual work also a part of the actual work pire.
